Six Men Put Up 400 Foot Roof In a Day and a Half

When we say six men did it, we don't mean six men and a half dozen boys.
We mean, six men did the whole thing from start to finish. However, don't think for a minute that we claim that these six men put up the entire frame in 1½ days.

The posts were set, and the eave plate and side sill all in place, when they started putting up the roof frame and both gables.
But mind you, the entire Iron Frame and all trussing was entirely in place, right down to the last bolt, in 2½ days.

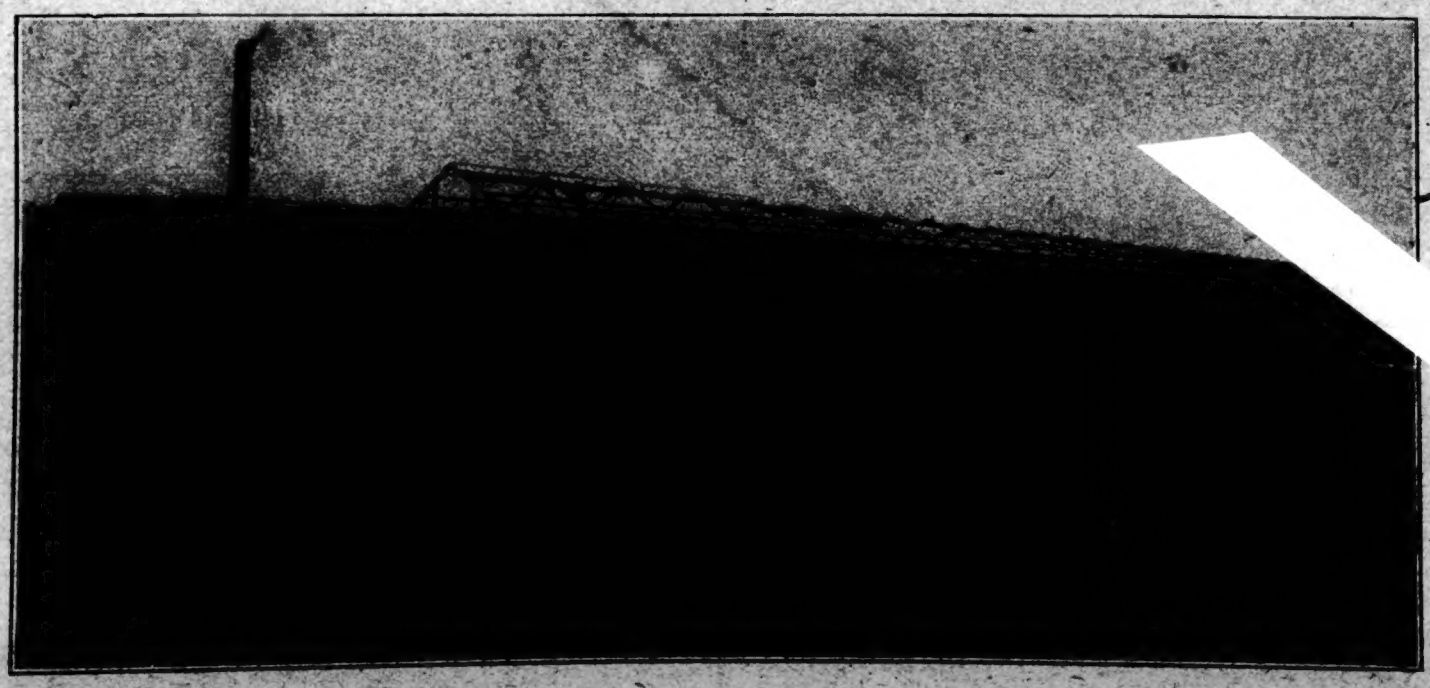
In five days, both houses, each about 70 by 400 feet, were framed up.

All this happened at Premier Gardens, Maywood, Illinois. Mr. Weiss, the Manager of the Company, said he never saw anything like it.

It's quite the usual thing, you know, to show a whole flock of men standing on every available inch, and then make a noise about how the frame jumped into place like a mushroom grows over night.

You know as well as we do, that six men could never put up what these six did, if all parts were not accurately cut and fitted at our factory.
Neither could they do it, if portions of the rafter and truss were not assembled at the factory.
But they are.
That's the way we do things.
Just as little as possible is left for the men to do on the job.

That's why they get the job done so soon.



When you are ready to talk building to us, we are ready to talk building to you.

LILIES
For Your Easter Use

Draw your Lilies from what undoubtedly is the LARGEST AND FINEST SUPPLY IN AMERICA

In figuring on the Lilies you can use this Easter, consider several factors—remember that a tremendous demand is assured, at good prices, giving a chance for nice profits for retailers who provide the stock and facilities to meet the demand. Remember, also, that Lilies will be of old-time quality. The bulbs imported last year cost more but were of better quality than in recent years. Amling's Lilies, forced from large size, selected bulbs, will be of quality equal to any ever seen in the market. They will sell easily to your customers and will give unqualified satisfaction. We offer you any part of

100,000 CUT LILIES for EASTER

Packed in wood boxes, 100 or 200 to the box

SELECTED GRADE Best and Longest		AVERAGE GRADE Medium Stems
Per 100	$ 25.00	Per 100	$ 20.00
Per 1000	250.00	Per 1000	200.00

Bear in mind that the total number of Lily bulbs imported last fall was not over one-half what America received before the war. Consider how greatly demand has increased. A shortage of Lilies is certain—but YOU can assure YOUR supply by ordering today.

McCRAY

REFRIGERATORS FOR ALL PURPOSES

And, for the Floral Trade in Particular

THE McCray Refrigerator is the favorite with the floral trade. Many successful Florists have used McCray Refrigerators for years and years with perfect satisfaction. They have unbounded confidence in the refrigerator which bears the name "McCray" for it stands for quality and unequalled service.

Viewed solely from the selling end, the McCray has superior qualities—for it aids in selling flowers and at the same time puts a stop to waste from spoilage. The various compartments are of different sizes and accomodate the different lengths of cut flowers.

Both the exterior and the interior of the McCray Florist Refrigerators are handsomely made and easy to keep clean. You may have either heavy plate mirror or white enamel for the interior lining. The exterior may be of any finish to match your woodwork or fixtures.

There is a McCray built to suit your requirements. The styles illustrated here are designed for Florists, but this is not our complete line. Our Catalog No. 74 shows many more refrigerators. Get a copy of this Catalog—it will tell you more about the McCray and what it will mean to your business.

Send for Catalog—Let us send you a catalog that describes a great variety of designs—one to suit every requirement: No. 74 for Florists; No. 71 for Grocers and Delicatessens; No. 63 for Meat Markets and General Stores; No. 95 for Residences; No. 52 for Hotels and Restaurants.

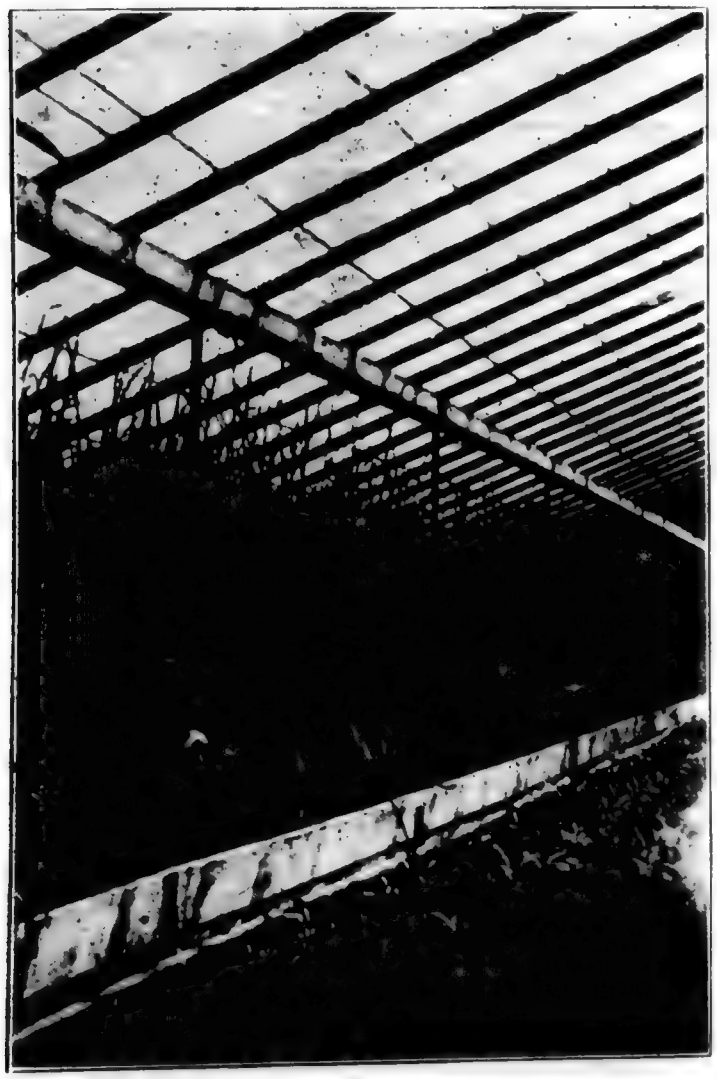
An Announcement by Michell's Seed House

Through the loyalty of our many customers, we have again been obliged to meet their demands by increasing our facilities for doing business.

These consist of (in addition to 518 Market Street), the entire building, 516 Market Street, extending through to Ludlow Street, four stories and basement, aggregating 20,700 square feet of floor space.

The building has been thoroughly remodeled and arranged to suit our particular business, and is now open for inspection.

At American and Dauphin Streets, Philadelphia, we have acquired through purchase, a modern 4-story brick warehouse, 75x150 feet, with a railroad siding therein accommodating two freight cars. This building too has been rearranged and altered to suit our needs and includes a garage to house our fleet of seven (7) Motor Trucks. This warehouse is for the storage of the bulky items in our business, such as Grass and Farm Seeds, also Fertilizers. It will greatly facilitate the shipments we make by freight.



Come in and see us when in Philadelphia on any business day, 8 A. M. to 5:30 P. M. You will find the founders of the business to welcome you, Henry F. and Frederick J. Michell (still at the helm), also our various managers and heads of departments and over 125 employees will be glad to see you.

You will be surprised to see the magnitude and scope of a business which has grown in 30 years from an insignificant beginning to one of the largest establishments of its kind in the United States.

FLORISTS' CATALOG

Seeds, Bulbs and Florists' Supplies for the Garden, Field and Greenhouse.

We are beginning our forty-fifth year in the seed business, and cannot help but feel gratified at our constantly growing list of customers. The fact that our customers come to us year after year proves that our seeds have been satisfactory, and that has been our aim—to supply seeds of such quality that our patrons will be perfectly satisfied and will come back the next year, bringing along their friends. To our patrons we would say that our future service will be of the same high class as in the past, and to those who have never purchased seeds from us we would say, "Give us a trial"—you will then join the ranks of those who have bought from us for years, and to whose commendations we owe the success of our business.

MR GEORGE BALL, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Chicago, N vember 9th, 1920.
Dear Sir: We feel impell d to tell you the high praise that we have received from our customers concerning your Wh te Aster. In addition to its magnific nt form, it also has the advantage of being an ex ellent keeper and one of the best sellers that we have t offer. We take great pleasure in recommending this variety to anyone for either commercial or private growing, as it is superior to any other White Aster. Very truly yours,
THE CHICAGO FLOWER GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

BALL'S WHITE ASTER

The seed of this splendid Giant Aster of the Late Branching type—the product of twelve years' selection to develop a perfectly double flower, of flawless color—is offered in 1921 for the first time.

In the Fall of 1908 a plant was found among Late Branching White Asters on which the flowers were solidly double, so much so that, from eight to ten flowers, only fifty seedlings were grown the following year.

It has been grown and the seed carefully selected every season since. In 1918, three-quarters of an acre netted $2,300. An exceptionally good market helped, but this variety has always sold for 50% more than ordinary White Asters.

The flowering season comes between the early and late, when the market usually is best. It grows to a medium height with full, distinctively centered blossoms, ideally formed for long distance shipping.

Per large trade packet, containing about 4000 seeds,

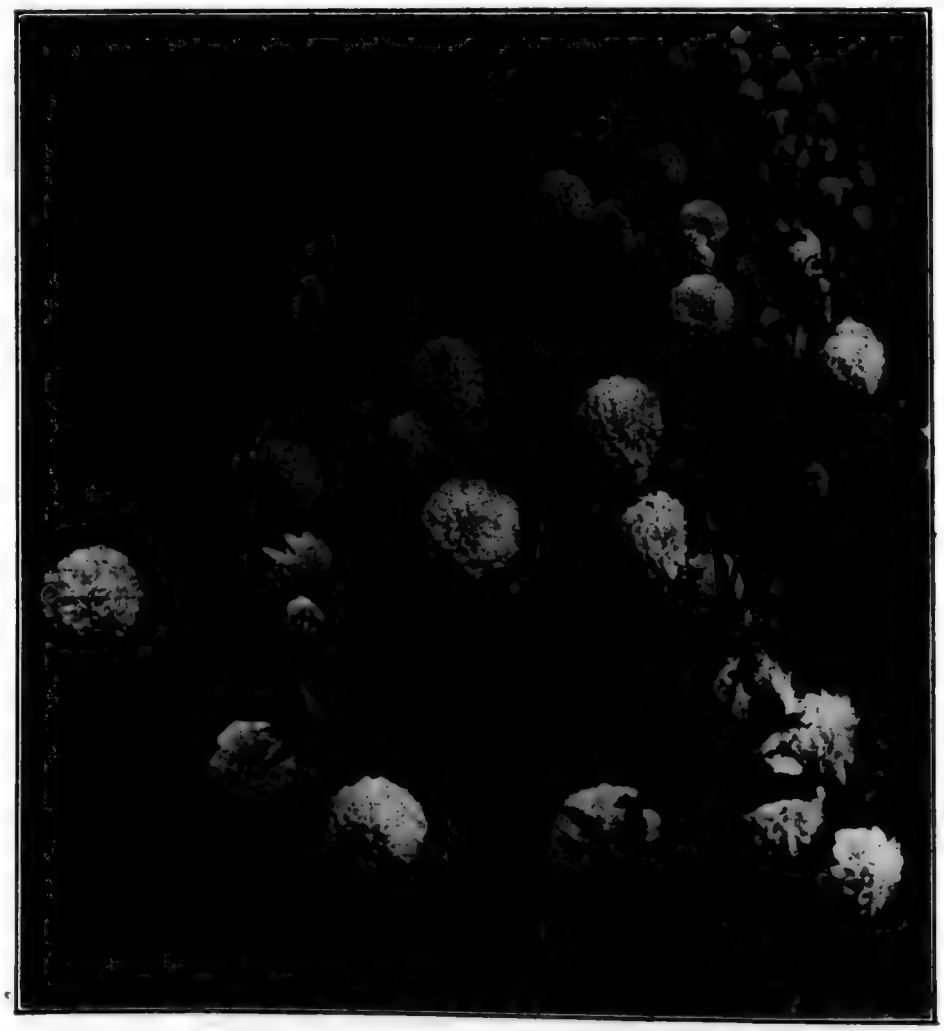
Burpee's Dahlias



JEAN KERR
Burpee's Sensational Decorative Dahlia

The most valuable of all white decorative dahlias. Let the weather be as it may, and no other dahlia blooming, JEAN KERR will be a mass of flowers. It is one of the first to flower and blooms continuously until killed by frost.

In type it is a short-petaled decorative, and by some classed as a show or ball dahlia. It is an outstanding variety because it never fails to bloom freely. The pure white blooms are carried gracefully on long and strong stems. The illustration, reproduced from a Fordhook photograph, shows the compact growth and free-flowering habit. JEAN KERR is a foremost variety for cut flowers, and equally important for garden use. JEAN KERR was awarded a Certificate of Merit by the American Dahlia Society when first exhibited in September, 1916. After it was tested in the trial grounds of the American Dahlia Society it received a second Certificate of merit on September 24, 1920.

Strong Roots, 75 cents each,
3 for $2.00, 12 for $7.00, delivered.

BELGIAN FLORISTS FACE WAR'S RUINS

Before the war the florists of Belgium held a more important place in our business than those of any other foreign country. How they have come out of the struggle, as told by one of them in this article written for The Review, is therefore of general interest.

By O. WUYTS,
Chef de Culture,
Ecole d'Horticulture de l'Etat,
Ghent, Belgium.

BEFORE the war there were in the vicinity of Ghent almost 1,100 florists' establishments, which nearly all grew for export. They covered an area of about 500 hectares, or about 1,250 acres. Their value was about 55,000,000 francs, or about $11,000,000 at the prewar rate of exchange. Twelve thousand workmen were employed exclusively in growing plants, besides painters, carpenters, boiler erectors, tub makers and others.

Before the war the stock of plants was abundant, as Belgium supplied many countries, such as America, France, England, Russia, Germany, Austria, Scandinavia and, in smaller quantities, Italy and Holland. There were exported in 1914 plants with a total value of 14,000,000 francs.

Specialties.

The principal culture was that of Azalea indica, for which the climate, the nature of the water, the atmospheric conditions and the texture of the soil in the vicinity of Ghent are particularly favorable. It may be stated without boasting that Ghent holds the world's monopoly of these charming plants, which are known all over the world as Ghent azaleas, although not to be confused with the English Ghent azaleas, A. pontica x mollis.

Besides this, the plantings of hardy rhododendrons, Azalea mollis, A. pontica, A. sinensis and hybrids; palms such as kentias, cocos, phœnix, latanias; orchids, araucarias, camellias, aspidistras, Laurus nobilis, eurya, Citrus sinensis, clivias, myrtus, Dracæna indivisa, D. Bruantii, D. congesta, Acacia paradoxa, boronias, tuberous-rooted begonias and gloxinias were the chief features of the horticultural activity.

Some firms specialized in the culture of different plants. Who has never heard of the most remarkable orchid hybrids raised by Mr. Vuylsteke, of Loochristy, near Ghent; of the magnificent anthuriums and marantas of the firm Alexis Dalliere; of the gorgeous collections of stove plants, such as bertolonias, dracænas, crotons, caladiums and nepenthes, of Louis Van Houtte; of the grand collection of cape and New Holland plants of Lucian de Coek?

The Floralies Quinquenniales held in the hall of the Societe Royale d'Agriculture and de Botanique de Gand used to attract professional and amateur horticulturists from all parts of the world. So important was that center and so numerous were those engaged in that line of culture that the Belgian government created in 1849 a school of horticulture, founded by Louis Van Houtte, which is still existing and is known as l'Ecole moyenne fratique d'Agriculture et d'Horticulture de l'Etat a Gand. Its old students, many of them foreigners, are occupying prominent positions at home and abroad.

War's Destruction.

This flourishing state of affairs was, alas, violently affected by the war. The occupying authorities refused to supply the coal necessary for the upkeep of the plants. Owing to that fact, numerous and unique specimens of rare plants were sacrificed; the culture of stove plants has been reduced to a minimum; great numbers of palms have been thrown away or sold for nearly nothing. In many cases the direct or indirect damages caused by the war have destroyed many greenhouses. The frost also killed many plants. Threatened by requisition and deportation, many florists were obliged to cultivate vegetables instead of flowers.

Notwithstanding all these calamities, the Belgian florists have made incredible attempts to save the greatest part of their plants. They spared neither effort nor pecuniary sacrifice to be able to present after the hostilities the fruit of many years of hard and patient work. They had chiefly taken care of the plants sought after by their American customers, sure as they were that the generosity which the American nation had shown them during the war would save them after the most terrible ordeal through which the Belgian people ever went.

Disillusionment.

This hope, founded on all that the war had taught and shown in the way of self-denial, generosity and sympathy, was soon transformed into bitter disillusionment. Without any warning, all importations to the United States of America were stopped; incredible disappointment broke the people down; all their hopes suddenly faded away. This despair was the greater since the florists of Ghent do not understand the cause of the embargo. With the best will in the world, they cannot grasp the relation which may exist between diseases of cotton and those of the plants cultivated in Belgium, where the cotton plant is unknown, as is the cotton boll-weevil. They cannot understand why the bulbs of begonias and gloxinias are excluded, whereas Dutch bulbs, such as tulips, daffodils and hyacinths, are admitted to America. They comprehend the less since the Belgian bulbs when sold are only a few months old and are all propagated from seeds, thus adding strength and vigor to the strain, while the Dutch bulbs, before being salable, need a much greater period of cultivation—three years—and are exclusively increased by vegetative propagation. The Belgian florists do not understand why the entrance of greenhouse and stove plants is prohibited as a preventive mea-

First-hand facts regarding the present condition of Belgian florists are presented here to Review readers, not as propaganda for or against Quarantine 37, but as a description of the present situation in a country whose florists were formerly most closely connected with those of the United States and whose trials and courage during the war were the object of notice everywhere.

sure against the diseases of fruit trees and agricultural plants. A. C. Baker and M. L. Moles in the proceedings of the Entomological Society's meeting at Washington, in May, 1920, state that Aleurodes azaleæ is not abundant on the food plant and that it does not seem, so far, to be injurious. W. R. Walton in the Review of Applied Entomology, volume VIII, states that the European corn borer, or Pyraustea nubilalis, gained access to America in the grain of broom corn, which came from Venice. Broom corn is not at all cultivated in Belgium, the climate of this country being much too cold for the plant. The florists here put to themselves the question why certain kinds of plants on which no injurious insects have ever been detected, either in America or in Belgium, such as araucarias, must not be imported into America.

Azalea Culture.

The soil in which azaleas are grown is totally artificial. The natural soil of the Ghent district is sandy, poor, light and permeable. The florists divide the land devoted to the culture of azaleas into beds of one and one-fifth meters width. The beds are excavated to a depth of from ten to twenty-five centimeters, according to the size of the ball of the plant. That space is then filled with leaf soil, chiefly leaves of oak, beech and chestnut, in which the plants are grown. That leaf soil is found in woods situated in the north of Belgium, where some persons make a business of raking the top layer of the old mattress covering the ground in the wood. These sweet, undecomposed leaves are then loaded on railway trucks, brought to the nurseries and used at once. It is nearly impossible for any insect to live in that thin, loose layer of soil, fully exposed to the air and flooded every day during the warm weather, as the azalea requires an extraordinary amount of water during the summer. During the winter, when the plants are housed, the leaf soil is drawn in heaps towards the center of the bed so as to permit the atmospheric agents to exercise their favorable influence.

Postwar Handicaps.

The high cost of labor, the scarcity and high cost of coal, the low rate of exchange and poverty of Germany and Austria, which make it nearly impossible for these countries to buy plants from Belgium, the chaotic situation in Russia—all these factors together with the American embargo have given a deadly blow to our noble national industry.

More than 200 florists' establishments in the vicinity of Ghent have been demolished or have been sold at public auction. Many greenhouses have been bought by Dutchmen. Owing to the favorable rate of exchange, they get them for next to nothing. Other florists have abandoned their cultures, but their greenhouses are still standing and crying for better times. Many employers have been compelled to seek a living in other occupations, often incompatible with their inclinations. Others, already of advanced age, have gone abroad, seeking fortune in another country. Not less unhappy are the workmen, many of whom are too old to learn another trade and are heartbroken to leave the vocation they loved so much. Another serious consequence is that no young men desirous of studying horticulture dare engage themselves in that line, and in the future, when better conditions will reign in the various countries, Belgian horticulturists will face a serious handicap by not having the skilled labor necessary for doing such delicate work as propagation, watering or packing, which are more of a rational than of a mechanical nature. It is unnecessary to mention that first-class labor must be trained to the work from early youth.

Present Conditions.

Under the stress of the war, many florists grew vegetables, but there was such an abundance of greens that they were sold at too low prices. They sometimes did not pay the cost of carriage from the producing spot to the market. The florists who are still working have all reduced to a minimum the extension of their cultures in order to save fuel. They have only saved those plants which are most in demand, neglecting others, perhaps more interesting, but of a smaller commercial value. For some plants, such as azaleas, the growers have used no heat this year. How could they? At a recent public auction sale 2,000 Azalea Hexe were sold for 24 francs. The growers simply cover the greenhouses with reed mats at night and place sheets of thick brown paper directly over the plants in case of heavy frost. The number of empty greenhouses is considerable and it may be stated without fear of exaggeration that the culture of certain kinds of plants, such as azaleas and rhododendrons, is reduced to one-fifth of what it was in 1914.

STYLE SHOW DECORATIONS.

An event at which the Benning Flower Shop was able to demonstrate its ability in floral decorating was a style show recently held at St. Joseph, Mich., by the Shepard & Benning Co. This firm handles ladies' ready-to-wear garments, and the event was staged in their spacious show rooms. A mammoth platform, 12x140 feet, was erected through the middle of the store. This was surrounded by ferns, palms, cinerarias, baskets of jonquils, Paper Whites and tulips. The front of the platform was banked with ferns and palms, interspersed with Easter lilies, callas and hyacinths. The panels and wall cases of the store were decorated with southern smilax, which also made an effective decoration for an overhead electric group lighting.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

LA CROSSE THEATER OPENING.

At the recent opening of the new Rivoli theater, at La Crosse, Wis., the foyer and entire theater were beautifully decorated, under the supervision of C. E. Schaefer, superintendent of the floral department of the John A. Salzer Seed Co.

The effect of the mass of flowers was unusual and pleasing. As seen in the accompanying illustration, the lobby was bedecked with floral baskets and other arrangements, with a floral horseshoe as the center of attraction. This masterpiece contained over 2,500 roses and other flowers, and was the source of much favorable comment. The illustration shows the card, which bore the signature of "La Crosse Friends."

The theater proper and entire stage were decorated with huge baskets of American Beauty roses. The artistic ability of the decorator was freely commented upon. The decoration of this theater was by far the largest display of this kind that La Crosse has ever witnessed.

GOOD LIGHTING AIDS SALES.

How to Improve Artificial Lighting.

Retailers in all lines are finding it more and more profitable to pay a greater amount of attention to the artificial light they use. Many stores find it necessary to use considerable artificial light throughout the day and they have discovered that this light has something to do with the volume of sales. In some cases it even influences the degree of satisfaction that the goods give to the purchaser.

It is not only the amount of light that must be considered, but the color of light as well. Dry goods and clothing stores find it advisable to have their light as near daylight as possible. The butcher finds that light of one tone makes his meat appear attractive, while under another tone the meat looks less appetizing. So there are certain tones or tints that are of greater value in the flower store.

The value of artificial light and the different ways in which it can be used to stimulate sales, however, is only beginning to be realized by the average retailer. He is not always aware that today it is possible to secure lights and fixtures that will give any desired color or tint. Electric lamps are made to give color values from the natural light of the filament to a close approach to daylight. Bowls and shades for these lights are also on the market which give just the tint which makes the goods displayed appear to best advantage.

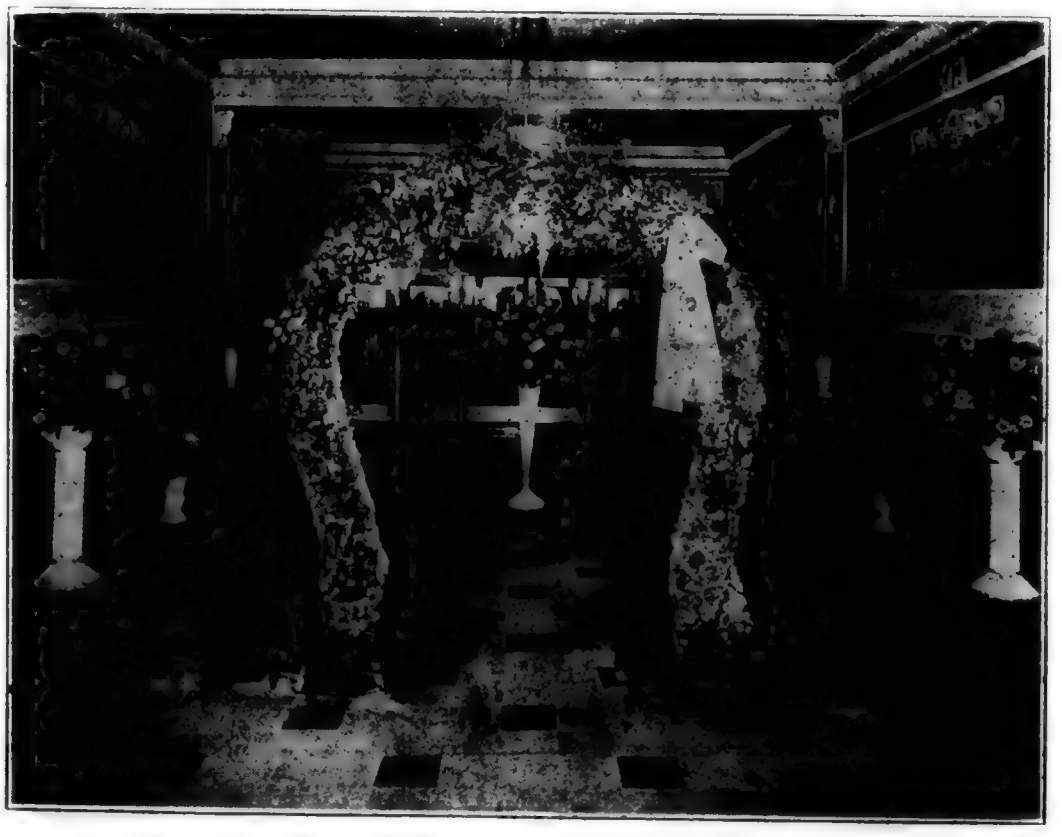
Important for Plant Colors.

At first sight it may not be apparent that it is highly important that the florist give the color of the light in his store great attention. He may, however, have noted that, when plants are displayed in the store they do not sell so readily as when they are displayed on the sidewalk or in the window, where they are viewed in daylight. In fact, he may have found that people insist on buying those plants which are displayed under daylight, even though those in the store, which are lighted by artificial light, are from the same lot and arrived at the store at the same time.

Knowing that all the plants are the same, it is likely that the florist has not observed that those plants shown under artificial light do not look quite so green, fresh and healthy as those displayed in daylight. If he has noticed this fact he may not have realized that this is due to the fact that the effect of artificial light is not the same as that of daylight.

The color of any object is due to the light that it reflects. If light of a different color is thrown upon it, the object itself may appear of a different color. One of the extreme examples of this is a red object under the mercury-vapor lamp. The red appears black because there are no red rays in the lamp and consequently the red object cannot reflect light. The same process takes place to some extent with every change of color. If artificial light does not have the correct proportion of rays of light of the true color of the plants, then they will not look so fresh and attractive under artificial light as they do under daylight. If, however, the artificial light favors those colors which the plants reflect, then under artificial light they will look as well as, or better than, they do under daylight.

Exaggerate One Color.



Since artificial light is never so brilliant as daylight, it is usually better to have the color of the plants exaggerated rather than subdued. Only by such exaggeration are they likely to look as well under artificial light of the common brilliancy as they do in daylight.

The ordinary electric light is of too blue a tint to serve the purpose. The light should be given more of the green tint of the plants by means of tinted, diffusing glass bowls. There are today a number of lighting experts who make a specialty of procuring exactly the right lighting effects, but any florist can get a practical idea of what installation will bring results by trying out different lamps and bowls and noting the effects on his stock.

If sufficient attention is given to artificial lighting, both in regard to color and brilliancy, it is found that just as good results can be obtained under artificial light as under daylight.

Giving the lighting problem sufficient attention also increases the value of the store from a sales standpoint. Parts of the shop that have not been useful in selling can be improved by lighting them in the right way. The light must be sufficiently bright and the color must be the right tone to bring out the good features of the stock displayed.

There are several methods by which the color values may be changed at little expense. First, however, it will sure against the diseases of fruit trees and agricultural plants. A. C. Baker and M. L. Moles in the proceedings of the Entomological Society's meeting at Washington, in May, 1920, state that Aleurodes azaleæ is not abundant on the food plant and that it does not seem, so far, to be injurious. W. R. Walton in the Review of Applied Entomology, volume VIII, states that the European corn borer, or Pyraustea nubilalis, gained access to America in the grain of broom corn, which came from Venice. Broom corn is not at all cultivated in Belgium, the climate of this country being much too cold for the plant. The florists here put to themselves the question why certain kinds of plants on which no injurious insects have ever been detected, either in America or in Belgium, such as araucarias, must not be imported into America.

Azalea Culture.

The soil in which azaleas are grown is totally artificial. The natural soil of the Ghent district is sandy, poor, light and permeable. The florists divide the land devoted to the culture of azaleas into beds of one and one-fifth meters width. The beds are excavated to a depth of from ten to twenty-five centimeters, according to the size of the ball of the plant. That space is then filled with leaf soil, chiefly leaves of oak, beech and chestnut, in which the plants are grown. That leaf soil is found in woods situated in the north of Belgium, where some persons make a business of raking the top layer of the old mattress covering the ground in the wood. These sweet, undecomposed leaves are then loaded on railway trucks, brought to the nurseries and used at once. It is nearly impossible for any insect to live in that thin, loose layer of soil, fully exposed to the air and flooded every day during the warm weather, as the azalea requires an extraordinary amount of water during the summer. During the winter, when the plants are housed, the leaf soil is drawn in heaps towards the center of the bed so as to permit the atmospheric agents to exercise their favorable influence.

Postwar Handicaps.

The high cost of labor, the scarcity and high cost of coal, the low rate of exchange and poverty of Germany and Austria, which make it nearly impossible for these countries to buy plants from Belgium, the chaotic situation in Russia—all these factors together with the American embargo have given a deadly blow to our noble national industry.

More than 200 florists' establishments in the vicinity of Ghent have been demolished or have been sold at public auction. Many greenhouses have been bought by Dutchmen. Owing to the favorable rate of exchange, they get them for next to nothing. Other florists have abandoned their cultures, but their greenhouses are still standing and crying for better times. Many employers have been compelled to seek a living in other occupations, often incompatible with their inclinations. Others, already of advanced age, have gone abroad, seeking fortune in another country. Not less unhappy are the workmen, many of whom are too old to learn another trade and are heartbroken to leave the vocation they loved so much. Another serious consequence is that no young men desirous of studying horticulture dare engage themselves in that line, and in the future, when better conditions will reign in the various countries, Belgian horticulturists will face a serious handicap by not having the skilled labor necessary for doing such delicate work as propagation, watering or packing, which are more of a rational than of a mechanical nature. It is unnecessary to mention that first-class labor must be trained to the work from early youth.

Present Conditions.

Under the stress of the war, many florists grew vegetables, but there was such an abundance of greens that they were sold at too low prices. They sometimes did not pay the cost of carriage from the producing spot to the market. The florists who are still working have all reduced to a minimum the extension of their cultures in order to save fuel. They have only saved those plants which are most in demand, neglecting others, perhaps more interesting, but of a smaller commercial value. For some plants, such as azaleas, the growers have used no heat this year. How could they? At a recent public auction sale 2,000 Azalea Hexe were sold for 24 francs. The growers simply cover the greenhouses with reed mats at night and place sheets of thick brown paper directly over the plants in case of heavy frost. The number of empty greenhouses is considerable and it may be stated without fear of exaggeration that the culture of certain kinds of plants, such as azaleas and rhododendrons, is reduced to one-fifth of what it was in 1914.

STYLE SHOW DECORATIONS.

An event at which the Benning Flower Shop was able to demonstrate its ability in floral decorating was a style show recently held at St. Joseph, Mich., by the Shepard & Benning Co. This firm handles ladies' ready-to-wear garments, and the event was staged in their spacious show rooms. A mammoth platform, 12x140 feet, was erected through the middle of the store. This was surrounded by ferns, palms, cinerarias, baskets of jonquils, Paper Whites and tulips. The front of the platform was banked with ferns and palms, interspersed with Easter lilies, callas and hyacinths. The panels and wall cases of the store were decorated with southern smilax, which also made an effective decoration for an overhead electric group lighting.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

LA CROSSE THEATER OPENING.

At the recent opening of the new Rivoli theater, at La Crosse, Wis., the foyer and entire theater were beautifully decorated, under the supervision of C. E. Schaefer, superintendent of the floral department of the John A. Salzer Seed Co.

The effect of the mass of flowers was unusual and pleasing. As seen in the accompanying illustration, the lobby was bedecked with floral baskets and other arrangements, with a floral horseshoe as the center of attraction. This masterpiece contained over 2,500 roses and other flowers, and was the source of much favorable comment. The illustration shows the card, which bore the signature of "La Crosse Friends."

The theater proper and entire stage were decorated with huge baskets of American Beauty roses. The artistic ability of the decorator was freely commented upon. The decoration of this theater was by far the largest display of this kind that La Crosse has ever witnessed.

GOOD LIGHTING AIDS SALES.

How to Improve Artificial Lighting.

Retailers in all lines are finding it more and more profitable to pay a greater amount of attention to the artificial light they use. Many stores find it necessary to use considerable artificial light throughout the day and they have discovered that this light has something to do with the volume of sales. In some cases it even influences the degree of satisfaction that the goods give to the purchaser.

It is not only the amount of light that must be considered, but the color of light as well. Dry goods and clothing stores find it advisable to have their light as near daylight as possible. The butcher finds that light of one tone makes his meat appear attractive, while under another tone the meat looks less appetizing. So there are certain tones or tints that are of greater value in the flower store.

The value of artificial light and the different ways in which it can be used to stimulate sales, however, is only beginning to be realized by the average retailer. He is not always aware that today it is possible to secure lights and fixtures that will give any desired color or tint. Electric lamps are made to give color values from the natural light of the filament to a close approach to daylight. Bowls and shades for these lights are also on the market which give just the tint which makes the goods displayed appear to best advantage.

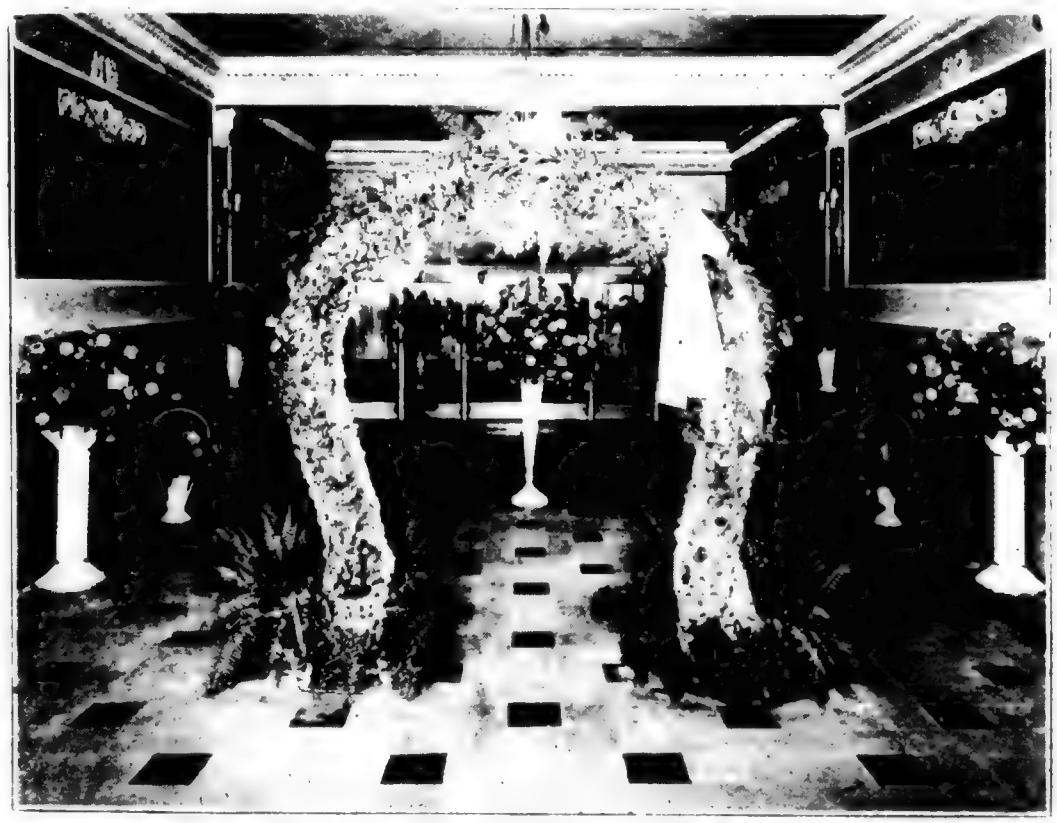
Important for Plant Colors.

At first sight it may not be apparent that it is highly important that the florist give the color of the light in his store great attention. He may, however, have noted that, when plants are displayed in the store they do not sell so readily as when they are displayed on the sidewalk or in the window, where they are viewed in daylight. In fact, he may have found that people insist on buying those plants which are displayed under daylight, even though those in the store, which are lighted by artificial light, are from the same lot and arrived at the store at the same time.

Knowing that all the plants are the same, it is likely that the florist has not observed that those plants shown under artificial light do not look quite so green, fresh and healthy as those displayed in daylight. If he has noticed this fact he may not have realized that this is due to the fact that the effect of artificial light is not the same as that of daylight.

The color of any object is due to the light that it reflects. If light of a different color is thrown upon it, the object itself may appear of a different color. One of the extreme examples of this is a red object under the mercury vapor lamp. The red appears black because there are no red rays in the lamp and consequently the red object cannot reflect light. The same process takes place to some extent with every change of color. If artificial light does not have the correct proportion of rays of light of the true color of the plants, then they will not look so fresh and attractive under artificial light as they do under daylight. If, however, the artificial light favors those colors which the plants reflect, then under artificial light they will look as well as, or better than, they do under daylight.

Exaggerate One Color.



Since artificial light is never so brilliant as daylight, it is usually better to have the color of the plants exaggerated rather than subdued. Only by such exaggeration are they likely to look as well under artificial light of the common brilliancy as they do in daylight.

The ordinary electric light is of too blue a tint to serve the purpose. The light should be given more of the green tint of the plants by means of tinted, diffusing glass bowls. There are today a number of lighting experts who make a specialty of procuring exactly the right lighting effects, but any florist can get a practical idea of what installation will bring results by trying out different lamps and bowls and noting the effects on his stock.

If sufficient attention is given to artificial lighting, both in regard to color and brilliancy, it is found that just as good results can be obtained under artificial light as under daylight.

Giving the lighting problem sufficient attention also increases the value of the store from a sales standpoint. Parts of the shop that have not been useful in selling can be improved by lighting them in the right way. The light must be sufficiently bright and the color must be the right tone to bring out the good features of the stock displayed.

There are several methods by which the color values may be changed at little expense. First, however, it will be necessary to have the installation made with a view of making these changes. A good type of installation for this purpose consists of large white glass bowls with a density no greater than is necessary to prevent seeing the light itself through the bowl. The tints desired are secured either by using bulbs that have been dipped in a coloring fluid, colored caps over the lights, or colored screens inside the bowls. If colored screens are used, all that is necessary to get a different color is to change the screens. If the caps are used, the caps are changed, and if dipped lamps are used, they are either cleaned and redipped or new lamps are dipped and used.

As has already been indicated, the amount of color in the light that will give the best results depends to a considerable extent upon the brilliancy of the light used. If the artificial light is as brilliant as daylight, then it would be advisable to use a light closely approximating daylight in its tone. As the brilliancy of the light is reduced, in order to bring out the colors of the goods displayed, it is necessary to have the light proportionately approach the color of the goods displayed.

In Window.

This is in accordance with the theory that the less light there is, the less will be reflected. To get the contrasts provided by daylight, it is necessary to help out by means of the color of the light used. In the show window this may be carried much farther than in the store. Window lighting is used solely to bring out the good points of the stock displayed, but the store lighting must serve the purpose of lighting the way for the customers as well. Therefore, store lighting cannot be colored to the same extent as window lighting. However, store lighting can be tinted to a certain extent. If dipped lamps or colored caps are used, it may be found better to use them in alternate fixtures, rather than in every fixture, in order to prevent giving too much color. If colored screens are used, it will not be difficult to get those of the right density for the desired results.

There, however, is one point that must be considered. When a screen or any other method is used to change the color of the light, it also serves to reduce the amount of light. It does so because it changes the color of the light merely by subduing a part of the rays. The greater the extent that the color of the light is changed, the less light there is left to use. For this reason, when the color of the light is changed it will be necessary to use larger lights or more of them in order to secure the same brilliancy. However, since it is rarely necessary to change the color of the lights throughout the store, the increased cost of the lighting is more than offset by the increase in sales that results from making the goods appear more attractive.

Mammoth Zinnia Measures Six Inches.

KNULL AT FLORIDA FAIR.

As a matter of advertising, the Knull Floral Co., Tampa, Fla., gives praise to its exhibit at the South Florida fair, held in that city last month. Evidently as a matter of display, patrons gave it praise also. The attendance was many thousands, and the exhibits came from as far away as Mexico and Canada, as well as from Florida counties. The exhibit of the Knull Floral Co. was composed of foliage and blooming plants, some of them in urns and lawn vases ready to decorate Florida residence grounds. The company's landscape service was featured, as well as its flower department.

FRASER'S NEW ZINNIAS.

The wonderful improvements made in zinnias in recent years cannot be better exemplified than in the superb strains being offered by R. G. Fraser & Son, of Pasadena, Cal. For many years Mr. Fraser, Sr., has been in charge of the famous Busch gardens and has had to obtain the finest and rarest types of flowers, no matter what their cost. Experimenting and hybridizing led to some wonderful results, but until the last year or two nothing had been done with these in a commercial way. A few packets of seed were sold by local florists as coming from the Busch gardens and taken away as souvenirs of a visit, but when Douglas Fraser joined his father, a year or so ago, they began to spread out commercially, and to sell these novelties to the trade. The zinnia in the illustration is nearly six inches across. This is nothing unusual in this strain. On the firm's experimental grounds hundreds of such flowers in all colors could be gathered, and it is gratifying to note that a fine yield of seed has resulted. Not only are these new zinnias remarkable in size, but they are of exquisite and varied coloring, and every known shade that the zinnia produces is now in the collection. The Fraser zinnias have met with wonderful success in the south, where it is difficult or impossible to grow asters, but only a beginning has been made in the business. Besides the zinnias, there are great numbers of other choice novelties and many old standbys. These are all grown under the careful eye of R. G. Fraser and will be illustrated and described in a new catalogue now being printed by this firm.

WELCOME WORDS.

We all like to be told we are doing our work well. Like this:

In renewing my subscription I wish to say I am well pleased; The Review is the best trade paper in the United States.—C. L. Shell, Georgetown, Tex., February 21, 1921.

As long as readers feel that way about it there will be no trouble to sell the advertising space which makes a good paper possible. Advertisers will write:

It is no trouble to sell when you advertise in The Review.—Mrs. M. Terry, Owings Mills, Md., February 20, 1921.

Review ads are a good investment.—Fred C. Hamberger, Hamburg, N. Y., February 21, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

ONE YEAR'S WORK

CHICAGO'S BIRTHDAY BANQUET.

Allied Florists' Annual Meeting.

Celebrating the completion of one year's work in coöperative advertising, about seventy-five members of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois banqueted at the Hotel Randolph February 28 and were joined later by fifty others in a review of the twelve months' achievement. Of first importance were the report of officers and the election of directors to succeed the retiring trio. They were all reëlected, Eric Johnson for the wholesalers, A. Lange for the retailers and Peter Pearson for the growers. Great interest was manifested in the showing on the screen of the advertising and reader publicity secured by the association in the past year.

Subsequently there was a discussion of the association's aims and policies that was enlightening to those present. Joseph Kohout brought out the fact, by inquiry of the secretary, that the growers were contributing the larger amount toward the campaign under the assessment plan. In this connection Joseph Pollworth urged that the wholesalers be furnished correct and up-to-date lists of members. A plan to accomplish this has already been begun. Walter Amling, up from Pana for the meeting, urged using the same method to get members as is used to get business, namely, advertising. Peter Pearson, in a spirited speech, described the benefits members were deriving and could derive. C. Clemenson related the objections raised by retailers who were not members.

Decide on Membership Drive.

It was finally decided to launch a membership drive, such as was conducted a year ago, in an effort to bring the list of retailers to 100 per cent. The plans for the drive were left with the board of directors.

August Poehlmann related incidents in regard to the success of advertising in other lines of business in order to show the possibilities before florists. Having contributed $3,500 to $4,000 to the campaign in the twelve months just past, he believed the investment a paying one.

Before adjourning, the meeting passed a vote of thanks to the board of directors for its hard work during the past year and commended the secretary for his efforts. A vote of thanks was given Paul Weiss for the splendid vases of Premier from the Premier Rose Gardens which decorated the tables.

The chairman, upon motion, appointed the following auditing committee: H. N. Bruns, chairman; H. B. Kennicott, C. Clemenson, W. J. Keimel and Leonard Geiger.

Secretary Tells Story.

The story of the year's work was told by the secretary in his report. Treasurer W. J. Smyth's report was the same as that given by the secretary's figures as to receipts and disbursements. Mr. Swenson said:

"It is just a year since the Allied Florists' Association had its beginning. The average member probably does not realize the extent of the association's progress in this brief time, nor does he comprehend the extensive activity carried on by the association. This report will give you some idea of the splendid progress and what has been accomplished.

"March 2, a year ago, the records show that we had a membership of 342 wholesalers, retailers and growers. Today the association has 450 members, represented by signed application, showing a healthy increase of ninety members. Of this number no resignations have been reported from wholesale or grower members; seventeen resignations have been reported from retailers.

Every Florist

Has hit upon Ideas that have made Money for Him. The Spread of such Ideas through the Trade makes Progress.

The Florists' Review

Is the medium for spreading those money-making ideas. Tell the trade about yours. Contributions on any subject relating to the trade are always welcomed by the Editor.

The way they are written is not so important as the ideas they convey. Write as you would talk.

RECEIPTS.
Cash received	$29,455.99
Loan from bank	5,000.00
Total	$34,455.99
DISBURSEMENTS.
Advertising	$25,682.87
Executive salary, secretary and assistant	1,464.11
Field man	515.24
General expense: Office supplies, petty cash	1,974.32
Interest on loan, stationery, etc.	187.22
Paid on note	4,000.00
Total	$33,823.76

"Cash on hand amounts to $632.23. It should be added that the collections shown here, $29,455.99, do not represent the entire twelve months. There is still due some money from the plant growers from December. All the receipts for January have not come in, and those for February, of course, are not due. About $5,000, therefore, should be added to the present figures of cash receipts to indicate the year's total, which will be about $35,000.

Directors' Work.

"I feel it a personal duty to acquaint the members of the association with the facts regarding the splendid spirit of your board of directors in conducting the affairs of the association. There have been nineteen specially called meetings of the board of directors during the year and six informal meetings. Practically every meeting has been attended by a full representation of the directors. They have spent hours, sometimes staying away into the night at these meetings. The volume of business they have transacted at each of these meetings would be a credit to their own individual business, and the fidelity with which they have safeguarded your money and interests is worthy of highest commendation. At the beginning of the season, they personally loaned $5,000 to the association in order that it should have a working capital.

Advertising.

"Forty-two different kinds of newspaper ads were run by the association during the fiscal year. As these ads appeared in from two to six papers, that means that 155 distinct ads have appeared in the daily papers during the year as follows:

	Advertisements	Total Circulation
Tribune	34	14,280,000
Daily News	28	11,200,000
American	28	11,368,000
Herald and Examiner	21	7,350,000
Journal	19	2,204,000
Post	19	1,007,000
Miscellaneous media	6	400,000

"The total circulation of the ads run by the association has reached a number of people equal to almost one-half of the population of the United States. In addition to the newspaper advertising, the association has secured extensive publicity through news matter which has appeared from time to time. The association has recently purchased illuminating billboard sites, one of which is already showing on Michigan boulevard just south of Chicago avenue. Another will appear shortly on Jackson boulevard. All this advertising has stimulated business materially and aided in diminishing gluts. The first advertising of the association told the public flowers were plentiful again and brought back many flower buyers who had stayed away because of high prices caused by scarcity.

Special Days.

"The Memorial day drive revived the business for that day, which, as you know, had been gradually falling off each year. In spite of business depression in other lines, the opportune advertising for New Year's day and St. Valentine's day made business for both of these days exceptionally good. Every retailer interviewed by the secretary reports gains over last year. One reports an increase of $1,100 on one day's sales for St. Valentine's day. Retailers in the outlying districts, whom I especially investigated, tell me they show a noticeable steady business in flowers for birthdays and anniversaries over past years. They inform me that people often refer to the advertising and the familiar reminder we have been using steadily, 'Whose Birthday Comes this Month?'

"The Allied Florists' Association has received more reading matter write-ups in the papers during the past year than any other industry in Chicago. Would the flower business receive this publicity if its branches were not organized? The chances are the only publicity you would have received would have been that put out by Anna Jarvis last Mothers' day, which was very detrimental, and the papers would have printed twice as much of that if the Allied Florists' Association had not stopped it. All the newspaper write-ups that we have received have been secured directly or indirectly through the Allied Florists' Association. Ella Grant Wilson, whose wonderful articles on flowers have been appearing steadily in the papers, is employed on a yearly contract by the Allied Florists' Association. Her articles have a value that cannot be estimated, for they treat of the care of flowers and the use of flowers in the home and everywhere. It's education, pure and simple, and the kind that gets under the skin of the public in a way that would be impossible through paid newspaper advertising.

"Another example of good free publicity was last Memorial day, when the Allied Florists' Association joined hands with the Tribune Memorial day fund for decorating the graves of soldiers in France. This activity centered interest in Memorial day for a whole month previously and aroused sentiment as never before, just the thing we wanted. Our big newspaper ads a few days before Memorial day did the rest, cashed in on the sentiment.

"Say It with Flowers" Week.

"'Say It with Flowers' week gave us the record in free publicity. In the office of the association we have sixty-five distinct newspaper clippings, from this week alone. The total space, if figured on an advertising basis, would have cost approximately $15,000. The giving of flowers to hospitals, soldiers and sailors and coöperation with the Red Cross and other organizations gave us further publicity which is impossible to estimate. Moving pictures were taken during 'Say It with Flowers' week by Pathe and the International Film Service, which were shown not only in the city, but all over the United States.

"The publicity campaign of the Allied Florists' Association and its other activities has benefited the flower business in a decided degree. Everybody in Chicago appreciates the slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' now. You have stamped it on the minds of the majority of the whole city's population.

"The success of the Allied Florists' Association campaign has not been just fair; it has been phenomenal. Do you realize that during the last few months practically every line of business has fallen off ten to fifty per cent, yet the flower business has kept up to normal and then some? Do you know that during the month of January, according to the records of Dr. Robertson, of the city health department, there were fifty-eight per cent fewer deaths in Chicago compared with a year ago, which means less funeral work, and in spite of the fact that flowers are lower in price than last year, the flower business still keeps up to normal and with many runs 'way ahead of last year."

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

Spring Activities.

Continued warm days are causing people to think of gardening. Northrup, King & Co. have put their package seed boxes in the department and grocery stores and report good returns already. Florists have much of their early seed sown and are taking cuttings of dahlias, roses, carnations and chrysanthemums for stock and bedding plants. Cannas have gone into sand or sawdust on the benches. Space is being cleared so that stock may be spread on the benches more. Sales were fair for Washington's birthday, but not so good as a year ago. All are busy with Easter stock and some fine roses, lilies and hydrangeas are in prospect.

Brand on Peonies.

A. M. Brand and J. E. Stryker addressed nearly 100 members of the Ramsey County Men's Garden Club, February 24, at its monthly banquet, held at the Railroad building restaurant, St. Paul. Mr. Brand began the growing of peony seedlings about twenty years ago, although his father, the late O. F. Brand, began this work nearly fifty years ago, and at one time had over 1,000 varieties of the best peonies grown. Mr. Brand said that his firm had grown between 800,000 and 1,000,000 seedlings to get the fifty or so really good varieties which it has put on the market. The Brand peonies have been prize-winners at all the recent shows and Mr. Brand has probably brought out more good new varieties than any other one man. Mr. Brand gave a short history of peonies, naming many of the best introductions of American and foreign growers. The club voted Mr. Brand a life membership.

The State Horticultural Society at its last meeting recognized Mr. Brand's work by voting him a life membership, also. The Ramsey County Garden Club will have its open meeting at the Auditorium early in April. This meeting is usually attended by from 3 000 to 6,000 people and gives a great impetus to gardening and flower growing.

Various Notes.

C. D. Kinsman, of Austin, Minn., is grafting a nice lot of roses for next season.

Hans Rosacker has been busy getting up bedding stock and making rose cuttings.

Superintendent and Mrs. Wirth visited Council Bluffs, Ia., Omaha, Neb., and Denver, Colo., February 21 and 24. Mr. Wirth was scheduled to give talks there on park matters.

Bulbs are plentiful, but are selling at prices that do not pay the actual cost of growing. The best have been selling at $4 and $5 per hundred wholesale. The Merriam Park Floral Co. and Holm & Olson have some fine roses and hydrangeas coming on for Easter. The Merriam Park Floral Co. has a fine lot of bulbous stock and forget-me-nots to cut.

C.

Moline, Ill.—E. M. Stephenson entered the trade as a grower of plants and cut flowers. His specialty is asters.

Lansing, Mich.—L. W. Hoisington & Son is the name of a new firm in this city. They are growers of gladioli.

Niles, Mich.—M. S. Peters has recently completed a greenhouse, which he intends to stock with bedding plants.

SIM'S WAY WITH SOIL

CARNATIONS AT CLIFTONDALE.

Boston Florists Examine Sim's Methods.

When the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston held its first field day of the year at William Sim's, Cliftondale, Mass., February 19, some sixty growers from leading commercial and private establishments were able to examine the unusual methods by which he has obtained marked success in growing carnations this season.

Mr. Sim has been located at Cliftondale for over twenty years and has earned a national reputation for the various crops he has grown. He was the first grower to plant violets in big modern houses and at one time grew 200 000 Princess of Wales of grand quality in houses and frames. Still later sweet peas of marvelous quality were produced, which created a sensation at a number of exhibitions. At the Philadelphia national show, Mr. Sim's polyanthus was one of the features of the show, just as his mammoth pansies, which were awarded a gold medal, riveted attention at New York. Gladioli were at one time featured and, until the advent of the corn borer, some 40,000 hills of early sweet corn started under glass provided the earliest in the Boston markets. Tomatoes, chiefly Comet, were for years produced by the scores of tons, filling the beds occupied by violets in winter.

Carnations Supplant All Else.

Last year Mr. Sim, owing to labor and other conditions, turned a number of his houses into carnations, and this winter all houses are planted with them, to the exclusion of all other crops. Of special interest to flower growers are the facts that Mr. Sim has never sterilized any of his soil, that all plants are on solid beds containing two feet or more of loam with excellent drainage below, that the soil has never been changed even in the oldest houses, although continuously cropped for eighteen or twenty years in some cases. The soil is deeply forked and liberally manured before each crop is planted. All the larger houses are equipped with the Skinner watering system and are also piped with faucet connections for spraying under high pressure with nicotine to keep the plants clean through the summer months.

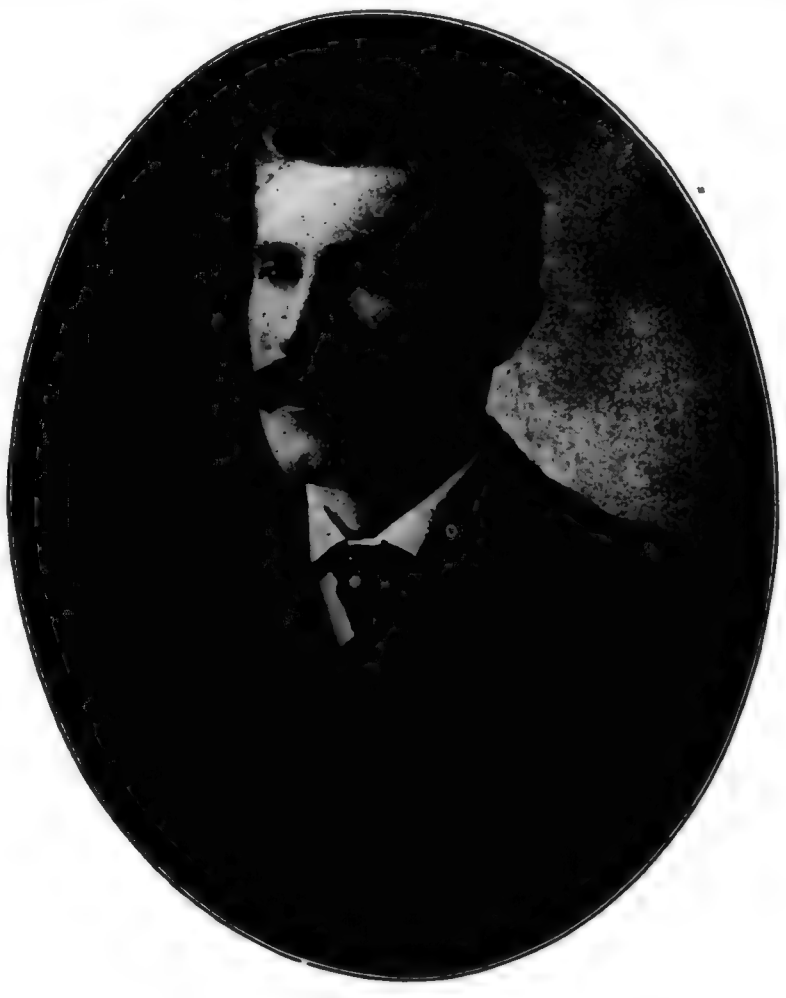
Never Changes Soil.

It is truly remarkable to see house after house of wonderful carnations and to think that for years these same houses have never had a change of soil after growing crops of chrysanthemums, roses, sweet peas, violets, tomatoes, polyanthus, pansies and auriculas. Early planting is practiced here and the first houses are completed before Memorial day; the last in July. Stock for the earlier houses never goes outdoors. No flats or pots are used for young stock. From the cutting houses they go into solid beds, spaced 4x4 inches. From here they go into their permanent quarters in other houses or outdoors for a time. For the later-planted stock, when outside, the sprinkler system is used to keep the plants growing steadily. In one large house 68,000 young plants were to be seen and Mr. Sim remarked that he would propagate about four times that number. Of these about 200,000 would be for his own planting. The remainder would be sold.

A variety of types of houses are used, from those forty to sixty feet wide to the older and narrower type in vogue two decades ago. It was remarked by many that the plants in the old houses were equal in quality to those in the big, wide, modern houses. The paths in the houses are some fifteen inches wide, but plants are not set close to the edge boards. Practically all disbudding is done by one woman. On Laddie one or two side buds are left. Customers prefer this variety branched in this way and leaving the buds on helps to prevent bursting.

Varieties Grown.

Of the 200,000 plants grown at Cliftondale, some 40,000 are white. Of these three varieties are grown, Matchless, White Benora and White Delight. The last named seemed to be more vigorous than Pink Delight and produces cuttings more freely. Of some 35,000 cuttings put in, about 500 failed to root. White Delight Mr. Sim finds to be an earlier and more persistent bloomer than Matchless, when the latter comes at its best. Plants here are being thrown out in getting ready for the new plantings. White Benora is fine, but not free enough.



Of Laddie some 15,000 are planted at Cliftondale and they are extremely fine. In early fall there is considerable splitting, but now few splits are to be seen. For a big, fancy type, this is a remarkably free bloomer. Pink Delight is heavily grown. Enchantress Supreme will be dropped; it will not sell in competition with Pink Delight. Morning Glow is well liked and is a wonderful producer, although somewhat small. Mr. Sim has good expectations of a cross between Laddie and Morning Glow. Ruth Baur will be dropped.

Pinks and Scarlets.

Mrs. C. W. Ward is really the only medium pink and, while it splits a good deal, it is of a popular color and helps to sell other varieties. There are large plantings of both Rosette and Rosalia. For dark pink the first named is much the best here.

Few crimsons are grown, as the demand for these is limited. Of the four scarlets, Aviator is liked much better than any other and is quite free. Belle Washburn has a fine color and produces a fancy flower, but does not produce as freely as Laddie and fewer will be planted next season. The Herald is a steady bloomer, but is too single. Ethel Fisher has proved disappointing. It is now coming bull-headed and will be dropped. Plantings of scarlets will be much cut down the coming season. Such varieties as Rosette and Rosalia sell far better than scarlets.

Benora is still the best variegated, but considerable batches of Gay Gordon and Fairy, two Cliftondale seedlings, were

"The Allied Florists' Association has received more reading matter write-ups in the papers during the past year than any other industry in Chicago. Would the flower business receive this publicity if its branches were not organized? The chances are the only publicity you would have received would have been that put out by Anna Jarvis last Mothers' day, which was very detrimental, and the papers would have printed twice as much of that if the Allied Florists' Association had not stopped it. All the newspaper write-ups that we have received have been secured directly or indirectly through the Allied Florists' Association. Ella Grant Wilson, whose wonderful articles on flowers have been appearing steadily in the papers, is employed on a yearly contract by the Allied Florists' Association. Her articles have a value that cannot be estimated, for they treat of the care of flowers and the use of flowers in the home and everywhere. It's education, pure and simple, and the kind that gets under the skin of the public in a way that would be impossible through paid newspaper advertising.

"Another example of good free publicity was last Memorial day, when the Allied Florists' Association joined hands with the Tribune Memorial day fund for decorating the graves of soldiers in France. This activity centered interest in Memorial day for a whole month previously and aroused sentiment as never before, just the thing we wanted. Our big newspaper ads a few days before Memorial day did the rest, cashed in on the sentiment.

"Say It with Flowers" Week.

"'Say It with Flowers' week gave us the record in free publicity. In the office of the association we have sixty-five distinct newspaper clippings, from this week alone. The total space, if figured on an advertising basis, would have cost approximately $15,000. The giving of flowers to hospitals, soldiers and sailors and coöperation with the Red Cross and other organizations gave us further publicity which is impossible to estimate. Moving pictures were taken during 'Say It with Flowers' week by Pathe and the International Film Service, which were shown not only in the city, but all over the United States.

"The publicity campaign of the Allied Florists' Association and its other activities has benefited the flower business in a decided degree. Everybody in Chicago appreciates the slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' now. You have stamped it on the minds of the majority of the whole city's population.

"The success of the Allied Florists' Association campaign has not been just fair; it has been phenomenal. Do you realize that during the last few months practically every line of business has fallen off ten to fifty per cent, yet the flower business has kept up to normal and then some? Do you know that during the month of January, according to the records of Dr. Robertson, of the city health department, there were fifty-eight per cent fewer deaths in Chicago compared with a year ago, which means less funeral work, and in spite of the fact that flowers are lower in price than last year, the flower business still keeps up to normal and with many runs 'way ahead of last year."

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

Spring Activities.

Continued warm days are causing people to think of gardening. Northrup, King & Co. have put their package seed boxes in the department and grocery stores and report good returns already. Florists have much of their early seed sown and are taking cuttings of dahlias, roses, carnations and chrysanthemums for stock and bedding plants. Cannas have gone into sand or sawdust on the benches. Space is being cleared so that stock may be spread on the benches more. Sales were fair for Washington's birthday, but not so good as a year ago. All are busy with Easter stock and some fine roses, lilies and hydrangeas are in prospect.

Brand on Peonies.

A. M. Brand and J. E. Stryker addressed nearly 100 members of the Ramsey County Men's Garden Club, February 24, at its monthly banquet, held at the Railroad building restaurant, St. Paul. Mr. Brand began the growing of peony seedlings about twenty years ago, although his father, the late O. F. Brand, began this work nearly fifty years ago, and at one time had over 1,000 varieties of the best peonies grown. Mr. Brand said that his firm had grown between 800,000 and 1,000,000 seedlings to get the fifty or so really good varieties which it has put on the market. The Brand peonies have been prize-winners at all the recent shows and Mr. Brand has probably brought out more good new varieties than any other one man. Mr. Brand gave a short history of peonies, naming many of the best introductions of American and foreign growers. The club voted Mr. Brand a life membership.

The State Horticultural Society at its last meeting recognized Mr. Brand's work by voting him a life membership, also. The Ramsey County Garden Club will have its open meeting at the Auditorium early in April. This meeting is usually attended by from 3 000 to 6,000 people and gives a great impetus to gardening and flower growing.

Various Notes.

C. D. Kinsman, of Austin, Minn., is grafting a nice lot of roses for next season.

Hans Rosacker has been busy getting up bedding stock and making rose cuttings.

Superintendent and Mrs. Wirth visited Council Bluffs, Ia., Omaha, Neb., and Denver, Colo., February 21 and 24. Mr. Wirth was scheduled to give talks there on park matters.

Bulbs are plentiful, but are selling at prices that do not pay the actual cost of growing. The best have been selling at $4 and $5 per hundred wholesale. The Merriam Park Floral Co. and Holm & Olson have some fine roses and hydrangeas coming on for Easter. The Merriam Park Floral Co. has a fine lot of bulbous stock and forget-me-nots to cut.

The outing was a pleasant one, weather conditions being as nearly perfect as possible.

IN THE SUNNY SOUTH.

[Robert Q. Shoch returned to Philadelphia the last week in February from an extended trip through the south and southwest. Mr. Shoch described a few of the things he had seen so entertainingly that they are given here in his own words with the hope that you will add in fancy the happy, boyish manner and jolly laugh that lent charm to the recital.—Phil.]

Here is a little picture I have brought. This is James McCallum, store manager for Scholtz the Florist, of Charlotte, N. C. This is his son, James McCallum, Jr., and your humble servant. Mr. McCallum is the son-in-law of Mr. Scholtz. Mr. Scholtz's son manages the greenhouses.

The south is producing more flowers now than formerly. I think this will encourage business. The south draws on the north for a lot of fine stock, but it is an advantage to have a lot of good stock of their growing, too.

Savannah is a splendid flower town. There are three large growing establishments there: John Wolf's, where many fine flowers are grown; Oelschig & Sons, which was entirely rebuilt last season, and William Richardson's.

Thomas Joy, who trades as the Joy Floral Co., is a hustling business man. He has just put up a new range of 150,000 square feet of glass all at once. The Joy Floral Co. has three stores now; the main store, at Nashville, Tenn., and branches at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Joy manages the Nashville store himself. He has most competent assistants. Mrs. Goetz, who manages the Chattanooga store, is one of the best business women I have ever met.

I have been as far southwest as Oklahoma City on this trip. By the way, I saw something interesting at Kansas City. What would you think of a flower store away off by itself? Suppose a store here were dropped down on the Roosevelt boulevard at Bustleton pike! There is such a store out there at the corner of two highways; not a house anywhere near, only a gasoline filling station and a flower store. When I went in I said, "Where are the people?" It was explained that the finest residential district of the city, two squares away, was reached by a back track and there were the motors. It is a beautifully appointed store, Chandler's, built last fall. It is semicircular in shape, thoroughly equipped and is owned and operated by a nursery firm which has greenhouses there, too. They grow their nursery stock, Easter and bedding plants and depend on the wholesale market of the city for their cut flowers. I was there about 11 o'clock and lots of customers came in and bought flowers while I was there.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

In spite of all predictions to the contrary, cut stock is still scarce. The absence of roses was noticeable St. Valentine's day. There are more carnations, but not enough to meet the demand. Sweet peas and violets are fairly abundant. Bulbous stock is arriving in large quantities now. The indications are that there will be a fair supply of high-grade lilies for Easter.

TORONTO, ONT.

Judging by the cheap sales of flowers being carried on by some stores at Toronto, there is some difference in the prices being asked by the different growers. It is felt that there should be a little more coöperation between the growers and the retailers in the handling of stock at low prices and all the florists should have an opportunity of buying at the low prices when there is an oversupply in any line.

At Winnipeg the growers and retailers have formed a joint association and it might be a good idea for the Toronto Retail Florists' Association to discuss asking the growers to join with them.

The cold weather and Lent had their effect in curtailing the sale of flowers last week and this probably accounts for the accumulation of stock in certain lines. There has been a good supply of bulbous stock, almost an oversupply, and roses are coming in now in quantity and of fine quality.

The Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association will meet in Peterborough, Ont., August 9 to 11. A meeting of the executive committee was held at that place Monday, February 21, when a list of probable speakers was made up and other arrangements were discussed. The Retail Florists' Association asked for a section as provided for by the new constitution and the request was granted. The usual exhibition will be held in connection with the convention.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

The first part of last week business was dull and stock dragged a little on the market. Friday and Saturday, however, the demand was brisk and everything was well cleaned up.

Roses are more plentiful. Prices have changed to no noticeable degree. Sweet peas continue to be scarce. Those available are short-stemmed. A good many freesias are on the market, but these, too, are short-stemmed. These sell at from $3 to $5 per hundred.

Calla lilies are plentiful and sell at $2 and $2.50 per dozen. These have been in good demand.

Daffodils, jonquils and Paper Whites are in evidence. The market on the Paper Whites has been none too brisk. However, the daffodils sell well at $6 to $8 per hundred.

Indications seem to point to a meager Easter supply. Of course, the weather is the leading factor and if it continues favorable there may be a larger supply than is at present expected.

TIME FOR ACTION

FLORISTS, WAKE UP!

Conditions Are Changed.

We have been having during the past few years a success in the floral kingdom, causing us to act as though it were a natural condition, in spite of the fact that not many years ago florists throughout this broad land of ours had to plow hard to get by. It isn't so long ago that with the rank and file in our business it was some task to meet the coal bills when even long overdue, let alone to pay them promptly, as is now the case. It isn't long ago that with the grower it was early and late in the greenhouse, and not eight or nine hours a day as at present. Nor was it so long ago that a majority of the growers could tell whether they were on the profit or loss side of the ledger. But at present conditions are different.

Almost everybody these days comes to town in their automobiles (plural) and also have their business in such shape as to enable them to know what crops and varieties pay them the best, which to eliminate and which to develop, and in the main are enjoying much deserved success. Some change from former years as we look back! Thank God for that! We all appreciate that nothing succeeds like success, but we must also plan for the rainy day. Many lines of business that were most successful during and after the war period have lately felt the reverse condition to the extent that they have been almost wiped out, such as wool, leather, cotton, shoes, etc. But the florists have not realized that they stand on the crest at this time and that we have passed the pivotal point of our unusual progress. We must now check ourselves up and find out what the future holds for us.

Function of Advertising.

To the man who is planning ahead, whether he be grower or retailer, there is a desire to help continue to progress and he knows that in order to continue his prosperity he must make allowance for continued advertising to help create sales and build good will, and that the essential means to bring this about is to expend a part of his annual sales to help keep the ball a-rolling.

Many of the florists who were alert to the needs of advertising and felt the effects of good times were glad to put a part of their earnings into a national campaign fund, just to help it along, much like dropping a nickel into a blind man's hat—it might do some good, and if it didn't, it didn't cost much anyway. That is the way some entered into the spirit of our national campaign. Others, however, took a more serious attitude and gave liberally, were interested in its work and undoubtedly reaped the benefits by tying up to the campaign locally or otherwise.

Stanch Supporters.

Now we come to the point. The advertising that the florists have been doing, whether local or national, has helped materially in point of sales and also to arouse many to the needs of advertising. Many have overlooked the fact that it must be carried on continuously to be of real benefit, and that if we lie down at this time it means getting back to the old conditions of years ago.

There are, however, too many men in the craft who have felt its pulse and who wish to continue further the work laid out by the national publicity committee, who are seriously and intensely interested, referring, of course, to the men behind the National Flower Growers' Association and those interested in the allied florists' trade associations. These men have seen the light and are doing a big and unselfish job trying to make others see the need of a continuance of the work, and unless we all follow in line we shall fall back to former conditions. We have made progress; let us continue.

Answer Is Advertising.

The growers are realizing the good of national publicity as well as local advertising, but the craft generally has not awakened to the fact that business is slipping back, and unless we fill up the coffers of the campaign fund, the florists' business is going to go back as well as all other lines. In many sections it is quite noticeable already and many are asking, "How can I increase my volume?" One of the answers is, advertise locally, and the other is to see that the national campaign gets a-going before we lose the advantages of our previous ads in the national magazines.

Advertising is a sales insurance. It helps speed up. It makes us speed up and helps us to climb higher. As Albert E. Lyons so well expressed it, "The higher you go the more room you will find. The space below is crowded and many a man is mistaking lack of ability for lack of opportunity. You will be sure to find the opportunity when you are able to grasp it. Nobody is monopolizing that vast field of opportunity just over the heads of the crowd—it is open to all comers—it is waiting to be occupied. The way is clear. Climb high."

Let's Climb.

Doesn't it make you think that, after all, we started something towards the higher-up idea and that we should continue? Well, the growers have begun to do things. May they succeed to the fullest extent! The coöperative movements have also started. May they, too, continue to further success to the end that all may see the needs and the good that applied advertising will do to help more people enjoy more flowers. And those directly interested will get better results generally.

Henry O. Havemeyer once said, "Business men fail because there are a lot of them who are fools. We are all born fools, but some of us educate ourselves out of it." Let us take example by looking at other lines of business and why they have succeeded, then ask ourselves what we have omitted that they have continued, and your answer will explain the problem.

Henry Penn, Chairman,
National Publicity Committee.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Glad you admire it," commented George Murchie, of the John Murchie Sons Co., Sharon, Pa. "Our landlord was also favorably impressed with the improvements made in the store and showed his appreciation by boosting the rent sixty-six per cent. While it may seem hard, as seen from one angle, yet looking at the matter from another viewpoint it represents appreciative value, as demonstrated by us to our patrons almost every day, so much so that our business will rest on a higher plane when others drop." Demand was never better. Edward Murchie is sending in fine stock from the Middlesex place. John Murchie has the home range under personal supervision, and arranges matters to be able to hie himself away to Pinehurst, N. C., for his annual game of golf.

• • • •

John B. Rudy, Elmira, N. Y., is much pleased with a batch of Lilium Harrisii. They are looking fine for Easter. Anticipating the usual large spring plant demand, a good stock is being prepared.

• • • •

Dana R. Herron, of Olean, N. Y., was a visitor at Hornell in the interest of an oil corporation, of which he is president; in fact, so affluent as to earn the title of "oil king." Incidentally Mr. Herron mentioned that his spring bedding plants were in fine shape and the outlook for their disposal was never better. Carnations and roses cropping for Easter are highly promising.

"After eighty years on this terrestrial sphere, forty-eight of which have been spent on this spot," observed J. W. Blakely, Elizabeth, N. J., "you may quote me as being thoroughly convinced as to the future of our profession, in which my life has been spent with an abundance of pleasure and profit."

• • • •

A. H. Woeppel, Corning, N. Y., finds the long period of dull weather has affected the usual fine crops of roses and carnations at this time, but blooming plants are in fine shape and the Easter supply, aided by the Holland bulbs, is expected to meet all demands.

• • • •

The Hoffman Greenhouses, Elmira, N. Y., specializing in carnations, with only one house of roses, for the first time in many seasons are not up to the usual high standard of production. For this condition the weather and the houses are blamed. New houses will be built, but weather conditions cannot be changed. However, as H. W. Hoffman observed, "the experience gained during the several years while in the mayor's chair convinces me that the newer the material, usually, the better the results." W. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

There was an abundance of flowers in the market last week and a wide choice of varieties. Prices were lower on a number of varieties than they have been. Violets, mignonette, carnations, sweet peas, roses, tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, jonquils and many other blooms greet the prospective purchasers. The quality of stock now coming into the market is excellent. It looks as if there would be a large Easter trade.

Various Notes.

Henry Hornecker, Central avenue and Grove street, East Orange, near the Newark line, will shortly tear down the show house connected with his greenhouses, a short distance from his store, and will erect a new show house. The present building was erected more than fifty years ago.

F. A. Kuehn, 621 Central avenue, was surprised by the volume of his St. Valentine's day trade. All his fancy specials were sold out and there was a large sale of cut flowers. It was the best St. Valentine's day for several years, he reported.

A. C. Begerow, 946 Broad street, had a special window display for Washington's birthday anniversary. In the center of the window was a bust of Washington, around which was draped an American flag. Plants and flowers were massed back of this. R. B. M.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

There was not much change in conditions at this market during the last week, save that roses are not so plentiful as they were. They are now cleaning up from day to day, especially the short grades.

Bulbous stock continues to come and is moving only fairly well. Hyacinths and freesias seem to be more abundant than some of the other bulbous stock and, therefore, bring less money. Other bulbous flowers, such as tulips and daffodils, clean up as fast as they arrive.

Sweet peas are now arriving in larger quantities and are going well. The most common varieties are Blanche Ferry, Margaret Atlee and Yarrawa.

Lilies, both calla and Easter, are to be had at a reasonable figure now, owing to the fact that they are arriving in greater abundance than any other time this season.

Carnations, as usual, are holding their own; that is, the good ones. Miscellaneous stock, including calendulas, primulas, forget-me-nots and snapdragons, are well in demand and also in abundance. Green goods move well.

Various Notes.

Julius Baer deserves special mention on his window displays lately. He reports a good week on funeral work.

P. J. Olinger has been cutting some exceptionally fine sweet peas, some of the best that have been seen around this market for some time.

H. W. Sheppard reports a record week in corsages and plant sales, the latter being better than any time since Christmas.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving some choice freesias from Charles Windram, of Cold Springs, Ky., and some fancy peas from Frank Schumann, of Delhi, O.

Fred Gear reports business on upper Vine street not so good as last week, but still enough to keep going. The monthly bowling party between the wholesalers and retailers was held at Good's alleys, on Price Hill, February 24, with the score about even. Those participating were, wholesalers: Edward Bossmeyer, Edward Buschle, Lee Kessen, Charles Phipps, Ray Murphy, Lee Witter, George Scheperling, Frank Friedman, Edward Cavannaugh and Charles Murphy. The retailers were

John M. Good.

George Durban, Sr., and George Durban, Jr., Richard Phipps, Michael Hanks, Joseph Durban, Raymond Lindsay, Edward Huesman, Arthur Becker and James Zimmer.

Miss Cunningham, bookkeeper at H. W. Sheppard's, had the misfortune of losing her mother by death last week, following a short illness. Further details of Mrs. Cunningham's death appear in the obituary column of this issue.

The William Murphy Co. has been receiving some excellent mignonette from Louis Murphy, of Price Hill, and also some exceptional roses from Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind.

Gus Adrian has been sending some good bulbous stock to this market.

Visitors to this city recently were R. E. Blackshaw, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind.; Morris H. Levine, of the M. H. Levine Co., New York, and Walter J. Gray, Jr., of Hamilton, O.

T. Ben George, of Walnut Hills, has been doing a brisk business in funeral work during the last week. G. H. K.

Orland P. Bassett.

Orland P. Bassett, a pioneer rose grower and one of the first florists to manage greenhouses successfully on a large scale, died February 27, at his home in Pasadena, Cal., following a long illness. Mr. Bassett was 86 years of age and had lived in California since 1907, when he retired from the firm of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, yielding the management of the concern to Charles L. Washburn, his son-in-law, with whom he had been engaged in business since 1893 and who in 1907 became the sole owner. His son, E. B. Washburn, also a resident of Pasadena, now is associated with him.

Born in a small town in western Pennsylvania in 1835, when but a boy Mr. Bassett went to work for a printer. It was not long before he started a newspaper in Sycamore, Ill., but in the early eighties he moved to Chicago, where he started the Pictorial Printing Co., manufacturing druggists' labels. Mr. Bassett retained the presidency of this company, now located at Aurora, Ill., until 1916, when he sold his interest for about $150,000.

It was March 1, 1887, when Mr. Bassett entered the greenhouse business at Hinsdale, Ill., where he had purchased a residence and twenty acres of ground. It was here he built his first greenhouse. The following year he added four; in fact, year after year he added to the range until, at the time of his retirement, he was regarded as one of the most prominent growers in the west. At the start of the business Andrew Benson, now superintendent of the Bassett & Washburn establishment, was employed as florist by Mr. Bassett, for whom he previously had worked in other capacities.

Mr. Bassett was always aggressive. His aggressiveness, in fact, won him the name of being the pioneer rose grower of the west. In 1888 he introduced the American Beauty in the west and met with marked success. To his pioneering is credited the fame of Chicago as for many years the world's great American Beauty market. But American Beauties were not the only flowers the pioneer grew. Soon he began the cultivation of many other roses, always looking for varieties that would ship well. And he always found something noteworthy, for Mr. Bassett was a remarkably successful rose grower. It was not long before he gained recognition throughout the trade and his establishment was visited by aspiring florists from all over the country.

Mr. Bassett always plunged into his enterprises. When he took to growing carnations, he planted Garfield in a whole house, and back in the nineties that venture involved a lot of risk, but he was successful and won for himself the name of being one of the leaders in the trade, not only in growing flowers, but in marketing them. If he grew a product he could not market he always discarded it immediately.

With his retirement from business in 1907, Mr. Bassett left the trade entirely, practicing horticulture only on a small scale on his property in California. Automobiles were his hobby and the last years of his life he spent touring California and the west. In 1895, Mr. Bassett drove through the streets of Chicago with a steam buggy. He used a Packard touring car in his later life. In the years intervening he used many types of cars and was as learned in his avocation as he was in his vocation.

Mr. Bassett leaves no children. His only daughter, who was the wife of C. L. Washburn, died several years ago. E. B. Washburn is the only grandchild, but there are three great-grandchildren. Mr. Bassett leaves a widow, Mrs. Imogene D. Bassett, who is his second wife, married late in life.

The remains have been cremated at Pasadena and Mrs. Bassett will bring the ashes to the old home at Hinsdale for burial in the family plot.

Orland P. Bassett.

Mrs. Albert F. Amling.

Following a long illness with diabetes, Mrs. Albert F. Amling, wife of the widely known rose grower at Maywood, Ill., died February 27. Mrs. Amling was the mother of four florists and was related to many others in the Maywood, Pana and southern California districts. She leaves, besides her devoted husband, five sons. The youngest, Clarence, is studying at a divinity school at St. Louis, but the others all are in the business of growing roses. Ernst recently sold his range of glass at Maywood and removed to California, but he retains his interest with Paul, who is the active manager of the big Des Plaines establishment of Amling Bros. Otto is associated with his father in the Albert F. Amling Co., at Maywood. Walter is in the business in California.

The funeral was held Thursday, March 3, at 1:30 p. m., from the late residence, Fifteenth and North avenue, Maywood, and 2 p. m. from St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Eleventh avenue and Lake street, with interment at Oak Ridge.

John M. Good.

The business of the Good & Reese Co., Springfield, O., will be carried on by Frank E. Good and Harry F. Good, brothers of the late president of the company, John M. Good, whose death was reported in last week's issue of The Review.

At the funeral, held at the residence Friday afternoon, February 18, many florists were present and the room was banked with beautiful floral offerings.

Born in Johnstown, Pa., sixty-seven years ago, Mr. Good went to Springfield in 1877. He became connected with the old C. A. Reese Floral Co., now the George H. Mellen Co., shortly afterwards. Some years later he organized the Good & Reese Co., subsequently acquiring the Reese interests. His Helen Good rose attained a wide reputation. He was also president of the United States Nursery Co., at Roseacres, Miss., and of the Perennial Gardens Co., at Springfield, reputed to have one of the largest acreages of peonies in the country.

Guy E. Marshall.

Guy E. Marshall, 5210 Latham street, Los Angeles, Cal., died February 5, at his residence, at the age of 50 years. Death was due to a hemorrhage, which caused paralysis.

Mr. Marshall had been a grower of asters and gladioli for a number of years and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, the Sunshine Homesteaders and the painters' and decorators' union.

He was a cousin of Vice-president Thomas R. Marshall and a nephew of the noted writer, Gene Stratton Porter. Surviving are his widow, his mother, one sister and two brothers.

The funeral services were held February 8 and were conducted by the Knights of Pythias. Interment was at Inglewood park cemetery.

David W. Brooks.

David W. Brooks, a florist of Westbrook, Conn., was struck and instantly killed by an automobile driven by Mrs. H. M. Balcourt, of Waterbury, Conn., February 16.

Mr. Brooks was walking across the street, returning home after purchasing a paper. The machine was not traveling fast and the signal was sounded, but evidently Mr. Brooks became confused and stepped in the way of the machine. The coroner investigated and exonerated Mrs. Balcourt of blame.

Mr. Brooks was 77 years of age and was well known in Connecticut. At one time he was employed by Mrs. Samuel Colt, at Hartford. Surviving are three sons, James, of Westbrook, George and Herbert, of New Haven, and a daughter, Jennie Brooks, also of New Haven.

Mrs. Mary S. Cunningham.

Mrs. Mary Sullivan Cunningham, wife of the late Richard Cunningham, well known pioneer florist, of Cincinnati, O., died Thursday, February 24. She was 75 years of age.

Mrs. Cunningham was well known around Cincinnati for the active part she took in the business, after the death of her husband in 1908, until she leased the greenhouses to A. J. Horning, who conducted the establishment until a few years ago. She is survived by three daughters and two sons. G. H. K.

J. H. Claus.

The death of J. H. Claus, husband of Mrs. J. H. Claus, of Philadelphia, Pa., occurred suddenly, February 23. The funeral took place February 26. Mrs. Claus has the deep sympathy of the trade. Phil.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

Joseph W. Vestal & Son suffered heavy loss as a result of a cave-in, February 19, caused by the heavy load of snow and ice on the greenhouses. The house which caved in measured 35x200 feet and was filled with roses and chrysanthemums, and, had the weather been colder, a much greater loss would have been suffered. However, it is estimated that $3,000 will cover the damage. The greenhouses were not covered by insurance.

CATCHING COONS.

"I am sending you," writes L. A. Eaton, of L. A. Eaton & Sons, Conneaut, O., "two photographs of myself, my dogs and part of my last season's catch of coons, just to show you that while the florist is a busy man he can get a lot of pleasure hunting coon at night." From the photographs, Mr. Eaton must have spent a good many nights out.

San Antonio, Tex.—Green the Florist has had some clever cards printed to send to his customers, serving to remind them of coming anniversaries, social events and other occasions when flowers are appropriate.

THE florist who put his profits into Liberty bonds last year isn't worrying about how to meet his bills now.

THIS week's Classified section is a record for size for this time of year. Never before were there so many of the little liners at this time.

NEXT week Illinois florists meet at Urbana, March 8, and Michigan florists convene on the same date for a 2-day meeting at Saginaw.

MANY items of florists' supplies are being sold at prices as low as those of 1914, which is the same as saying at the lowest prices ever known.

THE florists haven't taken over Labor day, either, is the comment of Fred H. Lemon, who inquires at the same time what flowers one would recommend for a divorce.

EVERY few days some florist asks The Review if there is any prohibition against his using "Say It with Flowers" on his letterhead. No, Brothers, there is not. Go as far as you like. Indeed, the more the slogan is used before the public the better it is.

SHIPPERS of stock not ordinarily subject to inspection meet frequent difficulties through the diversity of state inspection laws and, repeatedly, through misunderstanding of those laws and various interpretations of them by state inspectors and the agents of transportation companies.

DON'T take someone's word for it that you need not file an income tax return. That excuse would not pay the $1,000 fine imposed on those who should but do not. Single persons having an income of $1,000 or more in 1920 and married ones having one of $2,000 or more must file a return by March 15. Be sure that Uncle Sam will catch you if you don't.

THE United States Civil Service Commission announces open competitive examinations for both men and women for the position of laboratory aid in the bureau of foreign seed and plant introduction and for the position of assistant plant breeder, April 13 and April 5, respectively, at the postoffice buildings in practically every city of consequence in the United States.

THRIFT is more than saving; it is the discernment of proper proportions so that one may know what to spend wisely and what to save.

THE constituency of the Pink Part of The Review changes less than most lists of advertisers. Once there, a florist stays. And more come every week.

COMPARISON, like imitation, is sincerest flattery. If your competitor boasts his business is nearly as large as yours, or seventy-five per cent as large as yours, or something of that sort, you may rest assured you are still setting the pace.

THE practice of trade-marking stock is appealing to growers of the best. Advertising tape to tie the bunches of blooms is one method and a gummed label stuck on the wrapper is another. The latter is used by the Wild Bros. Nursery Co., Sarcoxie, Mo., in sending its peonies to market.

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS."

The codfish lays a million eggs
While the helpful hen lays one,
But the codfish does not cackle
To inform you what she's done.
And so we scorn the codfish coy,
But the helpful hen we prize,
Which indicates to thoughtful minds
It pays to advertise.

The time has passed when florists may rely on buyers seeking them out—it is necessary now and will be hereafter to hunt for buyers. Every florist should support the national advertising campaign, of course, but that isn't direct enough—he should employ methods to attract public attention to his own merchandise and service. Use printers' ink. If you don't know how, get help.

WAGES FOR THE FAMILY.

The prices charged the public in different flower stores and in different communities would not vary so markedly as they do if there were in all cases an adequate idea as to operating costs. When a customer walks into some modest shop on a by-street or in a small town and sees flowers or plants for half or three-quarters the price he paid a few days before in an establishment on the principal avenue of a neighboring city, he might well ask the proprietor, "Why is there so marked a difference? I know your rent is lower and your investment is not so large, but why can you charge so much less for the same sort of stock?" The proprietor would be truthful and accurate if he replied, "I haven't the heavy labor cost that he has. You see, my wife and my son help me when I'm busy; so I don't need to pay a lot of money to hire people."

But the subject shouldn't drop there. Does the proprietor of this small shop pay his wife and his son for what they do? Is there any entry on the books to indicate what their services are worth? Probably not. The proprietor, no doubt, pays his bills and at the end of the month finds that he has made so much money. "He" has not. It took three people to make that money, part of the time if not all the time. Maybe he thought what "he" made was a fair sum. It would be pretty thin if divided into three persons' wages.

Suppose this proprietor received an offer from a business man like this: "I'll pay you so much a month if you will work for me and send your wife over each morning and send your son over every afternoon after school." Would he think that a fair basis of pay? Probably not. Then why should he consider that he himself earned the money left at the end of the month? Let him pay his wife and son what he would want the business man to pay if he sent one over each morning and the other each afternoon. He need not pay them in cash, but he should have an account for each on the books. Then, when he has credited to each, in accordance with the time spent in the store, an amount on the store's books, he will know what he himself has really earned. To provide for his wife's and his son's wages, he will probably have to charge more for flowers. And then the discrepancy between prices in the store downtown and in the store on the by-street will not be so marked, though there will still, of course, be some difference.

NEW FLORISTS.

"There are evidences of marked expansion in the florists' business," declared the head of one of the leading supply houses the other day. "We have been receiving many orders of late months from florists in small towns, places we never heard of and cannot find on the map. Only a postal guide locates them. The inference is that many persons are embarking in this trade, regarding it as one of profit as compared with some others. You can construct your own theory as to why they are doing so—whether they were attracted by 'Say It with Flowers,' or by the profits last season of florists for whom these newcomers perhaps were agents, or by something else. The cause is not so important as the effect. That will be to maintain, and probably stimulate, the demand for stock from the wholesale markets and for supplies from houses such as ours. It will be the development of more business in flowers, benefiting everybody."

That a considerable number of newcomers are now in this trade has been apparent to The Review from the subscriptions received from them. The florists who left the profession during the difficult times of war are being replaced, if they have not themselves returned. Indeed, the new florists are so many that those who are gone are much more than replaced. In number the trade is growing and, with increased workers in the field developing remote districts, business for all of us will grow. The man was quite right who said, "The florists' trade is an infant, just growing big enough to talk. It has lisped, 'Say It with Flowers,' and much more is expected of it."

'WAY DOWN EAST.

There are several reasons why the Classified ads in The Review are specially useful to florists in the eastern states, but all the reasons may be summed up in the evidence of the one big fact—the ads fetch the orders—they sell the goods. Like this:

Please discontinue the dahlia and valley ads; sold out.—Hugo Kind, Hammonton, N. J., February 23, 1921.

We are all sold out on the geraniums advertised in The Review.—J. G. Layton, Olean, N. Y., February 19, 1921.

Cut out our ad on ferns; all sold out.—C. W. Espy & Son, Brookville, Pa., February 23, 1921.

My advertisement of dracænas in The Review has been working wonderfully.—S. Bartolotta, Fairport, N. Y., February 23, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business was generally slack last week, with the exception of George Washington's birthday, when there were a number of dinners and dances. Stock continues to be plentiful in all lines, with the exception of roses and sweet peas. The demand for these still exceeds the supply. American Beauties are still scarce and hard to get at $15 a dozen. Good lilies can be had at $12 per hundred. Freesias are $10 per hundred.

Various Notes.

On Washington's birthday the Washington Monument Association held its annual celebration at the Washington monument. Representatives of all the civic and patriotic organizations were present and many wreaths were placed there. The ceremony was impressive and the wreaths that lined the base of the monument were from ten to twelve feet in diameter. Among these was one from the citizens of Washington, placed there by William F. Gude.

Z. D. Blackistone is away at present, spending a week on his farm at Fort Washington, Md.

The Senate has appropriated $20,000 for the purpose of fighting the strawberry beetle, rose midge and other indoor greenhouse pests. At first the bill didn't have a chance, as Congress has been cutting down all appropriations, but William F. Gude went to see Senator Gronna and received encouragement provided he could show how the money should be spent. So the bill finally passed the Senate. Mr. Gude is now working to see that the bill passes the House and becomes law. This is the first appropriation to be made for these items. G. A. E.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market continues on the dull side, in spite of the fact that arrivals are not heavy in any line. Bulbous stock seems to be taking a breathing spell, shipments being lighter than for many days, although large quantities of stock are still to be accounted for. The line of argument pursued by the retailers is that the small demand for flowers has been due to the high prices asked by the wholesalers. Arrivals Monday, February 28, seem to clear fairly well, because they are not heavy. All last week the demand was spasmodic. The heavy snow storm Sunday, February 20, resulted in few shipments Monday, February 21, and Tuesday, February 22, being a holiday, there was not much in the way of extra demand for flowers. A surplus to clear February 23 did not help arrivals on that day, and clearances at the week-end were accomplished only by concessions to buyers. The week of February 28 may see a change in conditions. The weather is mild and promises to continue so, and mild weather means considerable to retailers, as flowers may be worn on the streets and a vast quantity is consumed in this way.

The market is well supplied with roses excepting American Beauties, arrivals of which are light. There is always a light cut preceding inauguration day, which is at hand, and flowers, no doubt, are being held for Washington, D. C., requirements. Hybrid teas are in good supply and the quality is fine.

Carnations are in plentiful supply and the quality shows an improvement. Growers report a pretty large crop in sight for Easter

Orchids continue in bountiful supply and cattleyas move well. Easter lilies meet a fair demand. Formosums are now coming in. Lily of the valley is in large supply, and moves within a price range of $1.00 to $6.00 per 100 sprays. Gardenias are in such small supply as to be almost out of the market.

Sweet peas are abundant, with few fine-grade flowers coming in. The cut from early plantings is of short-stemmed stock. Violets are of poor quality.

Miscellaneous flowers are in heavy supply, but they move fairly well. Myosotis is plentiful, as also are calendula and primula in two or three varieties. Tulips have shortened up a little, but arrivals cover a lot of poor quality flowers. There are plenty of pansies, snapdragons, lilacs, cornflowers, freesias, alyssum, wallflowers, mignonette, stocks and daisies.

Executive Meeting.

A meeting of the chairmen of the different sections of the Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York, acting as the executive board of the organization, was held at the office of the New York Florists' Club, 43 West Eighteenth street, Thursday afternoon, February 24, with A. M. Henshaw presiding. The resignation of John Young, secretary, was accepted with regret, but it was realized that Mr. Young's many other duties would not permit his attention to the affairs of the new organization in a manner satisfactory to him. Aubrey S. Nash, of Hentz & Nash, 55 West Twenty-Sixth street, was chosen secretary, and Frank H. Traendly, of Traendly & Schenck, 436 Sixth avenue, was chosen treasurer. The only branch of the retail trade represented at the meeting was that of the Greek-American Florists' Association. It was reported that funds already available for publicity purposes amounted to about $3,600 and after considerable discussion it was decided to commence local advertising at once. Several plans for a beginning were given consideration, and it was decided to run a display advertisement of good size some day this week in seven New York dailies, the matter to be used, and other details, being left to an advertising committee. The committee was directed to meet for this purpose Monday afternoon, February 28.

Spring Flower Show.

Interest now centers upon the spring flower show, which opens at the Grand Central Palace, March 14. Everybody is enthusiastic over the prospects for the success of the exhibition, and the public is beginning to sit up and take notice of the show dates. It is expected that the commercial exhibits will be larger in number this year than for some years. Notwithstanding that the opening occurs on the regular meeting day of the New York Florists' Club, the meeting will be held as usual in the club's quarters in the Engineering Societies' building, 25 West Thirty-ninth street.

Hugh Findlay, lecturer in horticulture at Columbia University, is to present, under the direction of the Columbia department of extension teaching, eight biweekly lectures, from March 1 to March 29, on vegetable and fruit growing. O. S. Morgan, professor of agriculture, also of Columbia University, urges the resumption of war-garden work. The average American family, he states, can grow one-eighth of its food and save at least $100 a year by planting a home garden. If we can believe a writer in the last issue of Printers' Ink, the enthusiasm for gardening already has begun, and the biggest season ever is expected by the seedsmen and others, but he attributes this condition entirely to advertising.

Various Notes.

The store of R. J. Rogers, 75 Main street, Hempstead, L. I., has been remodeled and a bulb window display featured.

C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., and L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J., are touring the middle west and Canada, visiting various growers' establishments.

The partnership of Costas N. Sakelos and Nicholas J. Pallas in the retail florists' business at 4259 Broadway has been dissolved. The business will in the future be conducted by Mr. Pallas. J. H. P.

The Greek-American Florists' Association has completed arrangements for its annual ball, which will be held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Commodore, March 2.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Growers and wholesalers who compare their February sales with those of a year ago experience a sinking sensation in the pit of the stomach, but retailers are able to view the situation with equanimity; they did not sell so much in dollars and cents as in February, 1920, but in quantity of stock they sold considerably more and gave the public much better value, the lower purchasing costs going a long way toward offsetting such decrease in retail sales as occurred. Many small dealers who couldn't do business at the high prices are back in the market. They may not bring big money, but their presence indicates that there are a great many people whose desire for flowers has not been gratified under previous conditions.

Wholesalers' sales for February show a tremendous shrinkage, but in most cases remain well above the record for the month in 1919. The decrease was as much as a quarter, a third or even nearly a half, and was largest with those who did the biggest business last year. It was due to much lower prices, because greater quantities of stock were handled. Flowers at wholesale participated in the general readjustment process along with other commodities. Retailers never come down on their selling prices as fast as the market falls, feeling, no doubt, that they would have difficulty getting up again.

The ultimate week of the month was not in any way better than the penultimate week, and neither approached the antepenultimate quarter of the month, in which the good St. Valentine's day business was done. The month ended

Lilies for Easter

25c PER BUD

We urge those who want the best Lilies to place orders for them now, to have us ship them in bud, to arrive three or four days before they are to be used, and to fully develop the flowers in their own places.

The Lilies we offer are from the leading Lily grower of this market. They will be in perfect condition and, if handled as above, will open perfectly, and can be shown to your customers without a trace of the bruising that always is more or less in evidence when fully developed flowers are shipped.

Improved Telephone Facilities

We have just installed a private exchange with four trunk lines all reached by the same call number, with branch lines to phones in all departments. No waiting, prompt service.

with so many flowers in the market that clearances were impossible except through outside channels, and few wholesalers are willing to resort to these so early in the spring season.

Not only is there an abundance of all kinds of flowers, but the quality of nearly all the stock is unusually fine. Finer roses would be difficult to imagine. Premier and Columbia lead, but all the other numerous varieties are excellent. They are good value. Beauties have reappeared in some quantity.

Carnations also are fine and in larger supply than at any previous time this season. The same may be said of sweet peas and bulbous stock. It is impossible to dispose of all the violets through the regular channels. Paper Whites and stevia are doing the fade-out.

The prospect for Easter has become the chief topic of business conversation. The consensus at present is that demand will be large, but scarcely of record proportions, that the supply of cut flowers will be normal, except on lilies, which will be less plentiful than last season, with bulbous stock, violets and sweet peas in larger supply than in recent years. It is figured 25 cents will be about right for the best lilies, where 35 cents was asked but not obtained last year. Other prices are expected to more nearly approximate those of last Easter.

Tribute to Peter Reinberg.

Peter Reinberg, grower, wholesale florist and leader in Democratic politics, was buried February 24. Thousands gathered at the home, at 5643 Sheridan road, to pay respect to his memory. It was the largest assemblage of the kind seen in Chicago in years. Many florists attended. There were hundreds of floral designs, most of them of the choicest character. Services were held at St. Gregory's church, of which Mr. Reinberg was a founder and leading supporter. The funeral sermon was preached by Mgr. A. J. Thiele, of St. Aloysius church, a friend of Mr. Reinberg's for thirty-eight years. Burial was in St. Henry's cemetery.

Mr. Reinberg's will was probated February 28. It proves to have been made less than two months ago, just before he and N. J. Wietor went to Florida for their vacation. It disposes of an estate ostensibly of $525,000, but report has it that an inventory will disclose a value of more than $900,000. Of chief interest is the disposition of the greenhouse property. There are two separate growing establishments and the city wholesale store. These are left to Mrs. Reinberg and to Mr. Reinberg's sisters and brother. A trust fund of $50,000 is created for Mrs. Reinberg's adopted son, Charles Reinberg. The rest of the real estate goes to Mrs. Reinberg. The sisters and brother who will share in the estate are George Reinberg, 2057 Balmoral avenue; Mrs. Margaret Weiland, 1917 Maple avenue, Evanston; Mrs. Mary Zender, 1615 Thorndale avenue; Mrs. Helen Zender, 6757 Ridge avenue; Mrs. Anna Hoffman, 1824 Cleveland avenue, and Mrs. Katherine Smith, 1944 Morse avenue. The executors and trustees of the estate are Henry Zender and Henry Krans, the latter having been Mr. Reinberg's closest friend and adviser. He is a banker.

Various Notes.

F. J. Benthey has leased his greenhouses at Newcastle, Ind., to Forest H. Meek, for some time employed by the growers at Richmond. Mr. Benthey has it in mind to remove to the Pacific coast.

The contract for the fixtures for the new Fred Ronsley store at 322 South Wabash avenue has been awarded to Buchbinder Bros. It is said this is the largest store fixture order in the history of retail flower selling in Chicago.

C. J. Michelsen took a day off February 26 to accept the invitation of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, to attend the opening of the new store. Mr. Michelsen reports that the stories of the excellence of the equipment and the artistic character of the layout have not been exaggerated.

George Wittbold, son and business partner of Henry Wittbold, and Miss June Vivian, a student at Northwestern University, were married at Crown Point, Ind., February 23. Their engagement had been announced some time before, but they refrained from telling anyone of the wedding date until it was passed.

Albert Koehler, secretary and treasurer of the A. B. C., has an order in for a new Buick touring car with a special enclosed top.

WEEK AFTER WEEK.

WEEK AFTER WEEK you are appealed to for Cut Flower orders.

Many reasons are given WHY you should patronize such and such a wholesale house. While claims can be made one way or the other of the service that is offered, what about YOU?

Have you ever stopped to think that our Market Letters bring you right into our place of business and put your finger on the pulse of the Great Chicago Cut Flower Market?

Others may advertise cut flower prices, some may issue cut flower price lists, but we get you right into the market with our market letters.

The venerable mother of the Wietor brothers is hale and active at 89. She is a sister of Peter Reinberg's father, and was one of the earliest settlers on "the Ridge." Her interest in the florists' business never has flagged.

The A. B. C. received and distributed two cars of cannas and caladiums last week. The announcement in The Review last week, that the company is to open a Pacific coast branch, aroused much interest in the trade. There is much speculation as to who will be manager.

Walter Adams, of Adams' Flower Shop, estimates present business as quite the equal of last year's. St. Valentine's day he reported as a good holiday for him. "But," he continued, "in our particular neighborhood customers buy flowers all the time. They don't wait for holidays."

by Monday morning 3,500 Ophelia and 1,500 Ward had been cleaned up. Some fine Prosperity tulips and Victoria narcissi were noted.

Paul Blome reports good business generally and prospects excellent for Easter. "But the wholesalers seem reckless with the public demand we have obtained from advertising," he said. "Boosting prices for holidays seems to me destined to kill demand as fast as advertisements create it."

C. L. Washburn returned from French Lick, Ind., February 27 in time to receive a telegram from his son, E. B. Washburn, at Pasadena, Cal., announcing the death of O. P. Bassett.

Things seem to be "breaking right" for Walter A. Amling since he removed to Pana. Recently he welcomed a daughter, Aline Margery, at his home and the other day he was elected a director of the First National Bank of Pana. The output of Mr. Amling's 100,000 feet of glass is sold in St. Louis by H. G. Berning and in Chicago by J. A. Budlong Co.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has contracted with the Union Refrigerator Co. for another big cooler for the shipping department. The new box is to be 11½x27 feet and will be handled, like the others in the place, by the Kroeschell refrigerating machine.

The death of Mrs. Albert F. Amling, of Maywood, is reported in this week's obituary column.

Fred Ottenbacher, who has been out of the trade for some time, February 28 rejoined the staff of the E. C. Amling Co.

Visitors to Morton Grove come back to town speaking enthusiastically of the fine appearance of the Poehlmann greenhouses.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

The wholesale market was in such a condition that the local trade could at any time obtain a full supply of their wants last week. There was no glut of anything. Gluts seem a thing of the past in this market. Through the work of the local publicity committee, the retailers have plenty of business now to consume nearly all the stock coming to this market, with the help of the excellent shipping trade reported by the wholesalers. During the week prices were lowered a few cents on roses in all grades. Premier had the call over Russell, and Columbia and Ophelia sold well, when in high color. White Killarney was in plenty, with a demand for the fancy grades. Many thousands of carnations arrived daily and the demand used up the best grades every day. Enchantress varieties were at their best last week. Some excellent White Wonder, Nebraska and Laddie were noted from local consignors.

Sweet peas arrived with long stems and well flowered. Violets had a good demand and the supply was sufficient to satisfy it. Callas and Easter lilies had a strong demand, but were scarce last week. Valley of excellent quality met a poor demand. In other bulbous stock, such as Roman and Dutch hyacinths, jonquils, tulips, freesias and Paper Whites, the call was good all the week.

Other stock coming to this market, such as calendula, mignonette, snapdragon, heather and pansies, had a good market daily. All last week there was a heavy demand for greens. The supply was good in smilax and plumosus. Flat ferns, Mexican ivy and galax met a heavy demand.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold an important meeting Thursday afternoon, March 10. An interesting program is being arranged by the officers, which should attract a large attendance. The place of holding this meeting will be decided upon at the officers' meeting. All members will receive notice from the secretary in ample time.

The full-page advertisement to appear Palm Sunday, contracted for by the publicity committee, is now filled with retail advertisements. Only those who pay into the funds were solicited and the committee in charge report that all space is taken.

R. E. Blackshaw, of the Ove Gnatt Co., LaPorte, Ind., showed a complete line of supplies and Easter novelties to retailers last week at the Hotel Statler. Allan Humason, of the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago, also called on the trade last week.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle was entertained last week by Mrs. Oscar Ruff at her home, 3117 South Grand avenue. All the ladies were in attendance and enjoyed a pleasant afternoon.

Pierre Schneider, of Creve Coeur, Mo., is consigning to C. A. Kuehn a fine cut of carnations, including some fancy Laddie.

It costs you ten cents to appear at any of the meetings without a flower now. The Florists' Club and the publicity committee have adopted this plan and the Retail Florists' Association should do likewise. All money collected will be turned over to the publicity committee.

Julius Schaeffer, of Vandervoort's floral department, is much interested in the adoption of the daisy for the Missouri state flower and says he will visit Jefferson City, Mo., when the vote takes place, with a large supply of daisies and decorate the desks of all the legislators.

H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. has issued its spring catalogue, of a handsome design with an attractive cover, which Frank Weber says has been in great demand since the mailing started. The company looks for a big rush of business soon.

George H. Pring, of the Missouri Botanical Garden, is much in demand by the various societies for illustrated lectures. Mr. Pring is president of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners and vice-president of the National Association of Gardeners.

Fred Alves, of George H. Angermueller Co., reports a large demand for supplies and that shipping orders were especially heavy last week.

Paul Redan, of the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co., reports that this company has plenty of advance orders for all sizes in pots and all the big kilns are working overtime.

There was much excitement at the February 23 meet of the bowling league, when the Roses tied the Carnations for first place. The Gladioli defeated the Sweet Peas two games out of three. The six highest individual players are: Fred Herman and Oscar Ruff, of the Carnations; J. J. Beneke, of the Roses; A. Y. Ellison, of the Carnations; Frank Plotz, of the Sweet Peas, and George Kuehner, of the Roses. J. J. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The big snow storm of February 20 made a vast difference in conditions surrounding our business. Many shipments of flowers were held up from Monday until Tuesday, February 22, a holiday. When they did arrive they were not quite so good. This meant a larger amount of lower-grade stock. There is less demand for low-grade stock when transient trade is checked by snow. The accumulation was hard to work off. The better flowers went out pretty well, mainly on shipping, but it was not until Saturday that the market regained a healthy condition through forced sales of the poorer grades of flowers.

One feature of the week was the change in the daffodil situation. Overproduction has ceased. The buyers want good daffodils. All the growers brought large quantities into bloom for St. Valentine's day. The price was forced down and down still farther, till fine stock was sold below cost. Now the price is advancing. Such advances are always hard. It is easy to cut and hard to advance prices. This advance is aided by some fine daffodils, both Golden Spur and Emperor. Cattleya Trianæ and calla lilies are both rather weak. With the orchids this is due to lack of demand, but with callas it is due to a quantity. It is the result of much poorly grown and poorly handled stock. Callas bruise easily when not properly packed.

Sweet peas are still in heavy supply. Carnations show an overabundance of whites and of low-grade flowers. Good Laddie and Mrs. C. W. Ward are popular. In white, really fine Matchless sells pretty well.

Darwin tulips are the novelty of the week. They are offered in two varieties of an unusual color combination. In early tulips the doubles, Couronne d'Or and Murillo, sell when choice, but even well grown singles in Prince of Austria and La Reine find few friends. Acacia pubescens is obtainable in quantity. Beauties have remained with us right through February. They are expected to increase soon. Local violets, both single and double, go moderately well at low prices, but the New York doubles sell slowly. The moderate crop of roses now arriving is about equal to the demand.

A Party.

Harry Bayersdorfer and Mrs. Bayersdorfer celebrated their thirty-fifth wedding anniversary and his sixtieth birthday with a party at the Rittenhouse, Twentieth and Chestnut streets. There were 200 guests. A feature of the entertainment was the presentation of a handsome silver loving cup, the gift of the employees of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. It was inscribed for "Harry and Carrie Bayersdorfer," with the occasion and the date, and was presented by one of the guests in admirably chosen words of appreciation of Mr. Bayersdorfer's kindness to his assistants and expressing their heartfelt good wishes for their future. Mr. and Mrs. Bayersdorfer considered, the market has never been more favorable for the buyer at any time this season. With our immense supply, and confining ourselves strictly to flowers and greens, we are in a position to give you the kind of service that is always dependable.

During this week we suggest CATTLEYAS in almost any quantity. Our supply is local.

GARDENIAS

They are scarce elsewhere. We have plenty of them. A fresh supply every morning.

SWEET PEAS

They are much more plentiful, and the best we have had so far this season.

SNAPDRAGONS

The supply is increasing, mostly Pink and some Yellow. Very fine stock.

CARNATIONS

We are particularly strong on C. W. WARD, ENCHANTRESS SUPREME and MATCHLESS. We offer you the largest supply in the Philadelphia market.

ROSES

For shipping we recommend RUSSELL. Our growers specialize in RUSSELL and there is no rose that will give the same satisfaction; also COLUMBIA and ten other good commercial varieties.

Flowers have reached a price where you can use them in quantity. This means additional sales for you. When you need flowers in a hurry, or for a special occasion, try us out.

were greatly touched by the gift, which was a complete surprise.

Upstairs.

Downstairs and upstairs improvements have been going on all winter in the "seven-in-one" building on the south side of Ludlow street, west of Sixteenth street. Last week Alvah R. Jones gave Walter Mott a glimpse downstairs. The impressions created by this opportunity may be gathered from a perusal of last week's Mott-ly Musings.

This week it is Phil's turn, through the courtesy of Edwin J. Fancourt, who led the way upstairs to see the improvements made there by the S. S. Pennock Co.

The second and third floors of the buildings, numbers 1608, 1610, 1612, 1614, 1616, 1618 and 1620 Ludlow street, were formerly rented chiefly as workshops for the Chestnut street stores. Now they have been remodeled and thrown into several large rooms to accommodate the company's supply department, of which Mr. Fancourt is the head. Here is the private office, the show room, the stock room, the record room, the room for moss, greens and wire, and a nicely fitted up women's cloak room. The private office is cheerful and suggests the thought that it has been lifted bodily from the first floor, where it has long been a familiar friend. Five handsome mahogany show cases are the glory of the show rooms. They range in height from six to eight feet. They have glass doors and are elegantly finished. Three are filled with ribbons, one with chiffons and one with fancy baskets.

Mr. Fancourt said that his company's supply business had been developed under great disadvantages in space, which are now at an end since the department has been moved to these spacious quarters upstairs. He said that the key to the success of the company's supply business lay in the fact that everything that was sent out was guaranteed. When an order was received for Ophelia ribbon, the exact shade of ribbon went.

The file room, looking like a well catalogued library, was most interesting. It contained all the records neatly arranged on shelves under date. There also was the stationery for present use.

The stock room contained cases of chiffons of great value, an immense quantity packed into small compass. This room is to be filled with shelves and racks of convenient size for the various specialties. While sphagnum moss is by far the most generally used, there is some demand for green moss. The cut flower shipping department will gain in space by the removal of the supply department.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its largest meeting of this or probably any other season March 1. The club was thronged with representative men and women, who had gathered to hear Senator Cartwright, of California. After Mr. Hicks, of the Chamber of Commerce, had lauded Philadelphia, the senator gave a patriotic address that held his audience for an hour and a half. It certainly was not flowers, but it was effective.

The exhibition was remarkable. Easter plants from five leading growers proved that lilies, roses and hydrangeas are good and will be on time. The plant exhibitors were the Robert Craig Co., with a splendid general collection, that included aeroplane roses and spiræas; William K. Harris, with a well-grown assortment; Strafford Flower Farms, with lilies and hydrangeas; Macaw Bros., with roses, lilies, pandanus and ferns, and Henry I. Faust, with lilies, etc.

The feature of the cut flower exhibits was an L-shaped table filled with early-blooming sweet peas from W. Atlee Burpee Co., grown by George W. Kerr. There were over 5,000 blooms in forty different varieties. This exhibit alone was a show in itself. Fred H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind., exhibited Angelus; Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., American Legion, and Joseph Heacock Co., Pilgrim, Hadley, Columbia and Dunlop. Elmer J. Weaver, Ronks, showed Carnations Benora, Lassie and a light pink seedling. The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange showed for Allen T. Wicks, Llanerch, Pa., splendid stocks; for L. B. Wilkinson, Kennett, Carnation Alma Ward; for E. H. White, Lindhurst Farm, Hammonton, N. J., fine valley.

J. Otto Thilow said he would not spoil a good address by speaking, which was very modest on his part.

Various Notes.

circle of friends at his home on the evening of February 28.

Frank X. Alter says that the Charles F. Krueger Co. has been enjoying excellent business at its Reading Terminal flower shop. Choice daffodils, roses and single violets have been in demand.

Frederick J. Michell was summoned home from St. Petersburg, Fla., by the sad death of his son-in-law, Joseph B. Muldoon, which occurred February 23. Mr. Muldoon, who was extremely popular, was in the bookkeeping department of the Henry F. Michell Co. The funeral took place at Ridley Park, February 28.

Berger Bros. are receiving some choice Darwin tulips. They are unusually early.

Charles B. Weaver, of Ronks, who has such fine sweet peas, made six sowings before he got them growing properly.

Mrs. J. H. Claus has the deep sympathy of her friends in the death of her husband, which occurred suddenly, February 23. The funeral took place February 26.

A letter from the middle west says that Mr. Peterson, of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., has just sold a man one of the M. Rice Co. foliage wreaths to place on his wife's grave at Kimberley, South Africa. The parcel postage on this wreath was 32 cents.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

The volume of business last week has been good. Stock of all kinds has moved well and there is a fair abundance of all varieties. Where one day's supply has lapped over there has been enough demand the following day to use it, so no surplus has accumulated. Carnations were the same price as a week ago, $6. Roses, at $4 to $20 per hundred, show a greater variety and lower tendency. Violets are still $2.50 per dozen bunches. Sweet peas are much more plentiful and are from $1 to $3 per hundred. Jonquils and freesias are $5 and narcissi $4 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray and A. F. Barbe, of this city; Frank Stuppy, of St. Joseph, Mo.; Glenn Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, Ia., and Irwin Frey, of Lincoln, Neb., returned Thursday, February 24, from a week's visit in the east. Mr. Murray says he never received such kindness and never had a better time in his life than he experienced on this trip. From Chicago they went to Richmond, Ind., where they were met at 5 o'clock in the morning by E. G. Hill, Joseph Hill, Fred Lemon and Earl H. Mann. After breakfast at Mr. Lemon's home they were shown through his greenhouses, then firm has been hauling fruit trees and shrubs from its nurseries for some time.

Hugo R. Neff, of the Muehlebach Flower Shop, had a decoration at Liberty, Mo., Thursday, February 24. Roses and spring flowers were used.

So much sunshine has brought out an abundance of sweet peas. The T. J. Noll Floral Co. had some choice stock for several days.

H. L. Heakin, of the Sunset Hill Gardens, who has been ill at Philadelphia for the last four months, has recovered. He was expected home March 1.

The Florists' Club met Thursday, March 3, in the office of the Pinehurst Floral Co. Sid Hare, landscape gardener, gave an illustrated talk on "Somebody's Back Yard." The publicity committee made its report.

Roy Murray, of Olathe, Kan.; Mrs. Martin L. Howard, of the Gladiolus Gardens, Republic, Mo.; Tucker Smith, Harry Blake and P. A. Manson, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., were visitors recently.

Charles Peterson died, February 13, at the home of his sister, Mrs. T. J. Canes, 3146 Gilham road. Mr. Peterson was in the wholesale hair business, at St. Louis. He had been ill a month before coming to Kansas City.

Although business is a little slow, Joseph Austin is well satisfied. He says florists should not expect too much through this period of readjustment and should consider themselves lucky that business has held up so well.

Miss Hayden, of Samuel Murray, says the best thing the wholesale florists ever did was to keep prices down instead of advancing them for St. Valentine's day.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. reports business ahead of last year's.

The William L. Rock Flower Co. advertised a sale of Sunshine boxes at $2 and carnations at $1 a dozen for Saturday, February 26. This was to move their large crop of spring flowers and to encourage flower buying. "The last two or three years have showered prosperity on the florists and it is hard to come down to the normal level again," said M. E. Carter, manager. "Florists must now be satisfied with a smaller margin of profit. From now on it will take merchandising to sell flowers. The high prices prevailing through the flu period, when stock was in such demand, have reacted on the florists to a degree where many customers have cut flowers off their list as luxuries. To head off this stampede and encourage new customers must now be the effort of the dealers. There was a time when I could call the name of every customer who came in and could make a good guess as to how much each one would buy. Now it is different. If we only bring fifty new customers in by one sale, it means fifty new friends added to the list. I wish every florist would put on a sale once a week. Everyone could feature something to get the public into the flower buying habit.'' J. E. K.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

Stock is fairly plentiful for the first time this season, but trade, although good, suffers somewhat by comparison with the corresponding period last year, when the flu was rampant. Prices are lower than they have been for some time past and it is hoped that conditions will keep them within reason in the future.

Lilies are coming along nicely, although it is doubtful whether they will arrive in time for Easter, owing to the arrival of a severe cold spell last week. Prices for first-class blooms will probably be about the same as last year's.

Various Notes.

Sprays of Phalænopsis Schilleriana and amabilis were coming into bloom last week at the Dale Estate. Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., and L. B. Coddington, of New York, who were through the greenhouses last week, were amazed at the splendid condition of the stock.

William C. Hall and Herbert J. Eddy, of Montreal, members of the executive committee of the Canadian Horticultural Association, were here last week on their way home from an executive meeting at Peterborough, Ont., where the annual convention is to take place in August this year. W. G. P.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The Newport Horticultural Society was to have held a meeting Tuesday evening, February 22, but the lack of a quorum caused a postponement.

Alexander D. MacLellan went to New York on a ten days' recreation trip.

Andrew K. McMahon is critically ill again. W. H. M.

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

At New York March 14 to 20.

Entries covering exhibits in the competitive section of the eighth international flower show are coming in well; in fact, much better at this date than for the same time previous to other shows. Some of the entries cover a dozen or more classes.

At the last meeting of the flower show committee, it was decided that rule 2 of the rules governing the show should be strictly enforced. This rule stated that all entries must be in the secretary's hands not later than March 10, and that a charge of $2 will be assessed for every entry made after these dates covering classes where the first prize listed is $10 or more, and $1 in classes where the first prize is less than $10, and the management reserves the right to reject any or all entries received after the date named. The committee believes that any prospective exhibitor can decide whether his proposed exhibit will be in readiness for the staging date and can make his entry by the date established.

Garden Club Classes.

In the early notice covering the class for the bird bath with planting arrangement, through a misunderstanding, it was stated that the arrangement was to cover a space of three feet in diameter.

A New Year's Thought

Let us learn to feel the joy in things that are simple and universal—in the beauty of the dawn, of sunset and of flowers. Let us cultivate a feeling of tenderness for all living creatures, from the dumb and patient animals to our brother man. Would you learn these deeper values in life? Study the flowers.

This was later corrected to read fifty square feet of floor space or 7x7 feet. The competition is open only to member clubs of the Garden Club of America, and the prizes are offered by the Horticultural Society of New York and the flower show management. Several entries in this class have already been received. In the class for the best vase or basket of cut flowers, open also only to member clubs of the Garden Club of America, the prizes are by the same donors.

A correction is also made concerning —The Wheelbarrow— —Art— —Flowers—

About four hundred years ago an artist of Florence, Italy, was painting that world-renowned masterpiece known as "The Last Supper." That same year the first wheelbarrow was made.

Leonardo da Vinci painted "The Last Supper." He also designed and made the first wheelbarrow. One is an art masterpiece of incalculable value. The other, a labor-saving device that through all the hundreds of years has lightened the labor and increased the labor-results of countless men.

Your business and mine is a strange mingling of the artistic with the purely practical.

Sometimes we are irritated because so much of it is just the practical.

When I get that way, then I think of Leonardo's wheelbarrow and promptly find myself over on the sunny side of the street again.

And now that you and I are both on the same side, what do you know about my Tisket Tasket Basket of flowers? It's a good thought when some F. T. D. order comes along with a $5 limit.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

National Flower Show Committee.

A meeting of the national flower show committee was held at the New Willard hotel, Washington, D. C., January 26. The following were in attendance at the first session: Chairman George Asmus, Chicago; President Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Secretary John Young, New York; Treasurer J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; Frank H. Traendly, New York; Wm. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland; Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., representing the American Rose Society. There were also present C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; W. R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland, and Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O.

Secretary Young read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved with the exception of the part referring to a motion made by Mr. Roland and seconded by Mr. Duckham, that retail florists who would agree to make exhibits at the Cleveland national flower show should be given each a space, free of charge, 15x15 feet, it being understood that if they should require further space they could purchase it in the trade section. Mr. Roland stated that although it was of record that he made the motion, it was not his intention to limit any retailer to a space of the size mentioned located among these exhibits and believed anyone should be privileged to purchase extra space in this location in order to make a larger exhibit. Mr. Knoble said that the retail florists of Cleveland were perfectly satisfied with the ruling, considering the same both fair and equitable. Mr. Roland, insisting that the ruling as recorded was against his views, asked that the motion be stricken from the record, but stated that he would not oppose a motion covering a ruling that would best suit the desires of a majority of the local people, and he so moved. Mr. Duckham, as seconder, consented to the withdrawal, and Mr. Roland's motion, duly seconded, was carried.

After some discussion, Mr. Knoble offered the original motion in his own name, seconded by Mr. Duckham, and the motion was passed. A slight alteration was made in the minutes referring to the publication of the official program, striking from it the direction that this program should be gotten out on the same lines as the Philadelphia show program, and adding that no contract should be made or expense incurred in connection with it without first submitting such matters to the national flower show committee.

tions, the chairman shall go to the meeting of the executive board with such a report and recommendations for the discussion of the executive board, which then will pass upon the passing of the appropriation. Such recommendation will then be passed to the national flower show committee, which will give the authority for the final appropriation.

7. The executive board shall have full power to elect its own secretary to take the minutes of the meeting and to exercise control over the office, which will be opened at the proper time to promote the exhibition and for the use of the committees and also for the proper filing of all records. There also shall be a treasurer elected, to be a member of the admissions committee, as this committee through its sale of trade tickets will have the greatest need for a treasurer.

8. This committee shall have full power to regulate the conduct of the show, but always subject to the supervision or revision of the national flower show committee.

9. The following is a list of the committees whose chairmen shall have representation on the board of directors: Printing, admissions, exterior decorations, interior decorations, music, lectures and school gardens, securing out-of-town exhibits, securing retail exhibits, securing local exhibits other than that of retail florists, securing nurserymen's exhibits, publicity, transportation, bureau of information, special features, concessions, aquarium, securing special premiums in Cleveland and vicinity.

The duties of the various committees then came under discussion. At the Philadelphia national flower show, a system covering directions to the chairmen and members of the local committees was devised, and the results were wonderfully good. Every member of a committee knew exactly what was expected of him and of his committee, and there was no interlapping of functions and absolutely no friction. The work of each committee dovetailed into the work of the executive committee and the management. With the experience gained at the last show, some improvements in and additions to these directions were suggested by Chairman Asmus, and as presented to the committee entailed considerable discussion. The following is an abstract of the principal duties of these committees.

Committee on retail exhibits: This committee will secure exhibits from retailers in Cleveland and throughout the country, no charge for space excepting when space beyond that allotted to all is reserved. The committee will explain to these exhibitors certain rules adopted governing the care and conduct of the exhibits.

Committee on nurserymen's exhibits: This committee will promulgate its own ideas and is expected to work in conjunction with the committees on decorations.

Committee on advertising: All matters of advertising and publicity will be in charge of this committee. After a long discussion in regard to advertising and publicity, on motion of Mr. Roland, $1,000 was appropriated for preliminary work.

Committee on transportation: The duties of this committee will be to disseminate to exhibitors information as to the best means and time for shipping material, securing freight rates, rates for trucking and facilities, and generally to see that arrivals are moved without delay.

On motion of Mr. Welch, seconded by Mr. Hess, the directions to the committees as amended were adopted unanimously.

There was a long discussion as to the personnel of the committees, and it was decided that Chairman Asmus meet the Cleveland interests and appoint the chairmen, with a view to having the committees completed in time to make a report at a meeting of the national flower show committee to be held in New York in March, during the period of the international flower show.

exhibited, and, on motion of Mr. Duckham, adopted for use in Cleveland. Estimates for poster stamps, or stickers, were presented and there was some discussion, but the matter was eventually referred to the committee on advertising to be appointed.

The matter of appointing a committee to judge any novelty that may be originated, with the idea of recommending an award to be made by the national flower show committee, was discussed at length and, on motion of Mr. Roland, it was resolved that any member of the S. A. F. wishing the committee to pass upon a novelty of his own introduction, could present it for such purpose before a special committee by arrangement with the national flower show committee.

Secretary Young presented for inspection the S. A. F. medals in silver and bronze. As it was found there was no wording on the medals to connect the national flower show with the society, the secretary was requested to ascertain from the engravers whether it would be possible to have this addition made to the die, and report on the matter at the March meeting of the committee.

The question of uniform background and decoration of exhibits at the show was discussed at length. At many shows deficiency in this respect marred the general effect, and a flower show should not be open to criticism in this respect. On motion of Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Knoble, the chairman was instructed to appoint a committee to present at the March meeting data concerning decorative materials and prices of same, with a plan, if possible. He appointed Mr. Young, Mr. Knoble and himself as such committee.

Mr. Roland pointed out the necessity for a budget committee to consider finances and expenses covering the Cleveland show and moved, seconded by Mr. Knoble, that the chair appoint such a committee, to report at the March meeting. The chair announced the following as the committee: Messrs.

STANDARDIZING GRADES.

Ammann Urges Unity.

I think the very good article written by Max Schling and recently published in your journal with reference to organization work and better standards for our business is worthy of commendation and I beg herewith to offer a few brief remarks with emphasis especially on the matter of standardizing the grading of both cut flowers and plants throughout the United States and Canada.

No doubt many of us can recall the turmoil that was caused when the matter of standardizing flower pots was brought before an S. A. F. meeting many years ago. It was argued at that time by many of the conservative men among the trade that it would be utterly impossible to standardize the flower pots throughout the country, for we well remember in those good old days we had the straight-side pot in almost all dimensions and sizes and only a few standards. The standard flower pot, however, was adopted in uniform sizes and it certainly has been a boon to the trade ever since.

Get Together on Roses.

There is no reason on earth why the same thing cannot be done with reference to the grading of flowers and plants. When one grower has one size for specials and another has another size for specials, or one calls his best roses "specials" and another one calls them "selects," no measurements being given or adhered to, how can we tell where we are? Why not grade them as numbers, 1s, 2s, 3s and 4s, or specials and selects, or whatever we have a mind to call them, and adopt a standard for what these named grades shall be—6-inch, 9-inch, 12-inch, 15-inch, or what not? Boston has the best system for grading roses I have yet seen, in the country. If that is the best for a standard, let's adopt it; if not, let's improve on it. Whatever we do, let's adopt a universal standard.

Plants, Too.

The same is true of plants. What is a 5-inch cyclamen, or a 6-inch Boston fern, or a 7-inch pandanus, or a 5-inch kentia, or any other sized plant we may name, as we term them now? We have no descriptive standard of any. So why not adopt a standard and say just what a 6-inch Boston fern should be, how many fronds and about how high above the pot it should stand? In other words, describe what a certain sized named plant should be and adopt that as a universal standard. Take even a 2½-inch rose plant for forcing; should it have one eye or two eyes above the pot or should the pots be filled with roots ready for shifting? Let's describe it. Then we can buy and sell intelligently and register our complaints intelligently.

Growers' Committee.

I think a uniform system of grading stock of all kinds adopted would be one of the greatest boons for the trade that we could undertake for growers, whole-salers and retailers. Those who have read Mr. Schling's article and are specially interested in this matter will be glad to know that President A. J. Keimel, of the National Flower Growers' Association, has just recently appointed a committee whose duty it will be to take up the matter of standardizing grades of both cut flowers and plants. This committee consists of Joseph Kohout, Carl Hagenburger and Earl Mann. Members of this committee, I am sure, will be glad to hear from anyone with reference to any suggestions along the above lines. They will, no doubt, endeavor to get in touch with some of the principal growers from every market before making final report and recommendations on this matter.

It is a tedious matter and requires a great deal of detailed work, but when once accomplished, it certainly will be of great value to the trade.

Without touching upon any other points of importance brought out in Mr. Schling's article, I wish again to compliment the gentleman highly for his many progressive and valuable suggestions, with which, no doubt, he has sown the seed that will some day bear much fruit for the interests of our trade as a whole.

quantities, have sold at a low figure. Roses and carnations are not bringing the same prices as last year, as business is rather slow, according to most of the retailers. Miniature roses are a little off crop at present, while mignonette, calendulas, myosotis and other miscellaneous stock is coming in more steadily.

Various Notes.

Charles Felton is spending a few weeks at Denver, Colo.

The retailers of the city held a meeting at the Hollenden hotel and organized, electing the following officers: President, Timothy Smith; vice-president, Charles Bastian, and treasurer, Miss Ruth Mercer. They also elected several directors and other officers. The meeting was better attended than past meetings called among retailers. More than sixty-five were present.

The Market.

The market last week opened up dull, but recovered somewhat towards the end. The supply was heavy and the demand had fallen off; yet in the face of this there were few complaints from the retail stores. Everyone seemed too busy. The trouble was that the fine weather had brought in more stock than could be handled to advantage.

Easter is less than a month off. With any sort of favorable weather there should be cut stock sufficient for all requirements, but plants are going to be scarce again this year. Hydrangeas are the most promising. Lilies look as though they would be scarce. Cyclamens, primroses and, in fact, all miscellaneous plants that are used at Easter are likely to be anything but plentiful and the wise man will get his stock secured as early as possible. Orders were placed as early as last week, contingent, of course, on the stock being ready. This is a safe procedure, for no one is going to have more plant stock than he can handle under any conditions.

Roses last week were in fine shape. Owing to the falling off in demand, the price broke somewhat, and yet the grower had no room for complaint at the prices quoted. Carnations were in big supply and, owing to the large amount of bulbous stock on the market, here again the price broke. Violets were plentiful and singles were especially heavy. They had to be moved;

so the price was lowered. Lilies were scarce, especially callas. These do not seem to have struck their gait all winter. There was a heavy supply of green goods on the market. If people would watch the market more closely, there is no reason why this stock could not be kept in the houses. It would not spoil there, while in the wholesale houses it often has to be sacrificed. Bulbous stock of the finest quality was to be had in any quantity desired. Miscellaneous stock of all sorts was plentiful. The buyers held the whip hand last week, and probably will for the next two weeks. Everyone expects business to slow up some at this time.

Various Notes.

The Leo Niessen Co. was handling last week some of the best sweet peas ever seen on the Baltimore market. If the company has such stock for Easter it will be a wonderful help for corsage work. William F. McKissick said he felt sure the company would. He said that he thought the supply was going to be all right on cut stock for Easter. If, however, the bright, sunny weather continues, single violets will be scarce. But sunny weather is wanted. It will be far better to be short on violets than on lilies and roses.

Charles Siegwart, the orchid specialist, is having a splendid cut of this aristocratic flower. The price of orchids broke considerably last week, but if one would take a trip out to the range they would see a sight that would make any florist envious for the Easter outlook.

Joseph S. Merritt is going to discard Radiance. What has happened? He has certainly been loyal to this variety. Why, he would do battle if anyone spoke disparagingly of his favorite. Now it is to be replaced by Madame Butterfly, Double White Killarney and Columbia.

Arthur Richmond's roses are off crop at present, but he is going to have one of the largest cuts he has ever had at Easter.

Lehr Bros., as is usually the case, can be depended on this year for a fine cut of roses. They are going to have a big stock of mediums. This does not mean that they are not going to have extras, but William G. Lehr has been giving more thought than usual to medium grades.

James Glass has a fine batch of otaksa hydrangeas that are going to be just right for the big day and also some of the French varieties.

The Ever-Ready Flower Pot Cover

The Ever-Ready Stands Out Strongly in Meeting Every Pot Cover Requirement

Of What and How Made. It includes a strong cardboard foundation, the outside of which is covered with best quality Waterproof crepe paper with fiber ribbon ties at top and bottom, and all firmly put together with improved metal fastenings.

Low of Cost. It is supplied at low enough prices to allow a gratis disposal, as the improved appearance of the plant justifies advanced pricing that more than offsets its cost.

A Time and Money Saver. Compared with trimming pots specially, with papers, mattings and the like, it freely saves flower store workers' time and avoids the cost of high-priced materials.

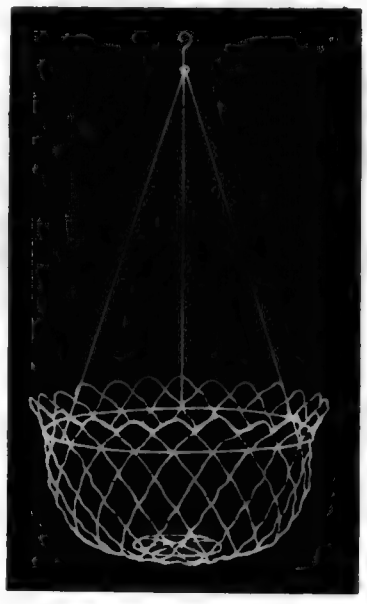
The Market.



There was no marked change in prices last week and Saturday saw a tolerably good clean-up. Weather conditions were favorable and February 24 and 25 were cool, with minimum temperatures of zero or close to it. The present week opened quite auspiciously. Supplies were much larger than a week ago, but the demand seemed improved. Roses remained somewhat on the short side and continued to clean up well. Whites were a little slow, but all colored sorts were in good demand at prices ranging from $4 to $25 per hundred for hybrid teas. On such sorts as Premier, Pilgrim, Hadley, Columbia and Madame Butterfly, short-stemmed flowers realized from $8 to $10 and some few fancies went above the $25 mark. The supply of American Beauties was comparatively small.

Carnations were not greatly changed, but there was an inclination downwards. It was more difficult to get $4 for good blooms and many went at $3. Pink colors, as usual, were the best sellers. Whites continued sluggish and were overdone. Violets showed good quality and Princess of Wales was unusually good.

Sweet peas continued to arrive in rather unwieldy numbers. Marguerites moved slowly, unless of good quality. Narcissi in variety were abundant, but tulips were in rather short supply. Freesia continued overabundant and wallflower, myosotis and calendulas were slow sellers. Callas and lilies averaged $12 per hundred, but were not in good demand. Cattleyas continued rather cheap. Valley was much improved in quality, but the sales were somewhat limited. Additions to flowering plants noted were bougainvilleas and hybrid perpetual roses. Some formosum lilies and lilacs were also seen.

Various Notes.

Prof. Osterhout, of Harvard University, had a capacity audience at Horticultural hall, February 26, when he delivered his third Saturday lecture on "The Organization of the Plant. The Mutual Influence of Various Parts. The Effects of Pruning and Grafting. Graft Hybrids. The Hereditary Constitution of the Plant." March 5 "Mendel's Laws and Hybridization" will be taken up.

George J. Duncan, of 133 Mystic street, Arlington, Mass., has disposed of his greenhouse business to Sztobbe & Karasiewicz, who purpose growing a special line of plants, mostly in pots.

The A. Leuthy Co., of Roslindale, has disposed of the greater part of the ferns it had in stock and now has houses filled to overflowing with thousands of excellent French hydrangeas and giganteum lilies for Easter. The company is specializing in lily of the valley and grows it splendidly. There is a big stock of bedding plants, which are crying for more space. The veteran A. Leuthy, although retired from business, still lives on the scene and gives a helping hand.

Houghton-Gorney is showing some nice plants and cut flowers of Strelitzia Reginæ, the bird of paradise plant. This firm's orchid arrangements are always interesting and show extremely good taste.

At the last club carnation night, February 18, it was noted that the experts spoke far from gallantly and respectfully of the lady carnations. Belle Washburn was described as of good color, but shy and not so free as Laddie. Ethel Fisher was erratic, sickly and bullheaded towards spring, while Ruth Baur was of nice form and color, but much too shy!

Fred E. Palmer and Miss Florence Palmer are home after enjoying a couple of weeks of winter sports in the New Hampshire mountains.

One of Penn's large windows last week was devoted to a display of fruits, such as grapes, apples, oranges and pears, in baskets. The fruits were of wax, but so closely resembled the real articles that the staff were kept busy answering queries as to the price per dozen.

The wide variation in the local wholesale price of single violets, from 50 cents to $1.50 per hundred, draws attention to the fact that there are all grades of this popular flower and, in addition to the quality of the blooms, careful bunching so as to have each flower show its individuality counts for a good deal. Anyone looking at bunches of 100 and 200 as done up by Kidder Bros., of Lincoln, Mass., or William Spillsbury and G. A. Sanborn, of Woburn, Mass., and then examining other flower bunches done up hurriedly and carelessly must admit that there is nearly as much art in bunching the blooms well as in growing them successfully.

Affairs at the Waban Rose Conservatories have not gone smoothly since that master rose craftsman, Alexander Montgomery, retired to Hadley after long years of active management. For many years this noted establishment was the Mecca for rose growers from all over the United States and Canada. Here originated such noted roses as White Killarney, Mrs. Russell and Hadley, with others of less fame, like Wabash, Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Mrs. Moorfield Storey. Here at one time were also grown wonderful Cornelia Cook, Perle and other old varieties, while the establishment was a top-notch one in the production of massive single-stem mums when they were in the heyday of their popularity. A number of the houses at Natick are quite old and, without a greater number of more modern ones, it is doubtful if this rose growing concern of 300,000 feet of glass can be made a profitable one. The receiver, Francis G. Goodale, attorney of Boston, Mass., was appointed on the petition of a number of persons and concerns, including the Anderson Coal Co., of Cumberland, Md., which latter firm has a claim of $20,000 on a mortgage. W. N. C.

At a meeting held Wednesday, February 23, the committee on prizes and exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society decided that judging of roses in its coming show will be according to the rules and standards of the American Rose Society. This society is coöperating heartily and the Boston show, April 6 to 10, is expected to be the greatest of this year's rose shows, while other classes of flowers will be notable. The American Rose Society is issuing its own prize lists, which are in addition to the offerings of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Skaneateles, N. Y.—John Whithey, Jr., a former member of the trade, expects to reënter the florists' business.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PASADENA, CAL.

Part of the force of the Pioneer Nursery was busy grafting wisteria last week. They are grafting the long purple variety to their own seedling roots.

The Bodger Nursery was busy with the fruit tree trade last week. Mr. Bodger used smudge pots in his lath house and says they were successful during the cold nights. When the temperature outside was 26 degrees he raised the temperature inside the lath to 40 degrees.

The Orchid last week had a large decoration at Altadena, Cal., the house being decorated with southern smilax, sent from Alabama for the occasion, peach blossoms and sweet peas. The table decorations were orchids, lilies of the valley and sweet peas. Mr. Jaeger says his firm has had an unusually busy time lately.

Whitford's, Florists, report a large St. Valentine's day business. They also report the first wedding decoration in the new Ambassador hotel, Los Angeles. The Whitfords are well pleased with their new location and are building up a good business. Mr. Whitford grows as much of his own stock as he can, having a large planting at Altadena. He has everything to facilitate his work, from a Skinner sprinkler system to a tractor, and when his help is too busy and he needs a little exercise he knows how to run it, too.

Mr. Coolidge, of the Coolidge Rare Plant Gardens, reports having 150,000 assorted heather of the best varieties, one with an unusually fine flower. He also has some dwarf lemons, some bearing fruit in 3-inch pots. He has Rose Belle of Portugal growing on the fence surrounding his growing grounds. This was in bloom last week, showing fine, large flowers. R. S. B.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

From the first the success of the new market here was assured and daily the consignments of stock become greater and the interest more keen. The growers for so many years have been delivering their stock direct to the retailers that it is unreasonable to suppose this custom will go out at once, but as the area of the city grows and retailers get farther and farther afield it will be impossible to reach them all daily and a central market will have to come. It is to the interest of all, retailers, wholesalers and growers alike, that this market be patronized and regarded as a permanent institution. No matter how little present profit or present convenience enters into the arrangement, it is the plain and obvious duty of every American florist to boost this strictly American proposition in Los Angeles. It is absurd to suppose that an unorganized crowd of American growers can hope to compete successfullly with a thoroughly organized market of another nationality where Americans are strictly barred. Whoever rigged up the sign, "Now is the time to plant cooperation," had the right idea.

Stock has again been plentiful this week and it has been a buyers' market throughout. In spite of this, business has been varied and good, so the retailers have made good profits. Funeral work has been plentiful and the demand for spring baskets has been away beyond anything known here before. Small flowers of all kinds are plentiful and good. Orchids are not quite so freely shown, but there are enough to go around. Valley is scarce at times, but good in quality. Roses are about even with the demand, while carnations are plentiful. The demand for heather continues good, partly stimulated, no doubt, by the lower prices asked by the principal growers. Greens are shortening up somewhat, maidenhair being the scarcest item.

Seeing Suntested Seeds.

A look through the trials of flower seeds at the Busch Gardens, Pasadena, Cal., where R. G. Fraser & Son select and perfect their "Suntested" strains, was most interesting. Douglas Fraser is especially interested in a new race of stocks they are working up and the strain comes wonderfully true to type and color. One especially good variety has flowers of a distinct garnet rose. It is even in height and would make a fine bedder, to say nothing of its value as a cut flower. Sweet peas are in full bloom and their new seedling, Tournament of Roses, is a beautiful rose that does not burn in hot weather and produces fine stems fifteen to eighteen inches long with usually three flowers open on the spray. Fine strains of calendula in the orange and lemon tints are in full bloom, while the violas, blue and yellow, myosotis and others are all perfect in their individual forms. When it is said that there are eighty-five acres in these beautiful gardens right in the heart of the best part of Pasadena and that almost every corner has something distinctive, it will be seen that it is impossible to do justice to the place in a short note.

this beautiful place and great credit is due him for the wonderful results. Just now he is removing some of the larger trees to open up vistas of the lower parts of the grounds, but as far as possible all the native trees have been kept and blended with the cultivated parts. Almost every degree of light or shade needed for best results with the flowers is at command and this fact is made the most of to perfect the flowers and produce perfect seed.

Various Notes.

Paul Howard's nursery, at Los Nietos, Cal., shows the result of a big season's landscape business, the large shrubs and conifers for which he is noted having been freely used, so that Mr. Howard says he is getting short on large stock of many kinds. The rows of younger plants coming on look promising and propagating is going on rapidly, a fine, new propagating house having been added to the glass here this season. Another large plant house is to be built at once to take care of the increasing demand for plants at the West Seventh street store. A fine stock of heather has also been drawn on here for the same purpose and some of the finest poppy-flowered anemones ever noted are now in full bloom. The colors are extra rich and varied, while the flowers are on long stems and perfect for cut flower work. Besides Erica melanthera, Mr. Howard is trying out some of the Fairieana types at Los Nietos, and while it is too early to say how they will do, indications are good at present. Paul Staiger is now with Mr. Howard in the sales department and Robert Armstrong, well known landscape man, leaves him shortly to take charge of an estate at Santa Barbara.

R. A. Casad, bulb grower of Huntington Beach, Cal., is bringing in fine Iris tingitana to the American Florists' Exchange market, on Winston street.

W. B. Clarke, of San Jose, Cal., called on the local trade last week, having motored down, as is his usual custom. Mr. Clarke, it will be recalled, was formerly salesman for the Cottage Gardens interests at Eureka and before that was connected with the California Nursery Co., at Niles, Cal., and his long experience well fits him for his business as plant and supplies broker, which he has recently taken up.

W. Rapp and J. Rossitter report business good in their landscape department, at Pasadena, Cal., and say the demand for small plants of all kinds is excellent. Mr. Rapp says the Pasadena Horticultural Society, of which he is

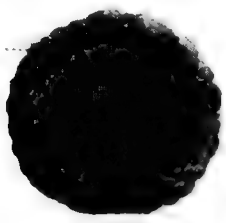
A NEW FERN

This is the most disinct commercial novelty in many years. It originated in our nursery, as a sport from Teddy, Jr., but, as will be seen by the illustration, it is of an entirely different character to the parent, of stronger growth and a most remarkable variety. It will eventually become as popular as the Boston and, having worked up a large stock, we are offering it direct to the trade at a very low price for such a valuable novelty. Strong, healthy plants in 5-inch pots, $9.00 per dozen. Smaller stock will be offered in April.



Good, hardy, assorted Boston, Roosevelt and Harrisii, 4-inch, pot-bound, ready to ship, $25.00 per 100.

From beds, ready for 5-inch pots

Finished stock from 5-inch to 10-inch always on hand in quantity.

president, had a fine time at the recent banquet.

F. R. Hills makes a fine display of ferns at the new market and considers that the opening has greatly added to his sales.

Hyacinths in pots in all colors have the floor in plants at W. Armacost & Co., the quality being excellent. Roses are arriving in quantity and the shipping business is described as excellent.

C. S. Claussen, gladiolus grower of Chicago, is visiting Los Angeles.

At the store of the E. C. Amling Co., Frey's Rainbow freesias and Iris tingitana are making a fine show and moving rapidly. This firm's basket collections, consisting of a selection in different sizes at certain prices, are meeting with a big demand.

Roy F. Wilcox is fixing the whole of his lath houses to double lath, the increased shade in summer being beneficial to kentias and other palms, while in winter the further protection of another lath is of great advantage. It costs money, but anything along the line of improving the stock is not balked at by Mr. Wilcox on the score of expense.

Beautifully arranged baskets continue to be a big hit at Lichtenberg's.

Some splendid funeral pieces were on the floor at the Broadway Florist store on a recent morning, over $1,000 worth in a single day, according to Jack d'Ortignac.

Business must be good on Los Angeles street, S. Murata having bought a fine, new 1921 model Stutz. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Spring flowers are a little more plentiful, but the supply is not yet sufficient to affect the price, which is high for California. Daffodils are still between seasons, although there are enough to give local florists good window displays. Paper Whites and other narcissi are not yet plentiful enough to be cheap. Roses are still scarce and orchids are in smaller supply than they were a week or two ago. On the whole, the market could absorb more stock, although there is no noticeable shortage. Iris and anemones are beginning to come in. Violets are good and fairly plentiful, and it is confidently expected that, within a week or two, there will be sufficient spring flowers in the market to warrant reductions in prices. Sprays of ornamental blossoms are now abundant. The flowering peach is in full bloom, as are the flowering quince, plum, cherry, almond and acacia. Tulips and hyacinths are fairly plentiful and are being bought locally for baskets and decorative work.

Various Notes.

The question of Easter advertising is already absorbing the attention of the Retail Florists' Association of San Francisco. It is believed that by Easter flowers will be sufficiently plentiful to warrant stimulating the demand.

Floral decorations contributed toward beautifying the Exposition auditorium for the automobile show, which was given during the last week in February. The building is of vast proportions, but, as a rule, it is not beautiful. For the occasion it was transformed into the semblance of a Greek temple, and flowers aided in giving a gala appearance. The firm of Brown & Kennedy did some of the most extensive decorating, using acacia and other sprays in an effective manner. The Lincoln car was decorated by B. M. Joseph and attracted much attention with its scheme of American Beauty roses and white blooms.

At the store of C. Kooyman Co., a window display of anemones in full bloom has been attracting attention, as they are almost the first of the season.

J. A. Axell has a grower who is cultivating Spanish irises for bulbs, and Mr. Axell is enjoying the benefit of the cut flowers which are better for florists' purposes than the native wild iris which is springing up in California. Mr. Axell absorbs all the stock of Ferrari Bros., but not all of the Ferrari Orchid Co. Victor Ferrari, who manages growing for both firms, said, when questioned regarding orchids, "Cattleya Schroederæ is in now, but we did not get a large enough supply, as it is not one of the most popular varieties to grow; so we cannot figure on a large crop. Mossiæ will be the next orchid in, but we do not expect to get many for Easter. Probably about April 10 this variety will be in heavy supply. Trianæ is just finishing its season."

S. Rosaia & Co. are handling large shipments of violets from their Colma ranch, as well as sprays of acacia, almond, cherry and other blooms.

Dried California strawflowers are proving one of the most attractive offerings of the United Flower & Supply Co. There is a striking difference between the greenhouse-dried flowers and the sun-dried products, those dried under cover retaining their color to a striking degree.

Fine cuts of Easter lilies are seen at the store of Domoto Bros.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. is cutting an excellent crop of carnations, many of which are especially large and fine. So many of the growers took out carnations and replaced them with roses, that carnations have now become scarce and more costly than they were a few years ago.

A large shipment of mats from Japan has been received by Enomoto & Co.

MacRorie-McLaren Co., 141 Powell St., San Francisco

These mats were especially imported for the Easter trade and are in delicate spring colors, including pink, red, green and yellow in various shades. Some also are white.

J. Capurro, manager of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., states that Sunday closing has caused Monday morning to be most strenuous. Last Monday he was almost swamped with funeral decorations, but the staff, refreshed by a day's rest, worked zealously and completed the orders on time.

Podesta & Baldocchi, in addition to table decorations, have had a run on corsage bouquets. Washington's birthday brought a large order for them from the University of California.

The California Floral Co. was busy with the bouquets for two weddings, all being in white roses and lilies of the valley.

Avansino Bros. have been participating in the recent rush of funeral work, one large pall being composed of orchids and lilies of the valley. Milton Avansino is the proud father of a baby boy.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is recovering from a recent illness, but is still confined to his home.

Fred Bertrand, of the Palace Hotel Flower Shop, decorated the hotel tables on Olive day, using sprays of olive leaves with green olives on the stem. As a result of increasing business, the Palace Flower Shop is about to be remodeled and enlarged.

Mrs. Darbee reports a large local, as well as eastern demand for acacias and other flowering sprays.

Many tourists are now flocking to San

The Market.

There was an abundance of spring flowers on the local market last week, but the demand more than kept pace with this, so that prices have been fairly well maintained. Better growing weather has been the rule and this is expected to be of great assistance in bringing Easter lilies along in time. From present indications, three local growers will be able to show between eighty and ninety per cent of their stock ready for the holiday, while some of the others hardly expect better than fifty per cent.

There is a heavier local cut of roses to report, but large shipments are still needed from California. Columbia and Ophelia still lead in local deliveries, with a few scattered deliveries of Wards noted during the week. Russell, Hadley and Columbia were the main items from California last week.

The only novelty of the week, as far as spring items went, was the first delivery of Darwin tulips for this season, some finely colored stock from local growers.

Local growers of orchids report a spotted cut at present, some noting an increase in the offerings while others list a decided decrease. Snapdragons and sweet peas are both of fine quality and have been meeting with a ready sale locally. Late deliveries of acacias from California have been better. The shipments of violets have shown less stamina, but clean up fast enough to prevent any loss on this score.

Various Notes.

The Winter Garden Flower Shop has been started on Third avenue, between Pike and Pine streets, by Ben Delfonti, well known in local floral circles and last connected with Rosaia Bros. This is located in the same building as the Winter Garden theater, and is in a location to develop some nice transient sales. Special decorations for the foyer of the theater were handled last week.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop showed the first Darwin tulips seen in the Seattle market this season, the stock reaching here in time for display before Washington's birthday. The coloring was all that could have been asked and a quick turnover on this stock was reported.

L. W. McCoy has been receiving some of the finest bulbous stock shown here this season from the greenhouses and has been featuring this stock to good effect in his displays. Several attractive corsages were developed for late decoration. This firm supplied a number of the baskets delivered for the opening of the new office of the State Bank of Seattle.

The Hollywood Gardens reports a general increase in the cut from its greenhouses, including an appreciable gain in the coloring and keeping qualities of the roses being delivered

The Orpheum Floral Co., last week, featured in its windows spring flowers set in attractively painted wooden boxes and succeeded in moving considerable stock. There has been a fine demand for potted plants.

An attractive and novel Washington's birthday window was developed at Kenney's Home of Flowers through the use of war souvenirs belonging to David Lenchner, of this firm. These include flower vases of various sizes made from shells and a model of an airplane produced from a rifle bullet. National colors and appropriate flowers were also used.

W. D. Desmond, of Risdon & Desmond, advises that the last snow storm broke glass in the greenhouse of this firm to the extent of about $150. Spring offerings are coming to hand in nice style, with Easter lilies inclined to be slow.

The local cut of daffodils was less last week, but the supply continues about as heavy, due to the fact that Portland growers have been offering much larger amounts.

Rosaia Bros. prepared an effective window display for February 22, using a bower of ferns and American flags as the background for a life-sized figure of Martha Washington and a large bust of George Washington. The model was shown holding an elaborate colonial corsage. This firm recently handled a large luncheon in Dutch style, with three large centerpieces.

A nice holiday business was reported by Melby & Allen and several medium-sized decorations were handled.

N. B. Healey, of the Seattle Fern & Moss Co., reports a steady shipping business in greens and states that, from present prospects, the northwest will have a market for all of the Easter stock that it can get ready for shipment. Better delivery service is noted.

The Burns Floral Co. has lately been using a mirror to divide its corner window display space, and by this practice is able to give an impression of greater depth. H. M.

La Grande, Ore.—Cherrys Florists have let a contract for four iron-frame greenhouses, to Thompson's Horticultural Works, Portland, Ore., work to be commenced in April. Luther Praeger, an expert rose grower, has been employed and one house will be planted next year with roses.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

S. S. SKIDELSKY, of New York city, visited Chicago last week.

CANNAS and gladioli are moving particularly well at the store of the American Bulb Co., Chicago. A carload of cannas is on the way.

JOHN P. DEGNAN, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, thinks the giant-flowering non-lateral type of aster lately developed will be welcomed as a valuable acquisition by the trade and the public.

GRASS seeds for the seed department to be opened by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., Chicago, will be furnished by the Albert Dickinson Co., while D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, will supply the vegetable and flower seeds.

THE official roster of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., is: President and treasurer, John P. Salzer; vice-president, George Salzer; vice-president, K. E. Salzer; secretary, Carl Rau; general manager, W. D. Weedy.

THIS, the second year of existence of the May Seed & Nursery Co., Shenandoah, Ia., has brought an encouraging increase over last year, which Vice-president E. E. May considered quite satisfactory. The force now comprises forty-five persons.

MUCH rain in Santa Cruz county, California, has injured the plantings of freesia bulbs on low land. Since there have been no wet winters until this for several years, a good many plantings were on low land and the damage is said to be severe. Freesias on high land are in good shape.

W. J. BUURMAN, of Buurman & Co., Hillegom, Holland, visited Chicago last week. Mr. Buurman will remain in this country until after Easter. His son will continue the selling here after that date. Although the firm is 11 years old, this is the first season that a permanent representative will be kept in this country.

A. B. HAVEN, president of the Haven Seed Co., writes that the comment on southern California's weather in this department two weeks ago did not correctly apply to Santa Ana. He says there was "experienced a very pleasant winter season. We have had a lack of rainfall and the weather has been warm."

THE Brown Bulb Ranch, at Capitola, Cal., has purchased the herd of Guernsey cattle owned by the late Judge Curtis H. Lindley, of San Francisco, comprising thirty-seven head, many of them imported and valued at several thousand dollars per head. The embarkation in the stock-raising and dairy business is secondary, however, to the obtaining of the large quantities of cow manure necessary to grow good bulbs.

AN accounting filed February 23 in the clerk's office of the District Court of the United States at Baltimore by Willis F. Myers, referee in bankruptcy, showed the first distribution allowed in the estate of Charles J. Bolgiano, trading as J. Bolgiano & Sons. The dividend is at the rate of twenty per cent on claims of general creditors filed and allowed, and payment will be made by Waldo Newcomer, William Ingle and Albert D. Graham, SEEDSMEN are showing much interest in the publicity material for seedsmen prepared by Axel Setterberg, now with the Hilmer V. Swenson Advertising Co., Chicago, for a campaign employing the slogan: "Plant a Garden for Health and Wealth." Mr. Setterberg's ability in using printers' ink was demonstrated in his long service with the Everette R. Peacock Co., and he believes the time is ripe for a campaign to promote home gardens such as were general in 1917 and 1918.

SEED PRODUCTION DECREASING.

Growers Apprehensive.

The economic importance of the vegetable seed production industry in the United States has been more fully appreciated since seed growers were called upon to supply the deficit caused by the cutting off of the European supply during the war period. Prior to this time few people, and least of all the consumer, concerned themselves with the origin of vegetable seed used or handled by them. The ability and willingness of growers to cope with the situation is evidenced by the phenomenal increase in production during 1917 and 1918.

The aggregate estimated value to contract growers of the total commercial production of vegetable seed during each of the past five years is, according to figures of the Department of Agriculture, approximately as follows: 1916, $13,400,000; 1917, $23,000,000; 1918, $30,300,000; 1919, $24,000,000, and 1920, $19,700,000. These figures include the value of onion sets and seed sweet corn, but not okra, eggplant, collards, mustard, endive and some other relatively unimportant kinds of seed. Neither do they include sugar beet seed. The changes in values from year to year as shown were brought about partly by the higher contract price, but largely by the increased or decreased production.

California Leads in Acreage.

To the production of these seeds a total of 186,542 acres was devoted in 1916; 231,079 in 1917; 259,721 in 1918; 230,659 in 1919, and 202,464 in 1920. These acreages are located in widely scattered sections throughout the country, California leading with 43,040 acres in 1919 and 41,562 acres in 1920, with Idaho a close second and Washington third. In 1918, however, Washington led with 43,744 acres, followed closely by Colorado, Idaho and California in the order named. Eighty per cent of the watermelon seed acreage is in Jefferson county, Fla.; ninety per cent of the onion sets are produced in Cook county, Ill.; eighty per cent each of the muskmelon and cucumber in Colorado, and practically all the carrot, lettuce, onion, parsnip, parsley and salsify in well defined areas in California.

The total number of commercial vegetable seed growers in the United States is not over 200. Of this number fifty control over eighty per cent of the aggregate production, based on the acreage of vegetables that could be planted from the seed at the usual rate of planting. In a number of cases sixty per cent or more of the total production of a single kind is controlled by less than ten growers or concerns.

Supply Sufficient for 1921.

The 1920 domestic production of a number of kinds, principally garden beet, cabbage, carrot, onion, parsnip, radish and turnip seed, was below the estimated average annual consumption in the United States, but with the evident large carryover the total domestic supply, if equitably distributed, would be more than sufficient to meet the 1921 requirements, with the possible exception of a few special varieties of some kinds. In the case of a few kinds the production and carryover have been supplemented by fairly large imports.

Although the total supply is large, much of it is old seed and is losing its vitality. Unless these stocks are replenished with new production at a not far distant date the inevitable result will be either a shortage of good seed or, what is worse, a supply of dead seed.

The increasing imports (Table 1), together with the low prices at which imported seed has been offered (Table 2) during recent months and the reluctance with which dealers place growing contracts, have caused some of the growers to become more or less concerned regarding the future of vegetable seed production in this country. It will be noted from the figures in Table 2 that import prices declined steadily and rapidly during 1919 and the first nine months of 1920, a few items approaching prewar levels. Some marked advances occurred, however, during the last quarter of 1920, principally on those seeds of which the domestic production was low.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed last week against H. W. Doughten, Inc., 59 Pearl street, by the Agros Corp., a creditor on a claim of over $7,000. Judge Manton appointed Thomas H. Matters, Jr., receiver in $2,000 bond. Liabilities are said to be about $700,000 and free assets are reported as about $5,000.

WHERE MIXTURE MATTERS NOT.

Weekblad voor Bloemenbollenculture, the newspaper for flower bulb growers published at Haarlem, Holland, contained in a recent issue an interesting decision in the matter of one bulb grower who haled another before the board of arbitration. It is the case of D. Nieuwenhuis & Sons, Lisse, against Jacob Van der Deure, of Enkhuizen. (Decision No. 664.)

According to the newspaper, it appears that Nieuwenhuis sold and delivered to Van der Deure, in 1919, a quantity of about thirty bushels of planting stock of Prosperity tulip. In 1920 this stock showed not all true to name, being mixed with Flamingo. The matter was up before the arbitration board, which (Decision No. 630) ordered that Nieuwenhuis take back all the stock which came out of the growing and deliver to Van der Deure a like quantity of Prosperity true to name. Nieuwenhuis did, it appears, receive back the mixed bulbs, but claimed that during the time of blooming they asked Van der Deure to take out all the untrue plants, which the latter refused to do. Nieuwenhuis asserted that they then asked to be allowed to send someone themselves to rogue the stock, which privilege was refused them. Nieuwenhuis claimed that he could not sell the stock as Prosperity, but had to sell it as mixed, and sued for the difference in value, on the ground that Van der Deure was under obligation either to take care of the stock or to permit Nieuwenhuis to do so, by roguing it.

Van der Deure admitted that Nieuwenhuis once asked him to remove the Flamingo from the stock, but that it was before the arbitration board had concluded the previous hearing and made the original award, the request then being refused because of the desire to keep the stock as it was until need for evidence should have passed. Van der Deure denied that any request had been made to permit Nieuwenhuis & Sons themselves to rogue the stock and asserted that, on the contrary, Nieuwenhuis, Sr., head of the firm, had stated that the bulbs would be sent to America, where the not being true did not matter. Philip Hendrick Van der Deure, son of defendant, also asserted that he went through the fields with the foreman for Nieuwenhuis to see the mixture in the stock and that said foreman stated he did not know what his firm would do with the stock, putting on top of it that "to clean out the mixture is not a necessity, because they go to America anyhow." Van der Deure therefore asked that the claim of Nieuwenhuis be declared without justice and be not allowed.

The court took conclusion in favor of Van der Deure and assessed the costs in the case against Nieuwenhuis.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

If the 2,753,000 miles of highways in the United States were all planted with appropriate shade trees, about 578,000,000 trees would be required from the nurserymen of this country.

Quarantine 37, says Dr. Marlatt, is here to stay. Nurserymen are realizing that lining-out stock, formerly imported by the millions, will now have to be grown, and is being grown successfully here.

The nurseries of Thomas Meehan & Sons, Dresher, Pa., were offered at public auction in Philadelphia recently by the executors under the will of the late Thomas Meehan. There were no offers and the property was withdrawn.

The incorporation of the Floral Nurseries, Inc., with a capital of $200,000, is reported at Wilmington, Del. The new firm will be interested in general agricultural, horticultural and nursery business. The incorporators are C. T. Cogee, C. B. Outten and S. L. Mackey, of Wilmington.

California nurserymen will hold their annual meeting in the Assembly room of the Hotel Green, Pasadena, Cal., October 26 to 28, it was decided at a recent meeting of the Pasadena Horticultural Society, the Board of Trade and the executive committee of the California Association of Nurserymen.

Lists of surplus stocks that members of the California Association of Nurserymen wish to dispose of will be published by the executive committee of the association, it has been announced. Nurserymen in that state have been requested to send in their lists so that the work may be gone ahead with.

NURSERY STOCK FOR FLORISTS.

In speaking before the Illinois Nurserymen's Association at Chicago, February 9 and 10, M. Mierisch, of Glenview, Ill., referred to the possibilities for nurserymen in growing flowering plants for the florists' trade. In this connection he said:

"There is another field hardly touched at all and that is the growing of flowering plants in pots for forcing. The florists are badly in need of something different from cyclamens, hydrangeas and primulas. There is really some variation needed. In the days before the quarantine any amount of this stock was imported every year from Holland. I have in mind varieties, most of which are grown already in many a nursery and which, if intended for the florists' trade, must be potted and prepared for a year for forcing under glass.

"I do not have to tell you how beautiful plants, such as double-flowering lilacs, Pyrus floribunda, Prunus triloba, double-flowering almonds, peach and snowball look when forced in greenhouses. I firmly believe that those plants could be sold in considerable quantities every year. The growing of bulbs, such as gladioli, tulips and narcissi, is increasing every year and it has been proved that lily bulbs, at the present time imported from Japan by the millions, can be grown with success right here in America."

TRADE CONDITIONS TODAY.

Stock Scarce.

I believe that the nursery business is one of the few lines of industry in this country which have gone into the present readjustment crisis on a fortunate basis. This is largely due to the fact that the average nursery crop turns over only once in every three, four or even five years. This means that the nursery products which we have for sale this coming spring were started in their course of manufacture during the war period, when labor was extremely scarce and high, when transplanting stocks for the same reason were available only in limited quantities, and when the general policy which seemed most desirable in its application to the nursery trade was one of retrenchment rather than expansion. The result is that, through the effects of the war and the stone-wall embargo which Quarantine 37 affords us, the nursery trade faces today, especially in the east, one of the shortest salable stocks which it has ever experienced in its history, a stock which, in 1914, would have had the bulk of the nurserymen scurrying out in an effort to bolster up their evidently depleted stocks and would have placed the wholesale market in an active state long before this time of year.

But today the situation is, of course, almost the opposite. Today the nurseryman with a surplus, however slight, shows a decided tendency to want to shift that surplus into other hands and there are few buyers who are buying more than on a hand-to-mouth basis. The result is that comparatively little business is being done at the present time and that things are generally a little "up in the air."

Uncertainty Prevails.

Can you imagine what the situation would have been like if the nursery business were so constituted that we could bring our stocks onto the market in one year, or even two years? Two years ago, and especially one year ago, the feeling was everywhere one of expansion. The market would today be glutted with huge stocks brought in under heavy production costs. Such a supply, coupled with the fact that nursery stock is a perishable commodity, which must move when it is ready or be added to our ever-present brush piles, would have brought about a situation which I think everyone could easily visualize without the slightest assistance. But the situation as it stands today is by far the most favorable that could be expected under the present industrial circumstances. Available stocks of most items are undeniably short, when compared with what the prewar demand could take care of, and when June rolls around I believe that we shall find things just about as well cleaned up as they have ever been.

Whether the buying situation which I have mentioned above is justified, we can of course tell much better by the first of April, but in the light of the extreme shortage of stock, it would seem possible that this conservative buying might be a little overdone, especially in the case of the man who is holding off in anticipation of a possible drop in the market, due to too strong a desire to unload a possible surplus. Such buyers may easily find, when they come to cover their short-list, that there will be some items which are practically unobtainable. Reports of retail nurserymen who are handling commission men, through this section of the country at least, show that sales can be had by anyone who goes out after them; in fact, many nurseries are reporting business as good as, and in some instances even better than, a year ago and last year was with almost everyone the best year nurserymen ever had. Of course, we shall have to grant that there are other sections of the country whose economic condition is not so good as ours. This is especially true of the south, which is in some ways in pretty bad shape, but we all know that a surplus of nursery stock suitable to the southern trade can have comparatively little effect on the northern market at best and, anyway, the southern nurserymen say that conditions there seem to be much better now than they were several months ago.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business last week was most encouraging. Stock was plentiful, but, nevertheless, the greater part of it was moved, in some cases being sacrificed to make the clearance. Unfortunately, the stock of bulbous flowers has come all at one time and from every source; daffodils and jonquils have been particularly plentiful. These have, naturally, been harder to move than other blooms. Narcissus poeticus and Paper White, cut hyacinths and tulips were plentiful and of excellent quality. There was a good quantity of carnations, the quality of which was fine, but prices were low. Sweet peas were fairly plentiful and were in good demand as to the better grades. Short-stemmed stock did not sell so readily. Calendulas were in fair supply and the demand was quite good. Mignonette was of good quality and sold well. The cut of freesias was not so heavy last week, but the demand was good.

Roses were in good crop and included about the best selling varieties. The prices on these were about normal again. Large cuts of Columbia reached this market daily and sold readily. Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Montrose, Sunburst, Maryland, Dunlop, Kaiserin and the Killarneys were in large supply. Sweethearts were fine, with an even demand. There was a heavy crop of callas last week. Easter lilies arrived in fair supply. Violets were plentiful and of good quality, but the demand was not active. Orchids, gardenias and cypripediums were plentiful and moved fairly well. There was a good supply of potted stock on hand, which included a fair quantity of bulbous stock, cinerarias, Alpine violets, primroses and lilacs. There was a good demand for all kinds of palms and ferns.

Various Notes.

Most of the uptown florists reported a good business for Washington's birthday and suitable window decorations in the various stores, with photographs and flags, were conspicuous.

William L. Keller, a member of the firm of J. B. Keller Sons, left Rochester last week for a trip to Denver, Colo., to visit his son Wilfred, who has been living there for five years.

So extensively has his flower business increased that he is now constructing four houses 35x300 feet. The buildings will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. When completed, this range will be one of the largest in his section.

Mr. Ratcliffe has obtained his flowers hitherto from large eastern cities to accommodate his retail trade, but with this establishment he contemplates serving his entire retail trade and doing a wholesale business as well. One house will be devoted entirely to roses, the others containing a general line of cut flowers. He also plans to grow an extensive line of ornamental shrubs, and to his business will be added a landscape gardening department.

GRAFTED ROSES

Five hundred thousand this year and half of them sold! The old, worn-out section won't do for the days that are to come—days when production will tell the story of profit or loss. Labor is plenty. Dig in and replant. We can still supply the best that can be produced, before-the-war quality; better shipping conditions, better deliveries than we have had in the past few years. Get good soil under and good roofs over our grafted roses and watch things grow!

Let us know the verdict!

The Market.

Market conditions changed somewhat last week. Prices of cut flowers have taken a drop and the supply of orchids has shortened. Otherwise stock of all kinds is plentiful, with the exception of roses. From the reports of the different florists, the cineraria crop has all come on at once and is inclined to be a drug on the market.

Various Notes.

Mrs. R. W. Doswell has returned to her duties in the store after her illness.

The Lanternier Florists have been having special week-end sales of plants and bulbous stock, which have proved that it pays to advertise. Mrs. A. J. Lanternier is visiting her daughter, Mrs. O'Connor, at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Ralph Tinkham states that the special sale of carnations, lasting one day, was a big success.

At the store of E. C. Wenninghoff everyone was kept busy with funeral work.

The Blossom Floral Co. reports that the sales of bulbous stock, both in plants and cut flowers, were unusually heavy.

David S. Vesey and Fred Helgren, of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, spent Sunday, February 27, with florists at Newcastle, Ind.

Among trade visitors last week were William F. Thomas, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; Allan Humason, of the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago, and Mr. Green, of the Durable Products Co., Cleveland, O.

S. N.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The usual dullness of the Lenten season has been reflected in the diminished volume of business in the flower trade, few cut flowers being used. Funeral work holds up slightly better than usual, but the abundance of bulbous stock that is daily coming into the market tends to keep prices down. Pots and pans of blooming bulbous plants have made their appearance and find ready sale, and reports indicate a good supply for Easter.

Various Notes.

Henry Phillips, of the Mount Pleasant Greenhouses, has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his mother last week.

Willis S. Pino, of Washington street, was confined to his home last week by illness.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe had the decorations for a large wedding last week. They have a number of large affairs booked for after Easter.

Edward C. Scott, who recently began business at 777 Broad street, has added a new delivery truck to his shipping department.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, Mass., was a visitor here last week. He is cutting some fine bulbous stock and has a good line for Easter.

William E. Chappell, who has been confined to his home, is reported as improving.

Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, reports unusually heavy funeral work since the holidays.

Ormerod Bros. are having a new greenhouse built at Sharp's Lot Road, East Swansea, to replace the one destroyed by a hail storm last September.

Hugo H. DeWildt has two large houses filled with potted stock for bedding.

AGERATUM FRASERII

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years; that is, a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire summer with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over two and one-half inches across, while the individual flower would be seven-eighths of an inch in diameter. The plant spreads about twelve to fifteen inches across. It can easily be used with alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant.

The Climbhi Forestry Co. has opened a branch office in Pawtucket.

John Bone, for a number of years head gardener on the estate of former Lieutenant Governor Roswell B. Burchard, at Little Compton, died last week in his seventy-second year. He was born in Scotland and came to this country in 1870. He is survived by his widow and one daughter.

The first violet drive held here in three years was held by W. H. Bowers, Washington street, Saturday, February 26. Bunches of twenty-five were sold at retail for 25 cents.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

RADIATION OF BOILER.

Having a cast-iron sectional boiler of nine sections, with a grate surface of 20x40 inches and fifteen 2-inch flues, I should like to have you tell me what amount of radiation this boiler has.

F. W. P.—N. Y.

With the limited data given, it is difficult to furnish any definite rating for the boiler, but a first-class boiler with a grate of the size mentioned would be rated for 1,600 square feet of radiation, using a good grade of hard coal. With soft coal it would not be rated much above 1,200 square feet, especially as the coal is not always of the best. As we have no knowledge of the actual efficiency of the boiler, it would be safer to limit a boiler with a grate 20x40 inches to 1,000 square feet of hot water radiation, which would be able to heat about 3,000 square feet of glass to 60 degrees, when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. Some boilers would be able to handle from twenty-five to fifty per cent more than this.

TO HEAT NEW HOUSES.

I am enclosing a rough sketch of the two greenhouses I am building. They are 21x50 feet, with 4-foot side walls, half glass and half concrete. The height to the ridge is nine feet, and there will be three to four feet of walk between the two houses. I shall use 4-inch flows and returns from the boiler across the end of both houses, and branch off with 2-inch pipe for the coils, which will be under four benches in each house. The 4-inch main pipes will be below the floor level, with the 2-inch outlets extending above the floor and then under the benches.

I desire to heat the house on the north side to a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees and the other to 50 degrees. Will you kindly tell me how many 2-inch pipes will be needed in each house? Would it be better to use the one to the north for the warmer house or the one nearer to the boiler? The temperature outside drops as low as 8 or 10 degrees below zero at times. J. R.—Conn.

While it will be possible to heat the houses with 2-inch flow pipes, we prefer to use flow pipes two and one-half inches in diameter for such houses.

We suggest running three flows in each house, placing one upon each side wall plate and the other two feet below the ridge, with four coils containing eleven 2-inch returns in the warmer house and eight returns in the cool house. If 2-inch flow pipes are used, an additional flow will be required in the warm house and one more return in the

KROESCHELL BOILERS

Neither in the East or West nor the North or South has any other make of Boi er ever equaled the performance of the Kroeschell.

Installed for 3,974,605 square feet of glass in two years.

The Kroeschell has proven its worth in many of the largest establishments in this country. It has frequently been installed by the most careful buyers in competition with all other makes of boilers.

Greenhouse owners like the Kroeschell because of its extreme simplicity and freedom from trouble. As a fuel saver it pays its own way—it can be operated with the cheapest grade of fuel.

Every customer immensely satisfied. The high efficiency and low cost of operation make the Kroeschell the best of all boilers for florists' use.

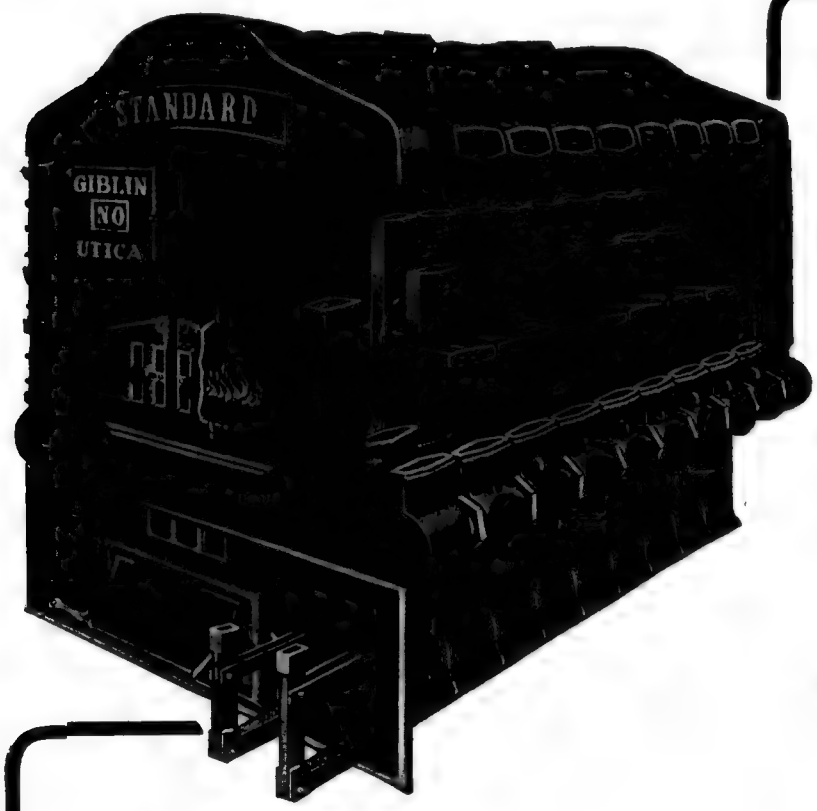
Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron



The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

other house. In any case, the flows, as well as the returns, should have a downward slope. The circulation will be much better with the flows arranged as suggested, than in a system in which the flows are under the benches.

There is no objection to having the warmer house nearer the boiler, although it will make little difference so far as the circulation is concerned, provided the main flows and returns are of ample size.

If there are two coils in the middle of the house, both may be supplied by one 2½-inch flow under the ridge, but if 2-inch flow pipes are used, it will be desirable to run a flow pipe for each of the coils, especially in the warmer house.

TO HEAT LEAN-TO.

I have a small house, 8x70 feet, with a 4-foot side wall. It is attached to a building. I should like to heat it with hot water, using just enough heat to keep out the dampness. This house is used only during September and October. I could use either gas or oil for fuel and should like to know the size and amount of pipe, and how to install.

J. J. H.—O.

Although it is not stated definitely, we infer that the house above mentioned is built as a lean-to, with one side wall exposed.

Just what temperature is desired is not made clear, but we judge that so far as keeping out the dampness is concerned, one 2-inch flow pipe, five or six feet from the floor, connected with one 2-inch return carried around the end of the house and back on the side wall, is all that would be needed. It might be well to arrange a system as previously stated, with two 2-inch returns on the exposed wall. Such a house would often be handy, as it would be possible to maintain a temperature of 40 degrees in zero weather.

The Market.

There was little change in the flower market last week, conditions remaining almost the same as all last month, with a good supply and big enough demand to keep everything moving well. Roses at present are of excellent quality. Prices remain unchanged, with Ophelia, Dunlop, Columbia, Hoosier Beauty and Milady cleaning up every day at $12 to $35 per hundred, while Shawyer, Wasatch, White Killarney and White Shawyer move well at $10 to $25 per hundred.

Carnations have been dropped to $6 per hundred by some wholesalers, but the bulk of the crop is cleaning up well at $8 per hundred. Laddie is in good supply at $15 per hundred. Sweet peas are abundant, but move well at $1 to $3 per hundred. Freesias are still arriving in large numbers. Daffodils, both single and double, are moving well at $6 to $8 per hundred.

Bulbous stock in pots is now plentiful. The quality is exceptionally fine and good prices are realized on all that are offered.

Various Notes.

Robert Newcomb, representing the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., was a recent visitor.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, is stopping at Salt Lake City for a few days, visiting the trade. Mr. and Mrs. Miller, their daughter and Mrs. Miller's mother are stopping at the Hotel Utah. They will soon depart for Los Angeles. G. J. B.

The Market.

The long looked for break in the market arrived last week, not a serious glut, but extensive supply, with a small drop in prices. The demand is not large, owing to the Lenten season, although the majority of florists are reporting fair business. Business for the month of February fell off considerably from that of last year, but, if compared with 1919, will no doubt show a small increase. Large quantities of bulbous stock are coming to the market daily, which means that the prices obtained by the growers are not in accordance with the high prices paid for the bulbs. It seems there is too much bulbous stock brought in at this time. The rose cut is on the increase again, and the quality is of the best. The varieties offered during the last week were White Cook, Premier, Columbia, Pilgrim, Butterfly, Aaron Ward, Ophelia, Richmond and White Killarney. The carnation supply is also coming along nicely, with a noticeable drop in prices. The supply of Easter and calla lilies is still short and a clean-up is made daily. Orchids are coming along nicely and are being offered at fair prices. Sweet peas, violets and valley are arriving in larger quantities, while the demand for corsage flowers is limited at this season. Palm crowns for Palm Sunday are being offered. A few pansies are also in the market.

Various Notes.

At the last regular meeting of the Retail Florists' Association it was agreed to establish an advertising fund. The membership of the organization is growing rapidly, and it is desired to maintain the splendid enthusiasm that has characterized the fellowship since the organization was established.

Albert H. Burki has returned from Los Angeles, Cal., where he was visiting his parents. He has resumed his duties with the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

G. A. Lehman will open a flower store to be known as the Lehman Flower Store, in Tarentum, Pa. Mr. Lehman, prior to his enlistment in the army, was employed by the Tarentum Floral Co.

The regular meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held Tuesday evening, March 1. A report from the carnation convention was to be made. The subject for the evening was "Bulbous Plants and Flowers." H. J. H.

The Market.

The market is quite well stocked with flowers and plants and business seems to be fairly good. The last week was cold, with snow and rain. Most of the florists look forward to a good business in plants this spring and are preparing accordingly.

Various Notes.

Karl Zeidler has had considerable funeral orders lately. He is stocking up with a large line of plants for spring.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann is constantly busy with funeral work.

The Lockyear Floral Co. is enjoying good business and looks for a continuance throughout the spring.

The Blackman Floral Co. is cutting a fine lot of carnations and roses. This firm's line of Easter stock is in nice shape. William Blackman has regained the use of his legs, after years of inability to walk.

Among those who were witnesses in the Niednagel will case held at Rockport, Ind., recently, were Karl Zeidler, Henry Seymour, William Halbrooks, George Blackman, Theodore Kuebler and E. L. Fenton. The suit to set aside the will of the late Julius Niednagel, which favored Emil Niednagel, was pushed by Fred and Jack Niednagel and Mrs. Elsie Land, a sister. The jury returned a verdict in favor of setting aside the will. If a new trial is not granted, the case will be taken to the Supreme Court by Emil Niednagel. One of the issues of the case was the claim that Julius Niednagel was of unsound mind during the later years of his life, but the evidence disproved this.

E. L. F.

OMAHA, NEB.

Stock is beginning to pile up, especially bulbous stock and carnations. Carnations have been moving slowly. There is an oversupply of jonquils, Paper Whites, daffodils and tulips. Tulips are of an extra fine quality and in almost every color.

St. Valentine's day proved a big success for every Omaha florist; in fact, everyone had all he could handle and it came into the class with Mothers' day. More plants were sold than usual.

Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks of Minneapolis, Minn., visited Omaha, February 22, and spoke in connection with the proposed state park system. He left last week for Denver, Colo., where he will give expert advice in connection with automobile tourist camps. Mrs. Wirth accompanied him on his visit.

Garlough's Insect Powder

Positively will kill or drive away all insects that live in plants

It is not a spray, but is put around the roots and is drawn up into the plant by natural circulation. It will positively kill scale in palms and ferns and that alone makes it invaluable to florists. It is used extensively to treat fruit trees to insure perfect fruit. For additional information write.

5-pound lots or less, 75c per pound; for larger quantities write us.

TO BUY OR SELL.

The trade uses the columns of The Review for every purpose—they are as effective to buy as to sell. "If you don't see what you want, ask for it." A well known concern did, with this result:

Please cancel our Wanted ad, as our wants have been fully supplied.—The Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co., Cleveland, O., February 17, 1921.

Of course the sellers' view is more often expressed, like this:

Please discontinue the dracæna and fern advertisements, as we are all sold out AGAIN.—L. J. Rowe, Titusville, Pa., February 15, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

TUPELO, MISS.

Hail destroyed practically all the 40,000 square feet of glass at the range of the Tupelo Floral Co. February 8, causing a damage of $20,000, on which there was no insurance. By working day and night the glass was replaced before freezing weather came, but all the stock was damaged badly and is being replaced as rapidly as possible. The north side of the house of Easter lilies was not damaged, and about half of them were saved. Though he has been working under glass for twenty years, this is the first time J. B. Mabry has encountered a storm heavy enough to break out glass.

Erie, Pa.—Fred C. Ewer, formerly located at 2659 Chest street, has moved his greenhouse to 138 West Twenty-Sixth street. He is also enlarging the house.

Waxahachie, Tex.—The Waxahachie Nursery Co., after twenty-five years in the nursery business here, is opening a flower department. A propagating house and a steel and concrete greenhouse, 30 x 100 feet, have been already completed. C. Cantu and W. P. Herring will have the management of the new department. J. R. Mayhew is president of the company.

TOTTY'S 'MUMS.
A familiar slogan for nearly twenty years. The stock we offer you today is absolutely free from the dreaded midge, having been propagated entirely from plants that have been grown outdoors all summer, lifted in the fall and housed solely for propagating purposes. It costs more to raise stock this way, but the results obtained more than justify the cost. The following varieties we can offer for immediate delivery in 2½-in. pots; planted out in a bench now and stopped, they will give you quantities of fine, clean cuttings during the next four months.
Remember we guarantee this stock is ABSOLUTELY CLEAN!

Mr. W. L. Ferguson, Smiths Falls, Ontario, under date of Dec. 2, 1919, writes us the following in regard to our petunias:
"Last year I purchased Petunia seed from you. I think every seed germinated and the blooms were the finest ever seen in this part of Canada. Only about 8 per cent of the plants could be classed as common. I want more of the same quality each year."
Mr. Rudolf Nagel, Lancaster, Pa., under date of Dec. 14, 1919, writes us:
"I had last year just a few of your petunias, but I am sure I could have sold thousands of them. They surely came up to your claim and way ahead of my expectation."

THE DIENER TOMATO.

Increase your tomato yield 100 per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30 to 40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.
This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.
As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 3 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, catsup and canning it is the best tomato in existence today.
The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.
It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line, and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.
Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED. Sample package, 25c; one-quarter of an acre package, 50c; one acre package, $1.50.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price 50c per package.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES

Phil said it hardly seemed enough. Raymond Brunswick showed that he was the better business man by remarking that the charge was modest.

Philip Freud arranged one of his striking windows with birds in cages to attract attention to bird seed at the store of the Henry F. Michell Co. Mr. Freud is an expert on birds of all kinds.

Thomas Meehan & Sons' nurseries were offered at public sale in an auction house recently by the executors under the will of the late Thomas Meehan. There being no bidders, the property was withdrawn.

Robert Craig is having a fine time in Porto Rico. He has a Ford to go from his quarters in San Juan to his farm. He dodges the Spanish cooking by messing at the Union Club, the only place in San Juan where the real thing can be had, not to mention pleasant company at the table. Phil.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society announces the following meetings, all to be held at the Masonic hall, Ardmore: Spring show of outdoor flowers, May 25; rose and peony show, June 7; sweet pea show, June 21; dahlia show, September 27. The annual exhibition and chrysanthemum show will be held November 7 to 9, at the Academy of Music, Broad and Locust streets.

PELARGONIUMS SCALDED.

We are sending you some Easter Greeting pelargonium leaves. We should like to know what is the trouble with them and also the proper remedy. The leaves have spots on them as though they had been scalded. Not many of the plants are affected, but we should like to halt the infection before it becomes worse. R.

The pelargonium leaves have the appearance of being scalded by the sun. The trouble is clearly not a fungus. We have never had this appear on our stock. We once had something similar, but attributed it to either too damp atmosphere at night or overfeeding. It did not spread and did but little harm to the plants affected.

Our experience is that pelargoniums should be in an airy, light place and should be watered only when they are certain to have dry foliage by nightfall. S. C. T.

GROWING TOMATOES.

I have one greenhouse, 18x110 feet, twelve feet to the ridge. I should like to grow some tomatoes. How far apart should I plant them and what temperature do they require? I should like to plant about March 15. Could I grow carnations, sweet peas and snapdragons in the same house? C. B.—Mass.

Tomatoes would do well in your house. Prepare the soil well and plant sixteen to eighteen inches apart each way and train the plants to strings erect. Comet is a good forcing variety, as is Victory. A temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night suits tomatoes and you should keep the atmosphere dry, just the reverse of cucumbers. You will find tomatoes a profitable late spring and summer crop and you are near a splendid market for all you can produce. Carnations, sweet peas and snapdragons will do well in the same house. Give the snapdragons the cooler end of the house. C. W.

A Full Width Opening and a Tight Close-Down

Wolf Ventilating Apparatus will open a series of sash up to 350 feet in length—from one operating station—using only 1-inch single strength pipe shafting—without variation in width of opening anywhere along the line. And it will pull every sash down snug and tight on the close-down.

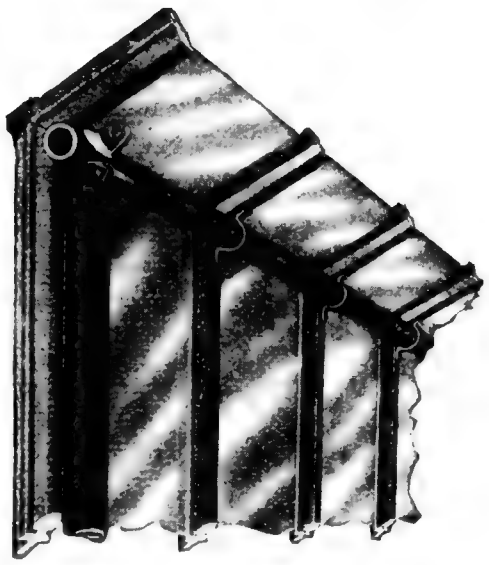
—this enables you to put your operating stations at the most convenient points.

—it gives uniform ventilation and makes a neat appearing greenhouse.

—it effects a material saving in the cost of pipe for shafting.

Wolf Ventilating Apparatus

can now be supplied promptly anywhere in the United States. We have acquired Wolf patents and equipped a new factory to produce Wolf ventilating machines solely. We are prepared to give you prompt service.



Write us for list of prominent growers who are using Wolf machines exclusively. Also catalogue giving complete details.

CROSS SECTION.

We show here a cross section of a greenhouse which we call our "General Utility House" You can grow anything in it from radishes to orchids. Of course if you are going in for a specialty crop such as roses or carnations exclusively we would not recommend this width, but for general purposes, as, for instance, in connection with a retail store, you will find this a handy and economical greenhouse.

Greenhouse Builders

The Things Up In the Air That Keep It Up In the Air

Sleight-of-hand performers seemingly have a way of keeping things up in the air, without anything but the air to keep them up.

When it comes to greenhouse building, however, we are frank to admit that we have to put up a lot of things to keep it put up.

Columns and trusses, for example.

They are designed on scientific lines modified by years of experience.

Go into one of our houses if possible and see how the sunlight streams in. You will marvel at the construction and almost believe that some sleight-of-hand is being used to hold the house up.

A glance at the illustration will convey to you what we mean.

Lord & Burnham houses are prize winners, both as to longevity, growing qualities and minimum of upkeep.

Lord & Burnham houses are the pride of all who have them.

A Lord & Burnham greenhouse is the goal for which every grower who already hasn't one, aims.

Business all over the country is improving. Improve with it.

If you haven't a Lord & Burnham house, get one.

If you already have one, get another.

If you want to know more, we have a lot more to tell.

Say when and where, and we'll be there.

We are going to have our usual attractive Exhibit at the Flower Show.
As you know, a call from you will be most welcome, and that we will be glad to have you avail yourself of any service that we can render.

LILIES
For Your Easter Use

Draw your Lilies from what undoubtedly is the LARGEST AND FINEST SUPPLY IN AMERICA

In figuring on the Lilies you can use this Easter, consider several factors—remember that a tremendous demand is assured, at good prices, giving a chance for nice profits for retailers who provide the stock and facilities to meet the demand. Remember, also, that Lilies will be of old-time quality. The bulbs imported last year cost more but were of better quality than in recent years. Aming's Lilies, forced from large size, selected bulbs, will be of quality equal to any ever seen in the market. They will sell easily to your customers and will give unqualified satisfaction. We offer you any part of

100,000 CUT LILIES for EASTER

Packed in wood boxes, 100 or 200 to the box

SELECTED GRADE Best and Longest		AVERAGE GRADE Medium Stems
Per 100	$ 25.00	Per 100	$ 20.00
Per 1000	250.00	Per 1000	200.00

Bear in mind that the total number of Lily bulbs imported last fall was not over one-half what America received before the war. Consider how greatly demand has increased. A shortage of Lilies is certain—but YOU can assure YOUR supply by ordering today.

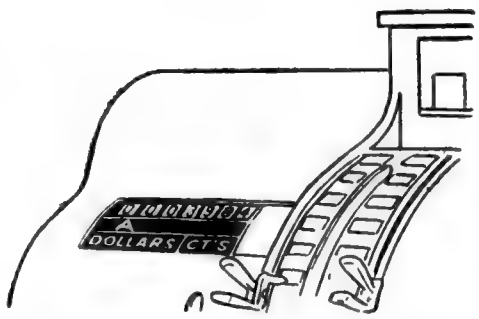
The record of each clerk

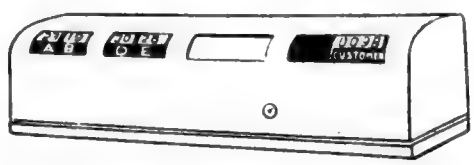
An up-to-date Cash Register shows you exactly what each one of your clerks does every day. Adding counters on the register tell:

① How many customers each clerk waited on.



② The total amount of each clerk's sales.

These daily records show you which clerks are most industrious, which clerks sell the most goods, which clerks are most accurate.



They enable you to fix wages on actual selling ability.

They give you the figures needed for a bonus or profit-sharing system.

These clerks' records, together with the many other printed and added records made by an up-to-date National Cash Register, enable you to control your business.

This adding counter, at the left side of the register, shows that Clerk A took in $39.84 during the day. Similar counters show what the other clerks took in.

These adding counters, at the front of the register just above the cash drawers, show how many customers each clerk waited on, and the total number of customers.

We make cash registers for every line of business. Priced $75 and up.

ALEXANDER'S DAHLIAS

FIELD-GROWN ROOTS

For Florists and Seedsmen

The popularity of the Dahlia is steadily on the increase and you should try these specially selected cut-flower varieties offered below:

FRANK A. WALKER (New Decorative Dahlia). A charming shade of lavender-pink, with long stiff stems. Produces its flowers in abundance; an exceptionally early bloomer. Good divisions $3.50 per dozen, $25.00 per 100.

MADONNA (New Peony-flowered Dahlia). A very beautiful white, very slightly tinted with a most delicate shade of lavender-pink. The touch of color adds greatly, rather than detracts from its value, especially when made up in floral work. The form of the flower is perfectly original, each petal curling and twisting in a very pleasing manner. An excellent cut-flower variety. Strong divisions $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100.

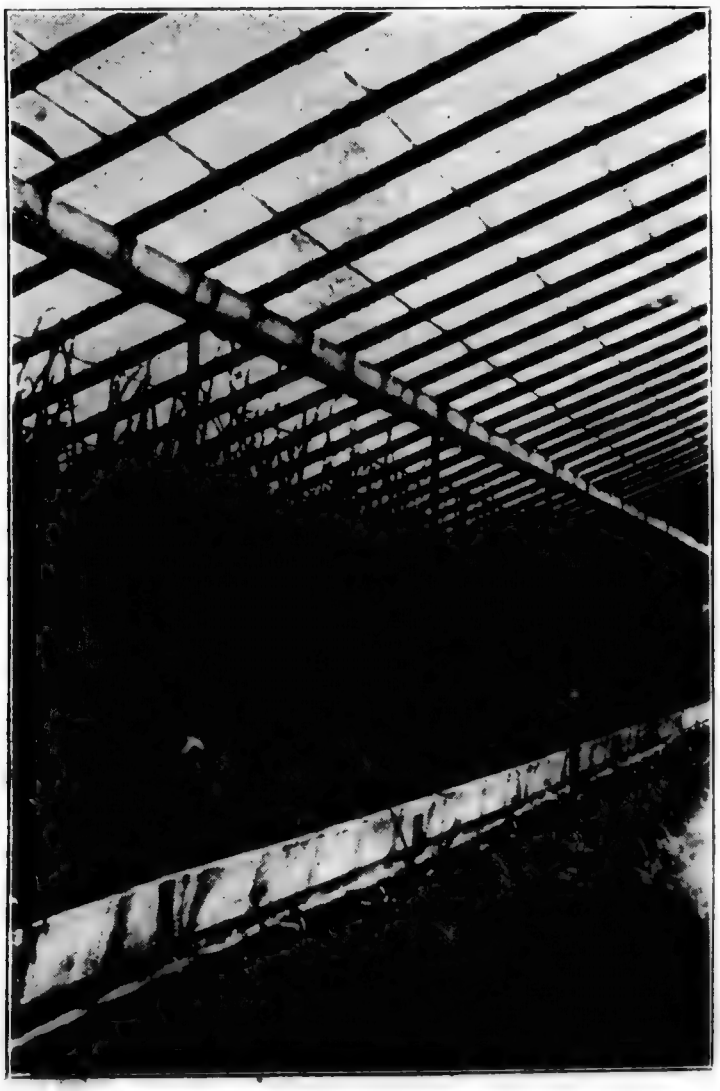
MAUDE ADAMS (New Show Dahlia). A pure snowy white, very daintily overlaid and suffused the sweetest shade of rose-pink imaginable. It is the best of my introductions for florists' use. "Maude Adams" is the most prolific Dahlia of its color, being more than twice as free-flowering as either "Nymphaea" or "Sylvia." It has good stems and is an early Dahlia to blossom, continuing throughout the entire season. It has the necessary features that make it stand shipping well, and makes up good in all kinds of work. It has already been tested out in all parts of the country, Raymond Champe of Michigan finding it his best commercial variety. I can furnish strong divisions at $3.50 per dozen, $20.00 per 100.

MINA BURGLE (Decorative Dahlia). The finest scarlet Dahlia to my knowledge. Flowers of large size, produced in quantity, on long, wiry stems, well above the foliage. Good divisions $1.50 per dozen, $12.00 per 100.

BIANCA. A new Hybrid Cactus Dahlia of large size and splendid form. Coloring is a beautiful rose-lilac with white shadings and blooms are held perfectly erect on very long, stiff stems. $5.00 per dozen, $40.00 per 100.

LATONA. An unusual blending of buff and yellow shades, giving a total effect of the Autumn tint that has become so popular. The type is Peony-Decorative, with long petals and nearly full to the center. Fine stems and free-flowering. $5.00 per dozen, $35.00 per 100.

Frank A. Walker
$25.00 per 100



If you are interested in cut-flower varieties, I will be pleased to recommend you the best varieties in the colors you want, and will give your communication the benefit of my twenty-six years as a Dahlia Specialist.

MY TRADE LIST gives complete descriptions and prices of over 300 of the most up-to-date Dahlias in the world, and is mailed free. Write for it now.

LILYWHITE

The Most Valuable Gladiolus Ever Sold in America

PURE AS THE LILY! WHITE AS THE SNOW! The long desired spotless white Gladiolus that will bloom well without special care, vigorous in growth and extremely early (flowering a full week ahead of all other white varieties in our gardens). LILYWHITE is an ideal forcing variety and sure blooming sort. With a stronger constitution than any other pure white Gladiolus, absolutely healthy, and a profuse yielder of bulblets, Lilywhite stands in a class by itself. The blossoms are of lovely form, placed nicely on straight tall spikes, and are of good size and perfect Milk White color, large bulbs opening from six to eight flowers at once. Before the stock of this grand variety was purchased by me it was subjected to two seasons' exhaustive tests on light, medium and heavy soils.

Successive plantings were made up to the 4th of July and in all cases results were most gratifying.

Bulblets planted in a dry state germinated as freely as those soaked in lukewarm water.

Flower spikes were uniformly straight, and held their shape and color through a spell of dry, hot weather with burning southerly breeze, that wilted and streaked other varieties badly.

We then purchased the main stock from Mr. Kunderd, paying the largest sum for a single variety of Gladiolus ever sold in America—viz., $3,000.00 for two barrels of stock, all sizes and bulblets—considering Lilywhite the finest florists' variety we had seen in twelve years' experience as a Gladiolus specialist.

A well known nurseryman writes of his trial lot: "Lilywhite is blooming and I feel like throwing out my other whites."

Awarded First Prize, New York Horticultural Society, 1918; First Class Certificate of Merit, Massachusetts Horticultural Society, 1917, and First Prize for best white at the big Boston show last August, 1920.

Extract Florists' Review, Aug. 16, 1917—"A. E. Kunderd showed the fine white Gladiolus Lilywhite, grown by H. E. Meader, which received an award of merit."

Horticulture, Aug. 18, 1917—"Lilywhite made a very favorable impression, a very good spike and flower showing much commercial promise."

Boston Transcript—"Lilywhite is probably the clearest variety of its kind ever shown."

Growers of experience say that Lilywhite will eventually take its place as the standard white Gladiolus. It has no rival.

Read the following unsolicited testimonials selected from the many received from those who have grown trial lots or inspected Lilywhite growing in the field, also from up-to-date florists who find the blooms popular.

George Wolfrum, Sunnyside Floral Gardens, Berlin, N. Y.—"Lilywhite is very handsome; it is a fine gladiolus in every way."

E. M. Sanford, Gladiolus Grower, Madison, N. J.—"Lilywhite is certainly a wonderful flower. The bulblets look as if every one had sprouted."

J. K. Alexander, "The Dahlia King," the largest grower of dahlias in the world.—"Lilywhite is the best florists' white; it is simply great."

Homer F. Chase, Gladiolus Specialist, Wilton, N. H.—"Lilywhite looks wonderfully healthy in growth and the bulblets all seem to have germinated."

Huff, the Florist, Inc., Sanford, Me.—"Lilywhite suits me. It is a fine florist variety."

J. O. Elwell, Florist, Kennebunk, Me.—"The Lilywhite blooms are elegant. Send more of that kind."

A. E. Kunderd, the originator of Lilywhite and of many other world-famous gladioli, the new race of ruffled sorts, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Myrtle, Glory, etc., says: "Lilywhite is, perhaps, the best florists' variety I ever sent out. An even better forcer than Myrtle."

Up-to-date florists will obtain a start in this magnificent gladiolus, which, as Mr. Kunderd says, will be grown by the millions as soon as its possibilities become generally known.

WERTHEIMER BROTHERS

THE NATIONAL FLORAL RIBBON HOUSE
Owners and Operators of WERBRO RIBBON MFG. CO.
PATERSON, N. J. BATH, PA.
Office and Salesrooms: 17-25 East 24th Street, NEW YORK

Most fortunate among retail lines at present, florists have fared well at holidays this year. Easter promises good business for those who go after it.

ANOTHER Easter is at hand. In florists' stores in small towns and big cities, in the immense structures of steel and glass where plants and cut stock come from, in the big supply houses, everywhere in trade circles is a kind of half-doubting realization that it's time to be up and doing. And it is time. You, Mr. Pessimist, you don't think it is worth while this Easter, for this Easter, you say, is going to be such a poor one. You think there won't be much stock, and you think high prices will scare off what little demand hard times have allowed to exist, and you think numerous disastrous things. But, if you reflect, you may be able to remember that they were just about the same disastrous things you thought at Easter ten years ago, and every year since.

Bad Guesses.

You said them about Christmas, 1920. Christmas, 1920, was the best Christmas in the history of the trade, for it passed the record year of 1919. You gloomed about New Year's, in spite of the amazing prosperity of one week before. New Year's day broke another record. Still undefeated, you suggested that St. Valentine's day would be a "fizz." It wasn't. You were wrong; quite wrong. No one fails to admire your pluck in persistently standing by your guns of pessimism, but when you start worrying the trade from Cape Cod to California about how bad Easter is going to be—well, there may be a few florists who don't altogether share your fears. There are some, however, and the purpose of this article is to steal away your last followers. If you can be converted yourself, why, so much the better. You will be a happier man.

We can begin by saying that the Easter business will be exactly what the trade chooses to make of it. That's a bald statement, but when you think it over you'll see it's just about so. If the retailer buys plants and cut stock so sparingly that he has a poor window display, he is not going to attract much business. On the other hand, if he fills his store with so much stock that it seems to overflow, filling the windows and displaying attractive masses of bloom in every direction, the passer-by cannot help himself. He is almost dragged into the store by a force greater than his will power—the advertising power of flowers. That is a force that must be counted on. The first woman used it to attract the first man. It has never failed to attract, even in the present era, A. D. 1921.

Of course, if you buy all the flowers within sight you may not be able to sell them. That is one of the cases where a little bit of judgment may go a long way. But generally speaking, the retailer will get out of Easter in exact proportion to what he spends on it. Grant that, and you are forever after an optimist, because such a situation leaves no reason for worry. And it is the situation today.

There are three great factors which influence trade for better or for worse, demand, supply and the public pocketbook. In addition, there is one feature of the Easter trade, and that is when the holiday occurs, whether early or late. The date of Easter affects the stock available.

Trade Factors.

Given these four items and, with the records of past years to draw from, an estimate might be formed of the probabilities for 1921.

Easter, 1918, was a poor day for the trade. There was small demand and the country was completing its first year of war. In 1919 Easter was almost a month later and a large demand met with small supply. It was a record year, but beaten by 1920, when both demand and supply were good and money easy, with the date intermediate, April 4.

This year Easter comes March 27, an early date, but as if to make up for it, the winter has been a mild one and the public is quite ready to think of spring, in view of the warm weather of February. So that the earliness of the holiday is offset completely by the prospects of an early spring.

Demand this year has been passive, but that it is in existence can readily be shown by reference to the successful holidays the trade has just put behind it. It is there, if the retailer will go and get it. It can be got; it has been got; and it will be got, by the same men who have made banner sales already in 1921.

1921 Will Reward Fighters.

Price influences demand. Prices this year are lower than they were last year. The effect will certainly not be detrimental to good business. It is another reason to hope for bigger and better business. The margin of profit to the retailer and grower may be a trifle less than last year's, but this will be more than made up if the sales exceed last year's in the same proportion that they did at Christmas and New Year's.

Supply this year is something which cannot be determined until the actual week of the holiday, but in most markets all indications are for a large supply of plants. These are the big sellers at Easter. Cut flowers, so far, have shown no signs of poor Easter crops.

The one universal grievance of "tight money" seems to have less influence on florists than upon other businesses. In spite of this situation, splendid holiday sales have been achieved so far in 1921, and why should the coming one be any exception to a rule so established? Moreover, spring always brings a period of prosperity and already a number of factories are going into operation again and the situation is said to be clearing.

There do not seem to be any well founded grounds for pessimism. The only difference between 1921 and 1920 is one of method. Last year the retailers were order-takers. This year they must be salesmen in order to gain their goal. What could be more appropriate as a motto for florists than the slogan adopted this year by commercial institutions country-wide, "1921 Will Reward Fighters"?

EASTER ADVERTISING.

Printers' Ink a Necessity.

The feeling in the retail trade is general that this Easter is going to be a good one—for those who make it so. The difference from last year's active demand is well known and appreciated in every part of the United States. The only question is how to make it a good Easter.

Of course, it is not different from any other problem for disposing of stock. There are two ways which instantly recommend themselves to the practical mind of the florist. One is advertising by means of printers' ink and the other is by window display. Advertising is a big word; bigger than it looks. Moreover, it has been gone into and explored to the last roots; books have been written about it by the hundred, and, altogether, the various ways of advertising are well known in the trade.

But old as is advertising, the law of supply and demand is older. If the trade is going to have large stocks on hand for Easter, florists must get busy and create a demand. The demand is there, but it has to be dragged in, instead of being let in. Easter is one holiday when newspaper advertising, to mention one form, brings results. Plants are appropriate for Easter day. Everyone realizes this fact. But unless the public is regularly reminded what is to be had, it is sure to forget to buy.

Drop in Prices.

The idea to impress on the public is that plants are cheaper than last year, by a considerable percentage. That one idea alone, if impressed on the buying public in a convincing manner, would probably interest enough demand to make Easter of 1921 equal in total sales the record of last year.

But it is one thing to realize that a little advertising will go a long way and it is quite another thing to get the point that the public has forgotten all about last Easter long ago and has to be told about it all over again. If you can tell about it in a different way you stand to make more impression than by using the old methods, because people are always looking out for something new.

This year, of all years, is going to be the one time when advertising is more than a benefit. It is a necessity. Competitive advertising in all trades is expected as a matter of course, but this year will see competition keener than ever.

The need is apparent; the means are at hand. Florists everywhere are making plans for big Easter business. With such a spirit prevailing, there is no doubt as to the outcome. Advertising ideas that have proved successful in the past will be the ones to use this Easter. Only one thing need be emphasized here—the necessity for strong advertising effort.

USE THE WINDOW.

Flowers Advertise Themselves.

If you could get something for nothing, would you take it? It sounds self-evident, but, nevertheless, many retailers are failing to do so today. Advertising in newspapers, by circulars or by posters costs money, much money. If you could get advertising for nothing, provided it was effective, wouldn't that be an advantage?

No words ever written on paper or ever conceived by man could convey to the prospective customer the value, usefulness and beauty of flowers and plants for Easter as could the very blooms themselves. Instead of paying the advertising man to tell the public about flowers, why not make the flowers say it themselves? When you have got thus far you will see that the whole thing in a nutshell is to use your windows for display—effective display. Of course, you always have done this and you expect to keep on doing it, but think it over. Are you making the flowers talk as convincingly as they can?

When a speaker gets on the platform to give an address he finds everything in his favor. The audience is attentive; the room he speaks in has been designed to facilitate acoustics; his speech is already prepared and the subject announced, and a glass of water is on the table in case his voice becomes hoarse. If such conditions help this speaker, why shouldn't they help your speakers, the Easter blooms?

Getting the Audience.

Looking at it from an outsider's point of view, there is your shop, and over here are the customers. The first point is to attract them. After that, get them interested. Something unusual is nearly always necessary for this, but it should be remembered that the attraction itself is designed to call the public attention, not to sell flowers, so that it must not supersede the more important display.

In the present scarcity of azaleas, several stores have found that an exhibit of one or two pots of this plant will interest passers-by. This would apply to any rare plant or flower. Even an elaborately arranged window will attract interest by its beauty. A window display in a florist's store is sure to attract more attention than that in nearly any other store, by reason of the stock that is sold there, flowers.

Next on the program is to consider the floral acoustics. Yes, it may sound strange, but if flowers speak it is only natural that the science of acoustics must be of benefit in carrying the message. To be practical, is the plate-glass clean and polished so brightly for the Easter display that it is almost invisible? It should be. Is the woodwork of the display window newly painted and decorated? That would help. How about the lighting? If the store is a dark one, lights should be well placed and brilliant. Everything must be spotless, because you are selling the cleanest and purest of all products marketed in the world.

Instead of one voice, your display will have many voices. They must not conflict, or the audience will not be able to distinguish the message clearly. Pink roses and red carnations are not an attractive combination. The simple rules of harmonizing colors must be observed in a florist's store. A jumbled mass of potted plants of all varieties and colors may attract attention, but if order were put into such a chaos, the results in increased sales would be apparent at the close of the day's selling. All question of arrangement, naturally, is a matter of taste. For such stores as already pay attention to designing the window display no suggestions are necessary. But for those who merely use the window as extra storage room for Easter stock, it might be well to suggest that some thought, at least, be given to the arrangement and probable effect.

What Will They Say?

The speaker on the platform has had his subject announced and his speech is prepared. What are your flowers going to say? Of course, each particular flower has a meaning, but at Easter the florist puts in what stock he finds available and good. Certain varieties may be in fine shape one year and less so the next. So if the general idea of colors be worked out, the effect will be almost as accurate and the principle is more easily acted upon.

The color scheme must be arranged with two objects in mind. It must attract an audience and it must tell the audience of the beauty and necessity of flowers. Red is a never-failing "come here" signal and this color is available in tulips, roses and many other potted plants and cut flowers for the holiday. White is, of course, the easiest color to feature. Contrasting white with brighter colors nearly always gives a harmonious effect.

A little inventory of your stock before arranging the display will soon bring to light enough range of color to work on and, bearing in mind the fact that the window must both attract and advertise, the designer cannot go far wrong in his arrangements. Too much stock in the window, although this may be thought impossible, is liable to surfeit the eye and can easily be avoided by moving the bulk of the stock back a few feet, leaving a space in which to display choice blooms and colors. The mass of pots and blooms forms a splendid background and one which does not detract from the simplicity or elaborateness, as the case may be, of the actual display.

But the speaker has had his subject announced, you say. Quite so, and so have the flowers. Everyone knows it is Easter. The Easter lily itself, pure, graceful and distinctive, speaks of Easter in all languages and a vase of these lilies in a prominent position will announce the subject of the floral advertisement as aptly as the bold headlines of a newspaper advertisement.

Flowers and plants need water just as much as the speaker. They must be well cared for and be good stock to advertise themselves. Every florist has his own ideas. If he didn't, he wouldn't successful holidays the trade has just put behind it. It is there, if the retailer will go and get it. It can be got; it has been got; and it will be got, by the same men who have made banner sales already in 1921.

1921 Will Reward Fighters.

Price influences demand. Prices this year are lower than they were last year. The effect will certainly not be detrimental to good business. It is another reason to hope for bigger and better business. The margin of profit to the retailer and grower may be a trifle less than last year's, but this will be more than made up if the sales exceed last year's in the same proportion that they did at Christmas and New Year's.

Supply this year is something which cannot be determined until the actual week of the holiday, but in most markets all indications are for a large supply of plants. These are the big sellers at Easter. Cut flowers, so far, have shown no signs of poor Easter crops.

The one universal grievance of "tight money" seems to have less influence on florists than upon other businesses. In spite of this situation, splendid holiday sales have been achieved so far in 1921, and why should the coming one be any exception to a rule so established? Moreover, spring always brings a period of prosperity and already a number of factories are going into operation again and the situation is said to be clearing.

There do not seem to be any well founded grounds for pessimism. The only difference between 1921 and 1920 is one of method. Last year the retailers were order-takers. This year they must be salesmen in order to gain their goal. What could be more appropriate as a motto for florists than the slogan adopted this year by commercial institutions country-wide, "1921 Will Reward Fighters"?

EASTER ADVERTISING.

Printers' Ink a Necessity.

The feeling in the retail trade is general that this Easter is going to be a good one—for those who make it so. The difference from last year's active demand is well known and appreciated in every part of the United States. The only question is how to make it a good Easter.

Of course, it is not different from any other problem for disposing of stock. There are two ways which instantly recommend themselves to the practical mind of the florist. One is advertising by means of printers' ink and the other is by window display. Advertising is a big word; bigger than it looks. Moreover, it has been gone into and explored to the last roots; books have been written about it by the hundred, and, altogether, the various ways of advertising are well known in the trade.

DATE OF EASTER.

Not until 1932 will Easter again fall so early as it does this year. Then it will be on the same date, March 27. Not until 1929 will Easter again occur in March. In that year it will be March 31. During the next five years it will range between the first day and the twentieth of April. Next year it is comparatively late. The dates for the next five years are:

1922	April 16
1923	April 1
1924	April 20
1925	April 12
1926	April 4

KEEP BEGONIAS QUITE DRY.

We have a number of Cincinnati begonias and should like to know how to keep them through the summer months. We buy the plants in the fall and those that are not sold usually die, and as we have a quantity on hand at the present time, we should like to know something about their care.

M. C. J.—Ore.

If these plants are properly cared for they will make fine specimens the second year. Great care should be taken in watering. Do not give them too much, yet they should not be allowed to become bone-dry. These flowers are issues of Begonia socotrana, and require a short period of rest. They should be kept moderately dry, but not allowed to dry out entirely. Allow the plants to keep all the foliage possible. Do not cut the plants back before the young plants start to grow out strongly from the base. A temperature of about 58 degrees to 60 degrees should be kept at night. We prefer, however, to grow our plants from leaf cuttings propagated in November of the previous year. J. A. P.

DAISIES FOR SPRING.

Please inform me as to the proper time for planting daisies, or Bellis perennis, so as to have transplanted seedlings for spring sales. Full information as to their character, kinds most popular and time of demand will be greatly appreciated. How much seed will be required for 50,000 seedlings?

H. J. P.—Ind.

You should sow two ounces of Bellis perennis to be sure of 50,000 seedlings, although you would probably get more than that number of seeds, as they are quite light. The best time to sow for spring sales is early in August, pricking off the seedlings into coldframes or in beds outdoors with a gentle slope, so that no water can stand on them, and when the ground is frozen hard mulch with leaves, straw, hay or pine needles. You could start the seed now under glass and the plants would bloom a little later than the fall-sown ones. C. W.

MITE AND MOISTURE.

I am sending under separate cover some leaves taken from our cyclamens and begonias. Can you tell me what the trouble is and what to do for it? These specimens are taken from the worst affected plants and all are not so bad. Although they are blooming fairly well, they are not doing so well as they should. They were grown in a temperature of about 60 degrees and have been sprayed and fumigated about once a week since the cold weather set in. W. H. H.—Ia.

The cyclamen foliage was badly frozen when received, but it showed indications of having been attacked by mite. For this there is no sure cure. Spraying with nicotine helps in some measure to check it. If your flowers were wholly or in large part deformed, it is either a case of mite or thrips, most probably the former. When mite attacks a batch of cyclamens they might as well be thrown away. Some of the best growers are sometimes hard hit in this way with large batches of plants. The condition of the begonia foliage is probably due to excess of moisture at the roots and on the foliage. Water carefully at this season; maintain a dry atmosphere, and when watering avoid any unnecessary dampening of the foliage. C. W.

FLOWERS FOR MAY BLOOMING.

I should like some advice as to flowers to plant for blooming in May. My houses are now planted to lettuce, which is doing well. H. K.—Wis.

I would suggest sowing seeds at once of giant ten weeks' stocks. These sell well for Memorial day, especially the bright shades. Also you might try giant white candytuft and Gypsophila elegans. If you plant bulbs of any of the popular gladioli, like America, Mrs. Francis King, mixed primulinus, Panama, Halley or Augusta, they will be on time. Also you could purchase small plants of antirrhinums from pots and get them in bloom the same time.

C. W.

Pittsburg, Kan.—J. [illegible] Steinhauser has gone on the road in the interest of his wholesale plant department, calling on southwestern buyers of Easter pot plants.

Wilmington, O.—George H. Moores states that at the funeral of C. E. Richards, a prominent architect at Columbus, O., there were 101 floral pieces with an estimated cost of $1,000.

Houston, Tex.—G. E. Franklin, who was formerly a member of the trade, but discontinued his business on account of the death of his wife, plans to reenter the business in this city. His former residence was at Wilton Junction, Ia.

Handley, Tex.—The Woods Floral Co., operating Flowerland, has two houses, 40x100 feet each, in sweet peas. The daily cut from these houses is 10,000 sprays. The weather has been too warm, and the vines will soon be gone, stated the manager of this firm.

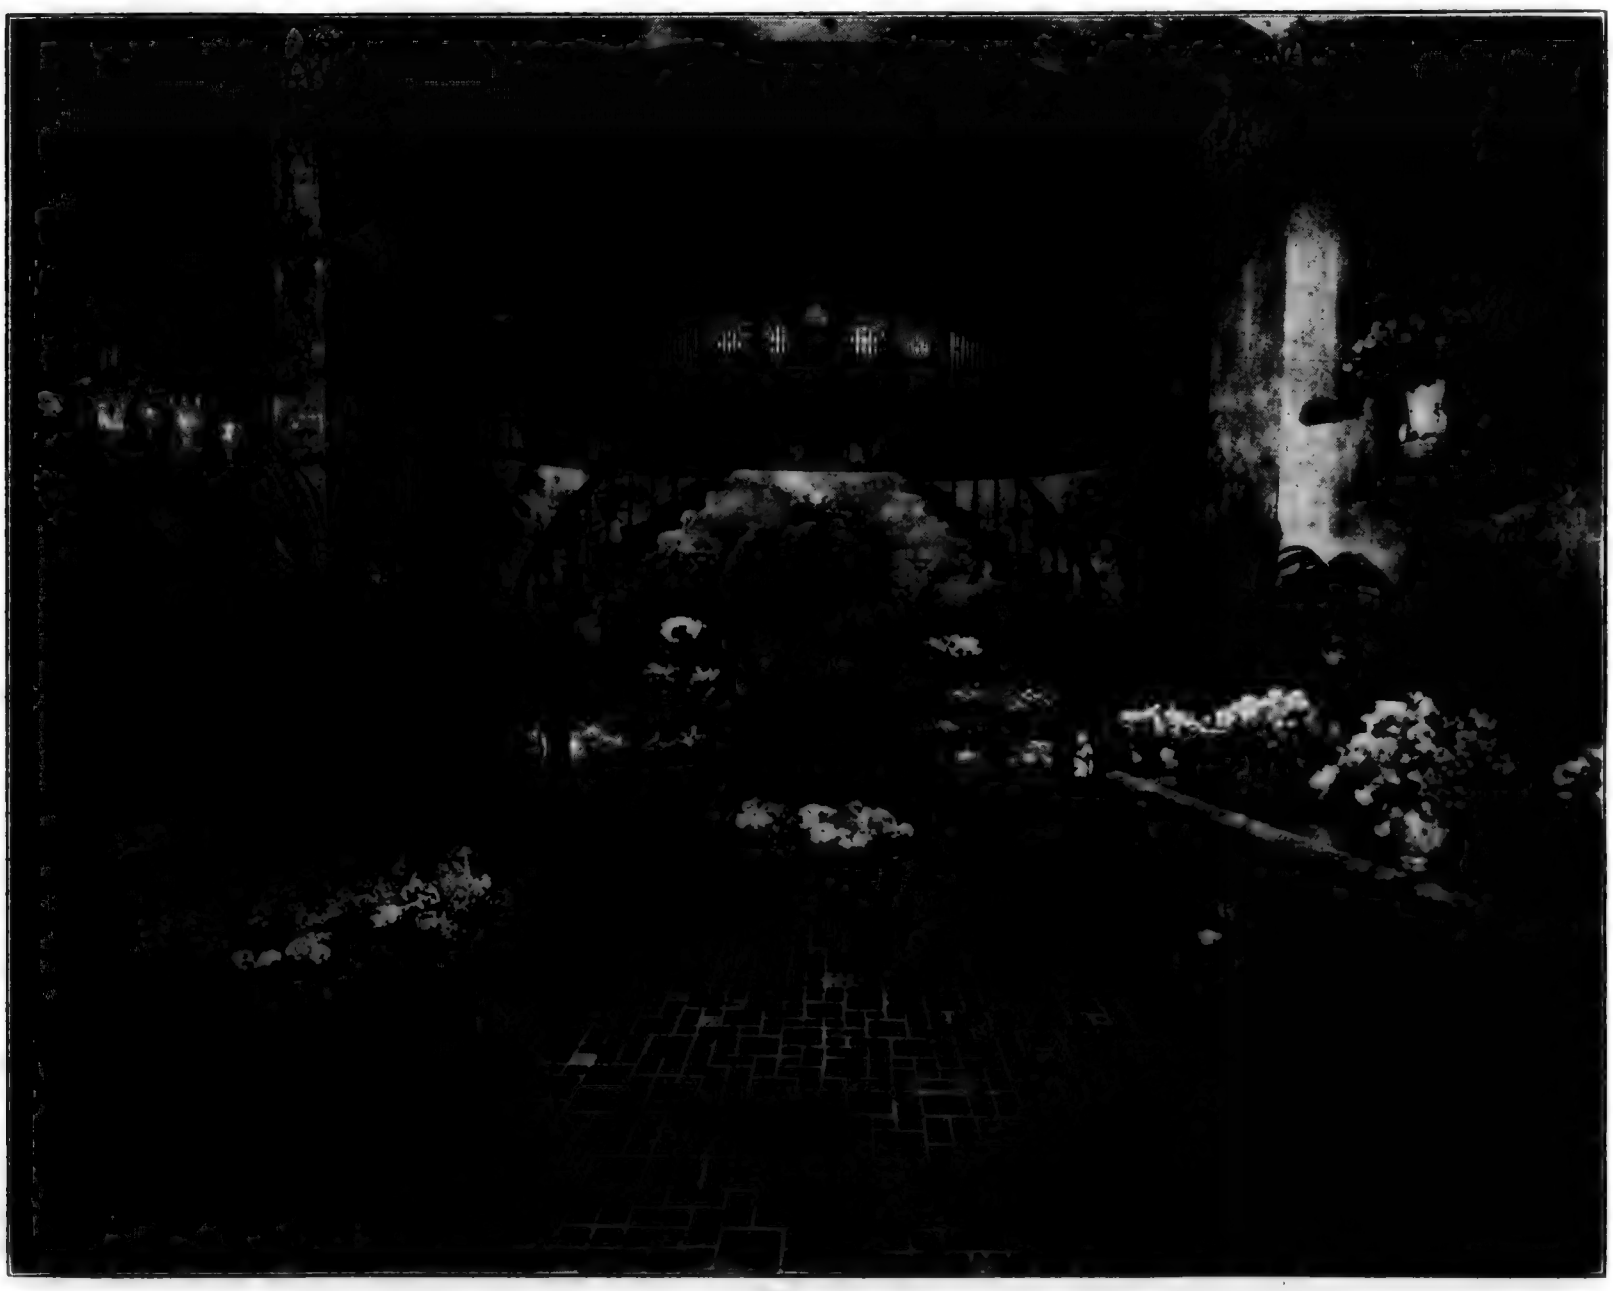
New Cleveland Store.

Unique, distinctive and beautiful in every feature, the new store of the Jones-Russell Co., 1430 Euclid avenue, in the Hanna building, Cleveland, O., stands as something apart from the ordinary place of business of a vender of blooms. The high, vaulted ceiling and the rough plaster walls and oak and iron furnishings give it the effect of a natural grotto. Yet, as the illustrations on this and following pages shown, the practical necessities of display space, refrigerator show cases, cashier's desk and office have not been sacrified.

At the formal opening of this unusual store, February 26, nearly 2,000 people attended and over 1,000 received a bunch of violets.

When Harry B. Jones and Charles E. Russell decided a year ago to move to the new location, they decided also to create a flower store which would be admittedly far beyond any other florists' establishment that they knew of. Instead of engaging an architect of the ordinary type, Mr. Jones and Mr. Russell called in an artist who has specialized on interior decoration.

Adapted to Flowers.



It was agreed that the store interior should be both artistically beautiful, and in some degree suggestive of the kind of business to be conducted. As flowers normally grow outdoors, it was felt that a tile floor, antique plaster walls, wrought-iron balusters and lamps and rough-hewn oak woodwork carried the proper suggestion of outdoors. At the same time every detail of the store is consistent; there are no smooth, glossy surfaces, no severely straight lines.

The tile floor is deep brown with spots of bright blue, cerise, vivid green and here and there a molded pattern tile. The effect is subdued, yet colorful as a beautiful rug.

The illustrations, of course, cannot convey the beauty of the antique plaster walls and ceilings or the tile floor. The walls are finished in genuine fresco color, applied to the wet plaster exactly as it was done in medieval Italy. The side walls are of light sienna with an undertone of lavender. The ceiling is blue with an undertone of green and brown.

The hanging lamps and the wall lamps are of wrought iron, with mica instead of glass. The writing desk of carved oak and the cashier's desk of carved oak and plaster, with decorative tile inset, form two important decorative units. The wall surfaces are broken up by hewn oak brackets and shelves. The refrigerator door frames and the frame of the large mirror are of wrought iron. So also are the baluster and mezzanine rail. Through the carved oak arch at the rear there is access to an upstairs worktable and to the basement workroom and storeroom.

The Jones-Russell is conceded to be the most beautiful store of any kind in Cleveland. Comment upon it has been highly flattering and many people have said that there is no question that the store does carry out the promise made when it was announced, months ago,

The ceiling is blue with an undertone of green and brown.

The hanging lamps and the wall lamps are of wrought iron, with mica instead of glass. The writing desk of carved oak and the cashier's desk of carved oak and plaster, with decorative tile inset, form two important decorative units. The wall surfaces are broken up by hewn oak brackets and shelves. The refrigerator door frames and the frame of the large mirror are of wrought iron. So also are the baluster and mezzanine rail. Through the carved oak arch at the rear there is access to an upstairs worktable and to the basement workroom and storeroom.

The Jones-Russell is conceded to be the most beautiful store of any kind in Cleveland. Comment upon it has been highly flattering and many people have said that there is no question that the store does carry out the promise made when it was announced, months ago.

Cleveland Says, Not Without Reason, This Is the Most Beautiful Flower Store in America.

Flowers Are the Only Things Conspicuous in This Store.

that it would be the "most beautiful flower store in America."

An invitation is extended by the Jones-Russell Co. to florists visiting Cleveland to visit the place and see for themselves.

SPRING SHOWS ARE HERE.

The time again is here when the florist can, by a profusion of bulbous stock and his staple goods, stage a flower show in his own shop that will draw the notice and appreciation of the public. The spring show is a means of gaining new patrons and renewing the interest of old ones that commends itself to wide-awake florists who are looking for business and not waiting for business to look for them. One of this sort is Fred C. Weber, whose store at 4326 Olive street, St. Louis, was opened for public inspection March 3 and 4. A 3-column advertisement in the daily newspapers gave widespread notice to the event. It drew large numbers. Souvenirs were given the ladies who attended. Altogether Mr. Weber considers the event a most successful one, and his efforts to draw the patronage of more and more St. Louisans to the florists' trade are felt in that center.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IS COMING.

Among the holidays that make money for florists is St. Patrick's day, March 17. Although it is not usually a record-breaker so far as the value of sales is concerned, the business it brings is welcome.

The opinion of various members of the trade is diversified in regard to the artistic value of green-dyed flowers. In addition to that item, there are shamrock plants and other green goods that can be prepared and made salable for that day.

The Reliance Seed Co., of Ironton, O., has made a suggestion which might prove to be a winner for this occasion. "We are planning for St. Patrick's day an Irish bouquet of white and yellow flowers with green foliage, the colors of the Irish republic, instead of the time-honored green carnations. We believe that in Irish sections this combination will stimulate the sale of flowers."

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Considerable improvement was noted in the market last week in so far as the demand was concerned, and Saturday's business was more in keeping with that of the Saturdays of past seasons. There was little or no increase in the supply, but sales were active and early clearances possible. It is worthy of notice that the change in market conditions was concurrent with the opening of the advertising campaign of the Allied Florists' Association, which entailed the use of seven dailies during three days. There was no noticeable demand for flowers for inauguration day at Washington, although it is reported that immense quantities of flowers were used on that occasion.

Roses are plentiful and reasonable in price, and the quality of most of the arrivals is excellent. American Beauty continues in exceedingly short supply, arrivals clearing out quickly at the prices of last week for special grades. Brighter weather has brought along the crops of hybrid teas, and the market is well supplied with all the leading varieties in every grade. Columbia, Premier and Ophelia are in greatest demand, and the latter is, perhaps, in greatest quantity.

Carnations are in good supply, but the demand for them is active and Monday, March 7, the price range was $4 to $6 per hundred, with a penny or two more for flowers of selected quality.

The orchid supply continues on the bountiful side, with cattleyas particularly plentiful and moving slowly. Gardenias are in better supply and the quality of the top grade is especially good. Acacia is plentiful and the best moves at $1.50 per bunch.

The arrivals of bulbous stock are not so heavy as they have been, but the demand for such material is good and clearances are general. Tulips are a little off in quality.

Lilies are fairly plentiful, with the supply of formosums increasing. The supply of lilies of the valley is large, and flowers bring only $6 per hundred sprays for the top grade; much stock is seen with scant foliage. Sweet peas are in heavy supply and move slowly.

Miscellaneous flowers are strongly in evidence; the supply is large, but the movement of arrivals is fairly satisfactory. A quantity of potted bulbous stock is seen everywhere, sales of which seem to hang fire. Shrub flowers are plentiful and meet a small demand for decorative purposes. Pansies, wallflowers, myosotis, callas, bouvardia, calendulas, stocks and primroses form the bulk of the offerings.

Various Notes.

The initial advertising of the Allied Florists' Trade Association appeared in seven New York dailies last week and will be followed by other advertising shortly. The advertisements were uniform in size, two columns wide by six inches deep, and appeared in the different papers on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The advertising was placed by Korbel & Colwell, under the direction of the advertising committee, composed of A. M. Henshaw, F. H. Traendly, F. R. Pierson, Wm. A. Rodman, Wm. Badgley, Aubrey Nash and John Young.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, March 14, the evening of the opening day of the eighth international flower show, in the club's rooms, at 25 West Thirty-ninth street. The rooms have been reëngaged for another season. As most of the members will want to attend the show that evening, very little business is down on the notice calling the meeting, and exhibits of flowers and plants will be dispensed with on this occasion. Election of new members and action on the proposed budget for 1921 will chiefly occupy the attention of the meeting. President Hendrickson has intimated that the May meeting will be "New Jersey night," when it is expected that all in the trade in that part of New Jersey coming within the suburban district of the city of New York will be induced to attend. A New Jersey committee under the chairmanship of Joseph A. Manda is to be appointed to make arrangements for this night. The club's annual dinner will be held at the Hotel Biltmore, Wednesday evening, March 16, at which the attendance promises to be large. Over 200 tickets have already been disposed of, but it is expected that 400 or more seats will be reserved by the date of the affair. Dancing and other entertainment will be features of the function. Tickets may be had of the chairman of the committee, Roman J. Irwin, 43 West Eighteenth street. The trade is reminded that trade tickets for the show are supplied only upon application at the office of the International Exposition Co., Grand Central Palace, 50 cents each in quantities of fifty to 100, and 40 cents in blocks of 100 or more, these prices including the war tax. Manager Herrington is jubilant over the prospects for the success of the show. Already space in the competitive section has been wholly taken up on the main floor, and space on the second floor previously reserved for commercial exhibits has been encroached upon. For the first time in the history of these shows the exhibits of cut orchids necessarily must be staged upon the second floor, the group entries alone taking up the space on the main floor set apart for orchid exhibits. The entire show will have a different aspect this year in point of arrangement, and those who have heretofore complained of a sameness will have a pleasant surprise awaiting them. A new feature, not previously announced, will be a "wild garden," to be staged by Edward Gillett, of Southwick, Mass., the first garden of American wild flowers to be exhibited at a flower show in this country. There is little room for late comers in the trade section; in fact, none at all that will not be reserved. The committee is to be congratulated upon the conditions as they appear prior to the opening, the expense of the exposition being practically covered, irrespective of gate receipts.

Arthur Herrington, Madison, N. J., left Sunday night, March 6, for Pittsburgh, to deliver, on the following night, a lecture on "Helpful Suggestions for Amateurs" before the Women's Garden Club of Sewickley Valley.

Adolph LeMoult, the Bowery florist, has taken over the basement store at 53 West Twenty-eighth street, where he will conduct a wholesale and retail flower business, giving up the premises so long held by the LeMoult family on the Bowery.

AT CHAMP CLARK'S FUNERAL.

That the sending of flowers for funerals has not lost favor with the public was most eloquently expressed at the funeral of Champ Clark, ex-speaker of the House of Representatives, in Washington, D. C., last week.

Mr. Clark's death occurred March 3, just on the eve of inauguration. It seemed peculiarly significant, as it came just at the end of his many years of service in Congress. Mr. Clark was not reëlected last November, having gone down with the Republican landslide.

Owing to the prominent part which he has always taken in politics, before Congress, his loss was deeply felt. His body was placed in the chamber of the House of Representatives, where it lay in state for the eulogistic ceremonies which are accorded a man of his caliber. The bier was placed in front of the rostrum. Back of it was an arrangement of palms furnished by the United States Botanical Gardens. A casket cover made of roses, violets and orchids was thrown over the end of the casket.

A great many floral tributes were sent by officials, organizations and personal friends. The most pretentious piece was one sent by the Missouri delegation of Congress, a photograph of which is shown separately. This was made by Z. D. Blackistone, Inc., of Washington, D. C.

GLADIOLUS EXHIBITION.

The New England Gladiolus Society is completing plans for the second annual exhibition, which will be held in conjunction with the gladiolus exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., Saturday and Sunday, August 13 and 14.

The organization is directed by the following officers: President, Charles F. Fairbanks; vice-presidents, S. E. Spencer and John Zeestraten; treasurer, C. W. Brown; secretary, Robert R. Walker. The executive committee is composed of S. E. Spencer, Jelle Roos and A. L. Stephen. Robert W. Walker, B. J. Norley, Arthur Hans and Herbert W. Hayes are members of the exhibition committee. F. H. URBANA MEETING

ILLINOIS ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Officers Elected.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, March 8 and 9, drew a good many florists of the state to Urbana, where the floriculture courses of the state university and the experimental station were added attractions. A meeting of the executive committee was held Monday evening, March 7, when recommendations were approved for presentation to the meeting.

The opening session of the association was held Tuesday afternoon, at 2 p. m., when the following were elected officers:

President—Joseph Kohout, Libertyville.

Vice-president—G. W. Jacobs, Canton.

Secretary—Albert T. Hey, Maywood.

Treasurer—F. L. Washburn, Bloomington.

Opening Ceremonies.

Prof. J. C. Blair, head of the department of horticulture of the University of Illinois, made the address of welcome to the association. He emphasized the fact that it was an honor to the university and its staff to have the association at Urbana and he wished the association might meet two or three times each year at the university, so that the florists of the state might become familiar with problems there and the university might become acquainted with the florists. Prof. Blair stated that the parting of the ways between the university and the florists had arrived unless the legislature at Springfield should grant the university the desired increase in funds. The amount of money from the state is the same now as it was seven years ago and the number of students registered is double that of seven years ago. It is now impossible to hold the staff together as it should be on the same amount of money from the state. The department of horticulture needs an increase of 96 per cent this year from the legislature in order to allow the floriculture division to live up to what the florists expect of it.

President W. J. Hembreiker responded, indicating that the association understood the position of the university. He reviewed the life of the association during the past year and urged a flower show this coming season, as greenhouses are again on a prewar basis.

Executive Committee Recommendations.

Secretary Albert T. Hey with his report presented the following recommendations of the executive committee:

The executive committee recommends that all members in arrears for dues two years or more to this association be notified of their arrearage with a request for payment of the same, and if said arrearage is not paid within thirty days from date of notice, said member shall be dropped from the roll of membership in this association.

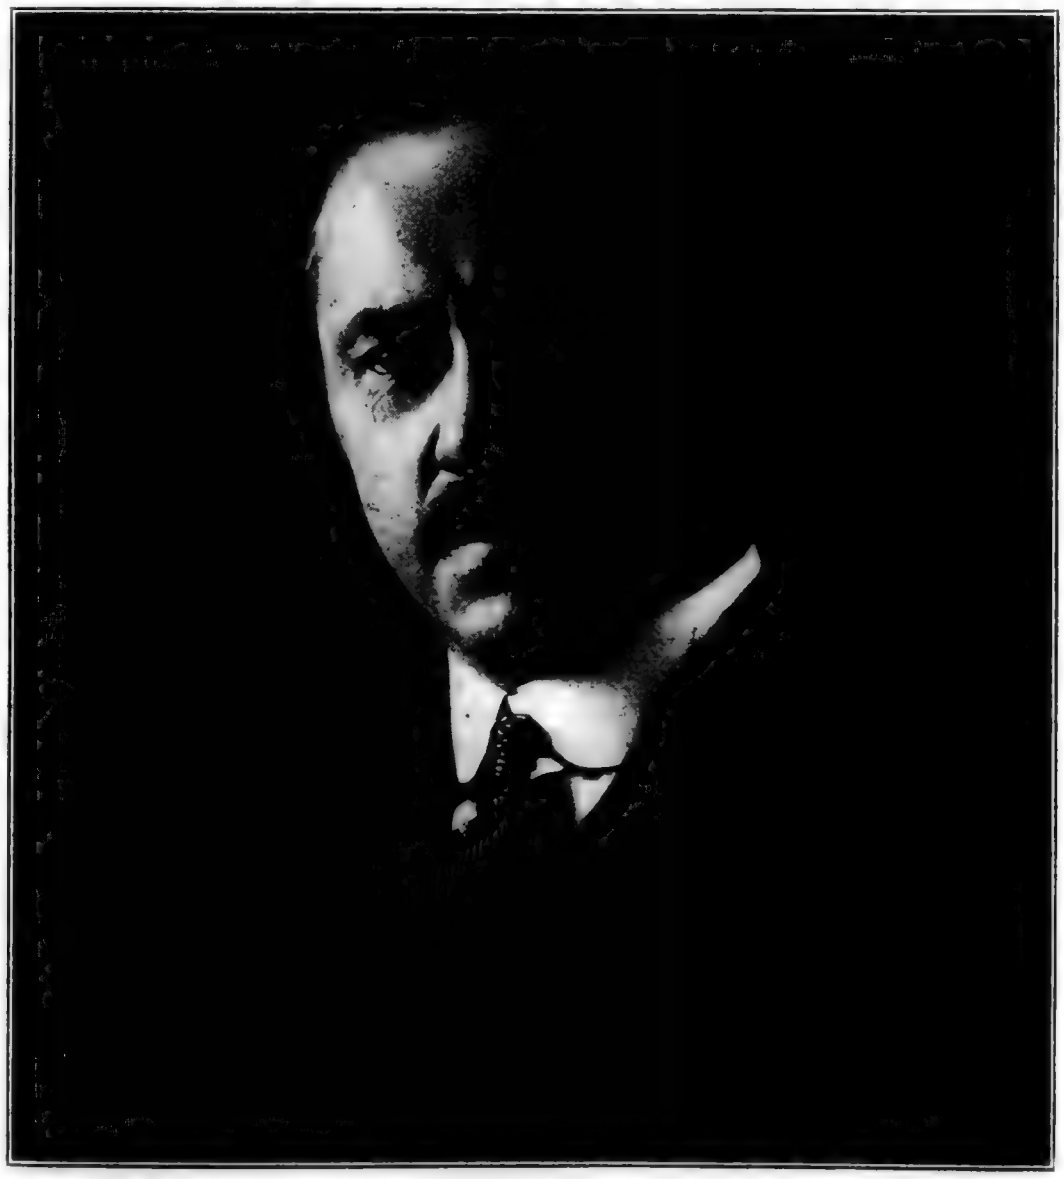
The executive committee recommends to this association that the president appoint a committee of three members to make a revision of the by-laws of this organization and present them for action at the next annual meeting.

The executive committee recommends that a committee be appointed to formulate a plan whereby amateurs' and private gardeners' exhibits may be awarded a certificate of merit by this association.

The executive committee feels that there is a desire on the part of this organization to get in closer coöperation with the work of the experiment station to the end that we may work together for the mutual interests of the florists and the station. Therefore, we recommend that an advisory committee be appointed by the president of this association, consisting of five members, one to be a rose grower, one a carnation grower, one a pot plant grower, one a perennial grower, and the president of the association to be ex-officio chairman of the advisory committee, making five in all.

Therefore, be it resolved that the president of this association appoint a committee to draw up a petition presenting their claims to Professor J. C. Blair and asking for consideration of this matter.

Prof. H. B. Dorner wanted the fourth resolution to cover coöperation with the students as well as with the experimental work at the university.



Interesting Addresses.

J. F. Ammann addressed the meeting on "The Growers' Association, Its Aims and Objects." He stressed the following points: Success can only come through organization. Dues for all florists' organizations do not equal the dues paid by a bricklayer to his union. Organization is as necessary among florists as among other producers. Florists are not overorganized. We should organize to educate the florist, to get the florists together and to advance the trade at large. The aims of the national growers' organization are to standardize products and to create a market for them.

J. E. Pollworth spoke on "The Golden Rule of Wholesale Cut Flower Distribution." He also emphasized the standardization of floricultural products. Stabilization of prices must come by mutual understanding of all men who handle flowers. This can be brought about by honesty, courteous attention and decreased misunderstandings between all men handling flowers. A market director would facilitate matters. He would be in a position at 4 o'clock each day to state the price per foot of all flowers and the surplus of flowers on the market for the following day. This would render "breaking" of the market impossible, would help the retailer, and would get advertising correct. He further stressed the fact that the florists must become interested in the experiment station in order to improve the produce.

next presented. It is printed on a later page.

Dr. Lehenbauer's paper, which also appears on a subsequent page, followed. In the discussion that ensued the association showed it desired experimental work on the stem rot of snapdragons and the black bug disease of sweet peas.

During the afternoon a special display of students' work in artistic designing was on exhibition. George J. Ball exhibited sweet peas and calendulas. The Quincy Art Willow Co., Quincy, Ill., exhibited various kinds of baskets.

Evening Session.

The evening session opened at 7:30. The association granted certificates to George J. Ball, of Glen Ellyn, for his sweet peas, Columbia and Annette. His calendulas received honorable mention. Notice was made of the student display of flat, French and colonial corsages, strawflower basket, fresh flower baskets, magnolia leaf, rose and sweet pea funeral wreath, packed express boxes of spring flowers, the plant display and Saint Patrick's day table decoration.

Final Resolutions.

The following final resolutions, presented by J. F. Ammann and C. Loveridge, were adopted: "The members of the Illinois State Florists' Association, in session at Urbana, extend herewith our hearty appreciation to Professors Blair and Dorner, and other members of the staff, for their hospitality and instructive lectures. We highly commend the educational and experimental work done in floriculture, and we resolve herewith to lend any aid possible in securing necessary appropriations for further advancing the work to be carried on, both experimental and educational. We feel especially proud of the student body, believing that the training here received will be of great benefit to floriculture in the future."

Moving Pictures.

Two moving picture films of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, were then shown. These were most interesting, showing the building and construction of greenhouses from the drafting tables, through the machine shops, to the finished greenhouse.

Advertising slides were exhibited through the courtesy of Penn the Florist, Boston, Mass. These slides showed the latest "Say It with Flowers" methods of advertising.

Students Present Play.

The Floriculture Club of the University of Illinois entertained for the remainder of the evening. Fred J. Gammage extended the welcome of the club. The club then presented the play, "The Florist's Shop." Great credit and praise were given the members of the cast for their successful entertainment. The play was full of life and fun and was greatly appreciated by the florists. Popcorn balls were served and enjoyed by all. Music was furnished by a group of university students, who succeeded in helping make the evening's entertainment a success.

IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Back to Urbana.

Another prosperous year has passed since we have met in a body together, but it has been two years since we have been here together and looked over the experimental station of Illinois. Do you all realize that we do not appreciate this work as much as we ought to? How many of us have gone to the trouble to come to these meetings and hear the reports on the different experiments? If we would give this our careful consideration and work according to their best results, how many of our fellow florists would be financially better able to take care of their obligations and would feel a little more independent!

It has been almost four years since we have had a state flower show. During the war period there was a scarcity of coal and flowers and it was not feasible to have a state fall show. Last year I could not get much encouragement and was advised by some of the larger growers to wait until another year. My opinion is now that we should not let another fall pass away without a good state flower show. Nothing keeps up interest better than often meeting together and getting one another's ideas, and it takes a flower show to get our brother florists together in a large and representative body.

Keep in Step.

Time is making rapid changes. Notice the growth of the F. T. D. and the work it is doing. Now comes the National Flower Growers' Association, which is going to be the means of setting a real value on flowers and of getting away from the idea that flowers should be held at a fabulous price today and offered at a discouraging price a few weeks later. Organization will bring it about, and we can not bring it about any sooner. Is it not always true that you find the most successful men in business in the first ranks of organized bodies? Again coming back to the experimental stations, I will say that there will be an addition built, which will give those in charge better and larger facilities for making further progress.

A short time ago the executive committee was called to Urbana to meet with a committee of different branches of this institution to discuss the growing need of more finances. Few of us know that the university has existed on the same allowances during and since the war as in prewar times. Not one of us would expect the grand state institution here to exist on a prewar allowance, let alone expecting a forward march. I am glad to report that the committee recommended a liberal increase in the allowance, and I have since seen it stated that our governor will back our institution, in order to make it the best in this country of ours.

New Secretary.

At our last state meeting, in Chicago, Fred Ammann was elected secretary, but on account of having the secretaryship of the National Flower Growers' Association, he was obliged to hand in his resignation. A. T. Hey, of Maywood, was then appointed secretary to fill the unexpired term, which he has well taken care of. Many of our members forget to pay dues. Now, no organization can exist without proper financial support. So do not blame your secretary if he handles the delinquent members a little roughly. I will ask all brother florists to help the new officers the coming year to get new members to swell our ranks, and I will again urge you all to get together and work for a good flower show for next season, for we are now at the door of prewar times, with every foot of greenhouse space again working to fullest capacity.

FOODS FOR FLOWERS

This paper, prepared by Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, in charge of experimental work in the division of floriculture at the University of Illinois, contains the substance of his talk on "What Our Fertilizer Studies Have Taught Us," given at the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Urbana March 8.

THERE are, in a general way, two groups of materials which we add to soil in order to make it more productive. These two groups are natural manures and chemical fertilizers.

When we add fertilizers of any kind to the soil, we do one or both of two things: (1) We add to the soil substances which affect the physical properties of the soil; (2) we add to the soil chemical substances which are food materials for the plant.

These two requirements are the only ones which we expect of fertilizers. Natural manures in part fulfill both of these requirements; chemical fertilizers, only one. Farmyard manures improve the physical character of soils (a) by making soils that are clayey and compact more open and porous, so that the water and air can penetrate more freely, and (b) by making soils that are light and sandy more compact, by filling up the open spaces. It thus enables light soil to absorb and retain more water.

In addition to the important effects of manures on the physical structure of soils, they furnish also food materials for plants. Chemical fertilizers have, as a rule, but one function, that of furnishing food materials for the plants. Their indirect effect is seldom useful; sometimes it may even be harmful.

Food Materials of Plants.

Plants require certain chemical elements in soil for food materials. All told, there are only seven soil elements that are necessary. A number of these are ordinarily present in soil in sufficient quantities, so that of the seven essential elements only three are found in our soils in insufficient quantities. These three elements are (a) nitrogen, (b) phosphorus, and (c) potassium. We will omit potassium in this discussion for it, too, is not ordinarily a limiting factor.

Nitrogen: Source and Availability.

When we say that a fertilizer is in an available form we mean that it is in a form that can be used by the plant directly. It is soluble in water. When we say that a fertilizer is in the unavailable form we mean that it cannot be used by plants directly, but that it must undergo certain changes in the soil before it can be taken up by the plant. A fertilizer in available form can be taken up and used by the plant immediately; one in unavailable form cannot be used immediately, but must first go through a gradual process of decay in the soil.

Let us now take up some of the fertilizers which furnish nitrogen. The one most commonly used is barnyard or stable manure. Stable manure varies in composition. It contains large amounts of nitrogen and, in addition, it contains phosphorus and potassium. All three of these elements are used by plants.

A ton of stable manure consists, approximately, of seventy-five per cent, or 1,500 pounds, of water and twenty-five per cent, or 500 pounds, of dry matter. All the fertilizing material, of course, is in the dry matter. The dry matter in one ton of average mixed stable manure contains approximately ten pounds of nitrogen, five pounds of phosphoric acid (2.2 pounds phosphorus), and ten pounds of potash (8.3 pounds potassium).

Natural manures, therefore, contain the three chemical elements most needed by plants. However, natural manures do not meet the entire demands of plants. They fall short from two viewpoints.

First, the fertility elements contained in them are not in proper proportion. The amount of nitrogen is excessive, relative to the amount of phosphorus and potash. If they are used in sufficient quantities to meet the needs of phosphorus, there is a waste in nitrogen. In other words, there is not enough phosphorus present.

Secondly, the constituents contained in natural manures are not in sufficiently available form to provide for a quick and continuous growth. In order to get a quick response on the part of the plant, large quantities must be applied and this again results in a waste of nitrogen.

Fresh Manure vs. Rotted Manure.

Rotted manure contains more plant food materials per ton than does fresh manure. This is because fresh manure shrinks in bulk during the decomposition process. A ton of the former will shrink to one-half or two-thirds of a ton of the latter.

However, certain other changes take place during the decomposition process which affect greatly its fertilizing qualities. Fresh manure contains, as a rule, much soluble and, hence, available nitrogen. During the decomposition process a large percentage of this soluble nitrogen is lost by leaching. From one-fourth to one-half of the soluble nitrogen may be lost by leaching and by passing into the air in another form. Another part of the nitrogen is changed during the decomposition process from the soluble to the insoluble form. Therefore, well rotted manure contains little, if any, active nitrogen.

The phosphorus compounds are affected in a different way during the decaying process. They are changed from the insoluble form to the soluble form. Since phosphorus compounds do not leach out readily, there is no loss, as there is in the case of the nitrogen.

Rotted manure, therefore, is a more evenly balanced combination of plant food materials. Generally speaking, the phosphorus is available to a larger extent than in fresh manure. The nitrogen, however, is present in a less available condition. There is a relatively larger amount of phosphorus and relatively smaller amount of nitrogen present than in fresh manure.

Nitrogen in Three Forms.

Natural manures contain nitrogen in three forms, (a) organic nitrogen, (b) ammonia and (c) nitrates. The organic nitrogen—that is, the nitrogen found in the straw and other vegetable matter—cannot be used by the plant directly as food. This must first decay and change into other forms.

One of the products of this decay is ammonia. Ammonia is readily soluble in water or, as a gas, it passes off quickly into the air. In this form nitrogen is readily lost. Plants do not depend upon ammonia for their nitrogen; in fact, it is believed that little ammonia is used by plants. The ammonia which is formed during the process of decomposition of the manure is changed into the third form, the nitrate.

Nitrates are the chief source of nitrogen for plants and, therefore, the most important form of nitrogen compound. Natural manures, therefore, in order to be available to plants for food materials, must pass through these stages of decay. This process of decay depends upon conditions which are variable. The quality and condition of the manure, the kind of soil, the temperature and the soil moisture all enter into the process. Therefore, keeping in mind this variable but necessary process of decay and also the more or less unbalanced ratio of elements in manure, it is, from the standpoint of economy as well as results, a good practice to supplement natural manures with the so-called artificial manures.

We must remember that nitrogen is the most expensive of all the fertilizing elements. This is true because the amounts ordinarily available in nature are small; because it is the element of the soil which is most heavily used by plants, and because it is the most elusive, since it changes sooner or later into some form that is easily lost to soil and plant.

Dried Blood as Fertilizer.

One of the best supplements of natural manures is dried blood. It is one of the most concentrated and one of the richest in nitrogen of the organic nitrogen-bearing fertilizing materials. Red dried blood is uniform in composition. It contains thirteen to fourteen per cent nitrogen. The market product is standardized and guaranteed to contain a certain amount of nitrogen. Black dried blood is less concentrated and less uniform in composition, due to less careful methods of preparation. It contains from six to ten per cent nitrogen and sometimes as much as four per cent phosphoric acid.

Dried blood is one of the best organic fertilizers, because its physical character is such that decay in the soil is rapid. Dried blood is not immediately available to plants; it cannot be taken up directly by the roots, but it must first decay and change into the nitrate form. However, under favorable conditions of moisture and temperature this decay is rapid and the nitrogen thus becomes available after a short period of time.

If we represent the availability of one of our most available forms of chemical fertilizers, as nitrate of soda, by 100, the availability of dried blood would be approximately sixty-five or seventy. On this same basis the availability of average rotted barn manure would be approximately twenty-five to thirty-five.

This shows the manner in which dried blood is a good supplement of natural manures. Dried blood supplies the plant with nitrogen quickly; it makes for a rapid and continuous growth by making up the deficiencies of natural manures.

Phosphorus Fertilizers.

We will now discuss another class of fertilizers, those which supply phosphorus for the plant. Plants must have phosphorus. This element is needed in the formation of all young cells, such as are found in the young root tips and in developing flower buds. Nitrogen and phosphorus are equally essential and both are, therefore, important from the standpoint of fertilizers.

It is important that we understand the terms used for the various kinds of fertilizers containing phosphorus. The materials used as phosphorus fertilizers are of two kinds, the mineral phosphates and the organic phosphates.

The mineral phosphates are obtained by grinding rock which contains phosphorus in quantity. Rock phosphate contains the phosphorus in chemical combination with calcium. Chemically it is known as tri-calcium phosphate. The important fact to remember is that rock phosphate is practically insoluble in water, one part requiring for solution approximately 50,000 parts of pure water. In the soil it is somewhat more soluble, this depending on the presence of other substances. Because of its low solubility, rock phosphate is not readily available to plants.

In order to make rock phosphate soluble, and hence available, it is treated with sulphuric acid. The sulphuric acid acts chemically on the rock phosphate and forms two substances, acid phosphate and gypsum. This mixture is sold as a fertilizer under the name of acid phosphate or superphosphate. Acid phosphate is not found naturally, but is to be had only as a manufactured product. One hundred pounds of purchased acid phosphate contain approximately forty-six pounds of actual acid phosphate and fifty-four pounds of gypsum. The important fact to remember concerning acid phosphate is that it is soluble in water. One part dissolves in 100 parts of water. Not only is it soluble in water, but it is also available to plants.

Acid phosphate is not a completely stable compound. It has the characteristic of changing, under certain conditions, into what is known as the reverted form. In this form it is less soluble. However, it is still available to a high degree and can still be taken up by plants.

Let me call to your attention at this time a difference between the soluble nitrogen compounds and the soluble acid phosphate. Nitrogen, when applied to the soil in soluble form, remains soluble and in this condition readily leaches from the soil. A great waste may result, therefore, if too large quantities are applied. With soluble phosphates the danger of loss or waste is not great. If applied in too large quantities, soluble phosphates tend to become insoluble, or to revert, as we ordinarily say. Acid phosphate does not leach out of the soil.

Experiments with Acid Phosphate.

We have been carrying on some experiments with the view of determining the results that may be obtained by the use of acid phosphate in rose and carnation soil. The results of a 3-year test with roses and a 1-year test with carnations are given in tabular form herewith. A complete account of the method employed in the experiments will be published later in bulletin form.

The tables below show some striking results. The application of acid phosphate resulted in increased production for each variety and the increase is consistent, in the case of the roses, for three successive years. A total of 1,152 rose plants and 1,440 carnation plants were used in the experiment. The benches of the two houses in which the work was conducted were divided into sections, sixteen rose plants and twenty carnation plants growing in each section of the two houses, respectively. All sections of each house received the same treatment, except that each alternate section received one application of acid phosphate, while the remaining sections received no acid phosphate.

Bone Phosphate.

Another form in which phosphorus occurs and which is used as a fertilizer is bone meal. The phosphorus of bone is in combination with organic matter and differs in this respect from the phosphorus compounds already discussed. Good bone meal should contain on the average about twenty-two per cent phosphoric acid. In addition, it contains about four per cent of nitrogen. Steamed bone contains relatively more phosphoric acid, from twenty-eight to thirty per cent, but only from one to two per cent nitrogen.

Many florists use bone as a fertilizer. It is unquestionably a good fertilizing material, for it contains much phosphorus and it is, therefore, a valuable source of phosphoric acid. However, bone is not soluble and the phosphorus it contains is not in a form which is immediately available to plants. Bone must decay before the phosphorus becomes available. Steamed bone is more directly before the phosphorus becomes available. Steamed bone is more directly useful to plants than is the raw bone meal, because, since it is in a finer state of division, it decays more rapidly. The rate of decay, as in the case of stable manure, depends upon variable factors, such as moisture and temperature. Bone, then, differs from acid phosphate as a fertilizer in the fact that the former is soluble and immediately available to plants, while the latter is less soluble and not immediately available.

We have carried out an experiment to test the comparative efficiencies of acid phosphate and steamed bone meal in the flower production of roses. The results are given in tabular form on this page. The applications of the two fertilizers were such that approximately equal quantities of phosphorus were applied. Acid phosphate was applied at the rate of forty pounds per hundred square feet. In order to obtain the same money value at the relative cost prices of the two fertilizers, twenty-one and four-tenths pounds of bone were applied to each hundred square feet.

It should be remembered that the results are for one year only. The differences in production would probably be less striking during the second and third years. However, for the first year acid phosphate is the more efficient, as can be readily seen by studying the data. Under the conditions of this experiment, steamed bone is less efficient in the production of roses than is acid phosphate. A detailed report of this work will be published in bulletin form in the near future.

SCIENTIFIC TRAINING

Paper read by Julian D. Smith, a student in the floriculture course at the University of Illinois, at the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Urbana, March 8, on "The Value of a Scientific Training in Floriculture from the Student's Viewpoint."

A STUDENT usually decides what business or profession he wishes to make his life work before he completes his high school education. Some students grow up with the question settled before they reach the high school age. Next comes the thought of how to obtain this desired end by the most efficient method. The floriculture students have selected the florists' profession. Some of us come from our fathers' greenhouses, some from farm lands, and some from business circles of large cities. We have all come to college for the purpose of learning in the shortest length of time as much as possible of the scientific and practical sides of floriculture and its relative sciences. In college this shortest length of time is four years. We believe that by taking the 4-year college course in floriculture we accomplish two things: First, we gain the results of the apprentice system in a shorter time; second, we become better equipped as men and women for citizenship and for community activities than by the apprentice system. You ask how we think this end is effected. To answer this query I must briefly outline the average 4-year college course in floriculture as offered at our colleges and universities.

First Two Years' Work.

The first two years are spent in getting the groundwork or foundation for the studies of the two later years of the college curriculum. The real specialization in floriculture comes in the last two years. Botany is one of the fundamental, or ground courses. In botany we study the structures and functions of plant parts with the view of ascertaining facts and applying these facts in reasoning and in experimental work. The study of plant diseases comes under the heading of botany. Attention is directed to the causal agents, as fungi, bacteria and such; to symptoms; to diagnosis, and to the treatment of these diseases. The floriculture student may elect a study of the diseases found in the greenhouse, if he so desires.

Chemistry is another fundamental course. This study is designed to give the student a working basis for a good understanding of soil actions, as these are important to every florist, inasmuch as they often mean dollars and cents saved or lost.

Another probability of loss is from insect troubles in the greenhouses. The student studies the life history of these insects, as often the method of control lies in the determination of the weakest point in the life cycle and attacking the insect in that weak spot. This is why we scatter tobacco dust on rose benches to kill the rose midge in its weak stage. A floriculture student may select courses in entomology which deal with his profession; namely, insect pests of the greenhouse.

The landscape gardening end of the floriculture game is not forgotten. Instruction is given in the identification of trees, shrubs, vines and flowers, with special emphasis upon their various uses. This includes the designing of plantings for homes and other buildings. Such a subject is one which every community expects a florist to understand.

Learn Facts and Their Application.

Instruction as well as practical work is given concerning the various methods of plant propagation. The student is also made familiar with the construction, cost and maintenance, heating and ventilation of greenhouses. In the above courses the student is taught facts and their application. The college education does not stop there, for the student must know how to express these facts as well as know the facts themselves and their application. He must know how to speak or talk. For this purpose rhetoric and English are made requirements for graduation. Public speaking may be added by the student as an elective. While at college, the boy or girl is still developing physically as well as mentally. Gymnasium work and military drill are required to keep the student in trim.

Two Years in Greenhouse.

The last two years of the college course the floriculture student spends most of his time at the greenhouses, until he begins to feel that he really lives there. He works with the major and minor commercial crops, carrying them through from blooming season to blooming season. The student learns the best methods of cultivating these crops, as well as the attention necessary in growing tender bedding plants under glass. As warm weather comes, the student uses these bedding plants in designing and planting the outdoor beds, and cares for these beds. Courses are given regarding soils, fertilizers, plant foods and water requirements of greenhouse crops, and regarding the relation to these crops of temperature, light, humidity, and the carbon dioxide content of the air. Vegetable gardening is not overlooked, as the student may take courses in it and learn the culture of vegetables under glass. Floral decoration also is taught. Plants for conservatory decoration are considered and studied. Cut flowers and decorative plants are handled. Much laboratory work is given in the arrangement of flowers in baskets, designs, bouquets, table and home decoration. Great emphasis is placed on this phase of floriculture, because of its importance and because so few florists know how to use flowers to the best advantage. Instruction is given in economics, accountancy and bookkeeping. The student may also study business writing and thus aid in fitting himself to take care of the clerical part of his business. For broadening the student, such courses as philosophy, psychology, sociology and foreign languages are offered.

Illinois Graduates.

Since 1913 twenty-five students have graduated from the University of Illinois having studied floriculture. Today twenty-one of these graduates are in some kind of floricultural work and are making good. They all realize that they do not know all there is to know about floriculture, but they have the training to analyze their difficulties and devise remedies.

What has the apprentice done during the four years the graduate has spent in college? The apprentice has, perhaps, worked in two or three different establishments. He has, thereby, learned the methods of growing a limited variety of plants of two or three different employers. He has had practical experience and much of it. He has come in contact with a few men. Perhaps he has wanted to study floriculture in the evening after work, but he has then been tired and physically unfit for study, and literature on floriculture may have been difficult to obtain and as difficult to understand.

AT SAGINAW

MICHIGAN FLORISTS MEET.

Annual Convention at Saginaw.

The annual convention of the Michigan State Florists' Association was held at Saginaw, Mich., at the Masonic Temple, March 8 and 9. A large attendance of state florists, besides several outside visitors, helped to make the meetings a complete success. Invitations were sent personally to every Michigan florist available.

A flower show was held at the same time and, with admissions at 25 cents to the public, the exhibition was crowded. Ralph Grohman was chairman of the exhibition committee. A full-page advertisement appeared in one of the Saginaw dailies announcing the opening of the show and this advertising effort was more than repaid by the increased gate receipts.

The flower show was well advertised. Visitors saw on their arrival at the railroad station banners three feet long fastened on automobiles advertising this show. There were fifty of these banners on automobiles around the city. At the hotels, in the lobby, were large vases of flowers and more banners announcing the show. Twenty-five of the leading stores had a large vase or basket of flowers in the most prominent place in their show windows with cards announcing the show. Every flower shop in town was well decorated for the occasion. Still other banners about the town announced a $10,000 display of flowers, but the biggest of them all was our famous slogan, "Say It with Flowers," on a banner in front of the Masonic Temple, which stretched the full width of the street and could be read five blocks away.

Splendid Exhibition.

The Masonic hall where this flower show was held contains open floor space of 70x80 feet. On entering this hall one was confronted with an exceptionally well arranged assortment of over 1,600 pots and pans of seasonable plants and flowers. This was only able to be carried out by thorough coöperation; the local firms—the Wm. Roethke Floral Co., Chas. Fruch & Sons, Grohman the Florist, J. B. Goetz Sons and Sunshine Flowers—all pooled their exhibition plants for this display and therefore were able to obtain a wonderful effect on three long tables and the stage in the background. The space around the sides was occupied by trade exhibits.

The trade exhibitors from out of town were Boehringer Bros., Bay City, Mich.; the Detroit-McCallum Co., Detroit; the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh; the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind.; the American Bulb Co., Chicago; the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; A. Henderson & Co. and the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; the Paranoid Co., Cleveland, and the Bay City Reed Fibre Furniture Co., Bay City, Mich. The arrangement of the exhibition was in the hands of a committee, consisting of Carl L. Roethke, Otto Roethke, Henry Wolter and Anton Gaertner.

The entertainment features were in the capable hands of Charles Frueh and his committee and included addresses, musical features, the entertainment of lady visitors, visits to greenhouse establishments and finally, Wednesday evening, March 9, a splendid banquet which made a fitting close to a memorable convention.

President's Address.

In his address as president, Henry W. F. Goetz said: "The future of the Michigan State Florists' Association depends entirely upon the members of the craft throughout our state. If you, as individuals, will give it your support and help, this association can do much more for the florist in the future. But some may ask, 'What can it do?' To this I would answer, 'Many, yes, very many things.' One especially, with the assistance of the craft, is the establishment of a state horticultural greenhouse. With such an institution, properly conducted, and with the right men at its head, the difficulties now experienced in getting practical help would be overcome.

"With an appropriation by the legislature of, say, $50,000 to start with, many things which could be done to improve and elevate our profession will suggest themselves. If the craft will only lend coöperation, the above could be put into practical working order.

"The step I consider in the right direction of progress is the holding of floricultural exhibitions in connection with our annual conventions. The good results from our previous show are already known. Much encouragement could be given the promoters of these exhibitions by the granting of a certificate of merit, which the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will initiate at this convention. The bringing together under one roof of all the newest and choicest novelty plants and flowers for critical examination and information concerning the same that can be obtained at first hand is something the value of which cannot be overestimated.

"In closing, I would strongly urge keeping within lines that pertain to the object for which our association was primarily created. The advantages and opportunities of its meetings afford those who attend the merits of confidence and respect. Bringing the buyer and seller into personal contact, who thus become better acquainted, is certainly an advantage that needs no discussion. The information gained by attending these meetings, and the lessons learned by observation are certainly of great advantage to anyone whose ability scores less than 100 per cent, and that includes all of us."

Subtle Suggestion.

At a western university a not overinspiring orator declared, "The only time I want flowers is at my funeral."

Everybody in the audience rose and started toward the door.

"Why, where are you going?" the speaker asked.

"Out to buy flowers," his hearers replied.

Much the Same.

A man entered a railroad car with an armful of flowers. The lady next him asked, "What is the name of those flowers?" The man replied that he had forgotten what his wife had called them.

A florist who was sitting in the next seat spoke up, "The name is poinsettia."

"Oh, yes," said the man, "point setters. I knew my wife said they were some sort of Airedale."

Garden Question Box.

Is it wise to have the tiger lily and the dandelion in the same garden? And may I ask if you think the dogwood chase the pussy willow?

Flowers Don't Swear.

Goshall—"A sense of humor saved me from disgracing myself this morning."

Hemlock—"How?"

"While getting into a street car I slipped and both my shins scraped the steps."

"Whee!"

"I got into the car and was just about to cuss a blue streak when I looked at one of the advertising cards and it made me laugh."

"What was on the card?"

"'Say It with Flowers!'"

Cruel and Unusual.

"I went into a florist's shop to order some plants sent to a friend at a distance, and the florist boxed my ears."

"What on earth did he do that for?"

"Because they were elephant's ears."

Wired Flowers.

Professor in floriculture: "How did the idea of telegraph delivery originate?"

Bright student: "It was suggested by the wires in floral designs."

F. H. B. ANSWERS BACK

MARLATT ISSUES DEFENSE.

F. H. B. Answers Criticisms.

The chairman of the federal horticultural board, Dr. C. L. Marlatt, has sent to The Review ten closely typewritten pages, containing 4,000 to 5,000 words, composing a statement of the board, as he says, "relative to Quarantine 37, to indicate more fully than has hitherto been possible the broad possibilities of plant introduction under this quarantine and to answer certain entirely unjustified criticisms which have been given wide publicity through the horticultural and other related trade and amateur papers and journals throughout the country."

"Any law or regulation which restricts freedom of action on the part of the individual necessarily has enemies," begins the statement. "Federal and state plant quarantine legislation aiming to protect this country from new important plant pests is not an exception to this rule. Just now Quarantine 37, which restricts the entry of foreign plants to prevent such entry of pests, is being unjustly criticised by a few persons who would like to see this quarantine abolished or amended so that in large measure the old-time free importation of foreign nursery stock and other plants could be resumed with all its attendant dangers. It would hardly be worth while to pay attention to those criticisms except that they absolutely misrepresent the quarantine and have been widely circularized through a fairly active propaganda and unfortunately have been accepted at face value by many plant amateurs and societies of such amateurs. Such persons and societies, from lack of acquaintance with the quarantine and its workings, have thus obtained a very erroneous idea of the actual restrictions now being enforced on the entry of foreign plants. The agricultural and horticultural and nursery interests of this country appreciate the need for this quarantine and understand the provisions limiting plant importations."

What May Come In.

Quoting such critical epithets as "a Chinese wall policy for America," Dr. Marlatt describes which plants may come into the United States and how, giving the following categories:

1. Unlimited entry is possible without permit or other restriction of field, vegetable and flower seeds, and of fruits, vegetables, cereals and other plant products imported for medicinal, food or manufacturing purposes.
2. Unlimited entry is possible under permit of from eighty to ninety per cent of the bulbs hitherto imported; of all stocks, cuttings, scions and buds of fruits; the important rose stocks, and all seeds of fruit and forest trees and of ornamental plants and shrubs, including hardy perennial plants.
3. Entry, limited only by legitimate needs, of all other plants is provided for under special permit for the purpose of keeping the country supplied with any new variety or any necessary propagating stock.
4. The exceptions to these paragraphs (1 to 3) are those involved under specific quarantines, as, for example, the quarantines relative to citrus plants, bamboo, banana, etc., but any plants prohibited entry under such quarantines may be imported by or through the United States Department of Agriculture, for any necessary experimental, scientific or introduction purposes.

"As already indicated," the statement further reads, "provision is made under the quarantine for the importation of any of these plants under special permits, the only limitation being the showing of the necessity for their importation to supply stocks of any new plants or of any old plants not now commercially available in the United States, for the purpose of establishing reproduction plantings which may ultimately make this country independent of further foreign supplies. With respect to such importations, the department has adopted a policy of great liberality under the point of view that it wishes to afford every reasonable means for the introduction for the purpose indicated of any plants not now available in this country. The immediate sale of plants thus imported is necessarily not permitted, and the plants imported are required to be kept and utilized for the purpose of reproducing additional stocks for the period (one to five years) designated in the permit—this period being based upon the time needed for such multiplication or reproduction. No restrictions are placed on the sale of any plants produced from such imported stock except that the importer will be expected to maintain a sufficient supply to meet his continuing needs. Special permits for such importations are issued to any and all applicants who agree to the conditions of the permits and will be continued to be issued with respect to any plant until the Department of Agriculture is convinced that adequate stocks are commercially available in the United States.

Experts Pass on Permits.

"With respect to any request for a special permit, the determination whether the plants requested are either new or are commercially unavailable in the United States is made by a committee of experts appointed by the chief of the bureau of plant industry of the department, men therefore who are thoroughly acquainted with the subject. In addition, the recommendation of this committee before being returned to the board receives the approval of the chief of that bureau. Undoubtedly some errors have been made in refusing permits, but on proper presentation of evidence the permits in question have been issued. There may also have been some lack of uniformity at the outset before an adequate system of records and control was worked out, but under the existing system action should be uniform.

"The requirement of a bond in connection with such special permits has been objected to in a few instances. It developed that such bonding of permittees was a necessary requirement. The mere promise of a few importers at least was apparently not sufficient and at the outset plants imported under special permits for the purpose of propagation were in some instances promptly sold in violation of the permit. The bond seems to be the only means of insuring full compliance with the permit and unfortunately it is a burden which must fall on all alike.

"The records of the department indicate that since the promulgation of this quarantine some 650 permits have been issued for the entry of those so-called "prohibited plants." The plants authorized entry in these permits include bulbs, ornamentals, roses, orchids, herbaceous plants, etc., to a total of upwards of sixteen million plants. The bulk of these is naturally represented by bulbs and bulblets which must be secured in large quantities for adequate reproduction purposes, but the permits also include several hundred thousand ornamentals. Altogether these permits include authority for the entry of 5,000 different varieties of plants out of some 5,500 covered in the requests received; in other words, ten out of eleven of the plant varieties requested have been authorized entry.

Inspection in Washington.

"Strong objection has been made to what is described as the requirement for sending all plants to Washington for inspection and certification. In point of fact, this requirement applies only to the importation of so-called 'prohibited plants' for reproduction purposes and not at all to the classes of plants which are permitted unlimited commercial importation. The objection to inspection in Washington of plants imported under special permit has a sound basis, viz., delay, expense and rarely some risk to the health of the plants. This requirement, however, is based merely on the lack of funds to establish adequate inspection offices and forces at numerous ports of entry. The department has been perfectly willing, and has endeavored to secure appropriations which would enable it, to establish properly equipped inspection points at the two or three main ports of entry.

All Ultimately Barred Out?

"By the use of a portion of a sentence which has a perfectly plain meaning in connection with the report in which it occurs, it is represented in this propaganda that the Department of Agriculture intends ultimately to bar out altogether all plants from abroad.

"The lack of any basis for this misrepresentation is perfectly apparent and the ridiculousness of the argument based upon it hardly needs rebuttal. There certainly is no agency in the United States that is better acquainted than the Department of Agriculture with the need for securing any useful and valuable plant which may be had in foreign countries and which is capable of introduction and establishment in the United States. This need has found expression in this department in a host of useful plant introductions and in the establishment now for many years in the bureau of plant industry of the office of foreign seed and plant introduction. Through this office and other department agencies some 10,000 different kinds of foreign plants have been imported during the last twenty-five years, many of which have proved to be highly useful plants and have already taken their place permanently in the agriculture and horticulture of this country.

Botanic Gardens Not Restricted.

"It is asserted in this propaganda that 'the beneficial research work of the great institutions of America, such as the Missouri Botanical Garden in St. Louis and the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University, has been either stopped or disastrously checked so far as such operations are dependent upon plants obtained from beyond the borders of the United States.'

"In view of the 650 odd permits which have been issued to private importers and the establishment of hundreds of successful plant propagation enterprises throughout the United States by importations made under these permits, the ridiculousness of the charge that botanic gardens are necessarily materially affected in their development by this quarantine is apparent.

"The chief objection to the quarantine on the part of botanic gardens has been to the requirement of sending their importations to Washington for inspection and treatment. If, as indicated elsewhere, the department secures funds to provide for inspection at the principal ports of entry, this objection will necessarily largely disappear.

Little Danger from Ships' Ballast.

"The subject of soil and other ships' ballast is again brought up in this propaganda, with the argument that if such ballast is permitted entry the prohibition of the entry of plants with soil is illogical. In response to this objection, which is an old one, the Federal Horticultural Board had a very careful investigation of such ships' ballast conducted (1918-19) at the principal ports of entry of the United States. This investigation indicated that the bulk of the material employed as ballast consisted of sand, gravel, broken rock, and even ashes. The soil occasionally employed proved to be excavation soil (cellar and ditch soil) or soil from river banks. In other words, there was no indication that garden or field soil was ever used for such purposes. Later on the question of immunity of subsoil came up to determine its availability as packing material for bulbs, and the department's investigation indicated that such soil could be safely so used and the quarantine was modified, permitting such use. Under the present normal conditions the amount of ballast coming to American ports is comparatively small, and the risk therefrom is trivial as compared with cultivated soil long associated with plants in greenhouse or outdoor cultures and more or less abundantly stocked with insect, nematode and disease enemies of plants.

Conclusion.

"It would certainly seem to be good business and practical common sense to restrict so far as possible importations of plants which in the past have proved so disastrous to the agriculture and horticulture of this country. It is certainly unthinkable that the farm, garden, orchard and forestry interests of the United States, or that any plant lover should want to return to the old system.

"With the support of Quarantine 37 a distinctively American horticulture and floriculture are now being created and the dependence on foreign-grown plants is rapidly disappearing, and with it much of the risk of entry of new plant pests.

"Quarantine 37 has been amended several times and may be amended in the future upon presentation of adequate reasons therefor, but no amendments will be seriously considered which open up again the dangers which this quarantine is designed to guard against."

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

J. T. Cokely, of B. E. & J. T. Cokely, Scranton, Pa., was looking over a special advertisement of wire designs and observed that "granted that the traveling salesman is essential in such business as ours, seasonable specials, especially at this time, were wire pullers, in that they were read by the thousands, while the salesman could only approach hundreds. Having had road experience, we know of what we speak," continued Mr. Cokely.

Henry Leahy, Elizabeth, N. J., has good business to report from both stores. Asked for an opinion touching the street flower sellers, this firm believes they help sales, in that direct attention is attracted to flowers.

F. W. Massmann, Montclair, N. J., attributes continued good business to keeping up displays. The close proximity to the New York flower market makes this task comparatively easy.

Doerrer & Sons, Westfield, N. J., basing future demand upon past experience, have a fine stock of flowering and foliage plants. They are also strong on carnations.

Anson V. Norton, of Somerville, N. J., has the establishment in fine shape for the season's business, thoroughly renovated and well stocked. Junior Norton is making a record as a grower.

* * * *

Smith's Flower Shop, East Orange, N. J., reports an unusual number of funeral orders, calling for much choice stock. The seed department is opening up nicely.

John Fricke has succeeded to the business of the late P. Popken, Orange, N. J. Choice Ophelia and Madame Butterfly roses and Matchless and Laddie carnations were seen here from the Harry O. May range, at Summit, N. J.

Rassbach Flower Shop, Bloomfield, N. J., is well pleased with the general run of business, which compares favorably with previous seasons. Funeral work has been quite heavy.

* * * *

Harry O. May, Summit, N. J., is furnishing the finest Laddie, Pink Delight, Belle Washburn and Matchless seen in many moons. It is hoped a display will be made at the national flower show, March 14 to 20, at New York.

* * * *

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., hope to make an exhibit of orchids at the national flower show, but the scarcity of blooms, together with the big prices paid, will be a factor henceforth and until after Easter. A large shipment of orchid peat was being made to Europe and called for some caustic remarks from John E. Lager regarding the difficulties under which the American orchidist is working at this time.

George Goeller, of Goeller Bros., Trenton, N. J., while putting the finishing touch to a handsome spray, observed that business in general and funeral work in particular were not so brisk as could be wished. Commenting upon the various means for creating publicity and further educating the public taste for the more general use of flowers reminded me of a florist who has not failed, for ten years at least, every Sunday to fill a pair of vases upon an altar with flowers. The value of these sometimes amounts to a five-spot. "Yet," said he, "we never seemed to miss them and our business has undoubtedly benefited thereby, for it has grown steadily and profitably," adding his conviction that individual advertising, even along such lines as these, must be effective. Carlman Ribsam, of Trenton, N. J., while predicting that plants will have to be sold at a lower figure to meet the times and noting a falling off in regular sales of flowering plants for the table, for example, claims that the cultivation of the public taste rests as much with the salesman as with the grower.

E. A. Lorenz, Middletown, N. Y., in addition to a choice stock of carnations, grows large numbers of vegetable plants. His Easter crop of lilies and Holland bulbs looks fine.

F. X. Dienst, Middletown, N. Y., reports good business right along, with plenty of stock. Easter prospects are as promising. A special item is Geranium H. F. Michell, which has superseded R. A. Nutt here, as with many other retailers. Stem-rot has ruined a fine lot of ten weeks' stocks. This is unusual and cannot be accounted for, as snapdragons in the same bed are healthy. Carnations rooted in 2-inch pots instead of the sand bed are a success and seem to be the right idea where large numbers are not desired.

F. A. Danker, Albany, N. Y., was found busily engaged in funeral work and declared that, outside of this, business was dead, for which the traction condition was held responsible. Large stocks of cut flowers with small demand make a discouraging situation, particularly when it is doubtful if the quality at this time was ever better.

• • • •

Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., is experiencing what was described by Walter Dunning as a prelude, referring to St. Valentine's day, an interlude, as applied to a rest following much funeral work, and the postlude, Easter, looked for as the grand climax to what is agreed by Proprietor Henry Eberhardt as a remarkable season.

"Just a coincidence," observed Henry Penn, of Boston, referring to his firm's window display of the new crimson Darwin tulip, William Pitt, grown by the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., and named in honor of the British statesman who protested to George III against imposing the tax on tea, the enforcement of which led to the famous Boston tea party. The exhibition being staged upon the date of President Harding's inauguration made it of more than ordinary interest.

Edward F. Norberry, of North Cambridge, Mass., has acquired the Cameron ranges adjoining his own and intends going largely into bedding plants, the demand for which is always good. While the price of geraniums is expected to be lower than last year, efforts to increase the supply to offset the decrease in value are being made.

"A good market cleaned up on roses, our specialty," reported A. R. Hutson, salesman for W. H. Elliott & Sons Co., Boston. "Asparagus also sold well."

• • • •

William Hastings, at the Boston Flower Exchange, reported little stock left Saturday afternoon, March 5, but a few odds and ends. Staples sold at fair prices. This healthier condition followed two weeks' dullness.

• • • •

F. E. Palmer, Brookline, Mass., observed that business was holding up well and that the recent publicity given to the grand plant of Acacia pubescens brought comments from all parts of the country.

• • • •

"Undoubtedly we are feeling the effects of the general depression in business, but we believe that rock bottom has been reached and from henceforth a gradual improvement will be seen," observed Al Lange, of H. F. A. Lange, Worcester, Mass., adding that his firm's stock for Easter was never in finer shape and the first rays of sunshine seen for a long time raised a spirit of optimism to correspond.

• • • •

H. F. Littlefield, Worcester, Mass., says the trade at large is in far better shape than the majority of other businesses, if not all of them, and, considering the fact that the last two months even exceeded the same period of last year with this firm, Mr. Littlefield is taking advantage of the present lull to prepare for what is hoped to be a record-breaking Easter.

• • • •

Herman H. Bartsch, manager of the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., commented upon the close proximity of the international flower show to Easter, which would prevent many growers attending from a distance. This, in his opinion, was regrettable. "While the whole show will be a magnification of what may be seen at home, still one can always learn something of value. It is also essential now, when so many are running to specialties. The problem of producing variety becomes yearly more difficult." Looking over the Easter stock at the establishment of the W. W. Edgar Co., the force of the foregoing remarks was felt and the excellent condition of the stock bespoke the authority of the speaker.

"Thank you; 'tis a beauty," commented a motorman when handed a bloom of Carnation Laddie, one of thousands of such, with other varieties, growing at S. J. Goddard's establishment, at Framingham, Mass., which are bringing fifty per cent more in the New York market than in Boston. "Paradoxical as it may seem," observed Mr. Goddard, "it is true, just the same, that, while our home town is looked upon as the hub of floriculture, Manhattan hands us the highest figures." A display will be made from this place at the international flower show that is expected to eclipse the exhibit made at Washington recently. W. M.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

WILLIAM H. CROUCH.

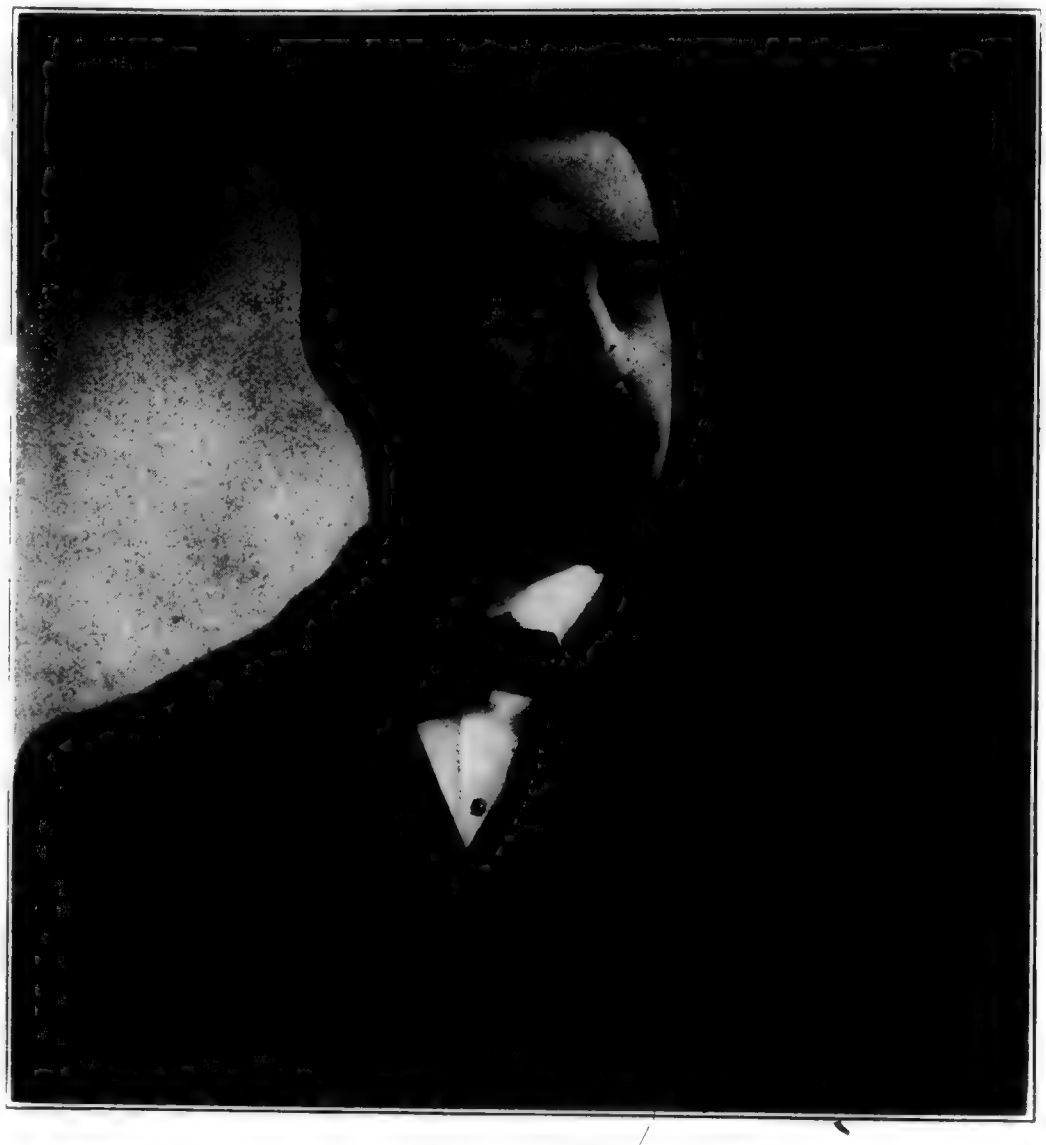
NOW the sole owner and manager of the firm known as Crouch, Florist, at Knoxville, Tenn., which was originally the business conducted by his father, the late Charles W. Crouch, William H. Crouch only recently abandoned music for flowers. He was for twenty years a professional musician and for years conducted the band and orchestra which was organized by his father. Mr. Crouch was brought up in the floral atmosphere of his father's establishment, but, having a musical temperament inherited from his father, who was a musician of no mean ability, he took up music, with great success. However, succumbing to the lure of the flower shop, he returned to the business during the declining years of his father, who needed his assistance. Mr. Crouch was recently elected president of the Knoxville Florists' Society.

OBITUARY

John Lewis Childs.

John Lewis Childs, the widely known florist and nurseryman of Floral Park and Flowerfield, N. Y., died suddenly Saturday, March 5, while on a New York Central train, between Albany and New York, on his return from a visit to California. His death was not discovered until the porter of the Pullman car went to arouse him as the train arrived in New York.

Mr. Childs was born at Jay, Me., May 13, 1856, and received a public school education in that town. In 1874 he went to Long Island, taking a position at East Hinsdale, near Hempstead, with a florist, and rooming over a store in the village. Here a year later he leased a few acres of land and started the nucleus of what was to become ultimately an enormous seed and plant business. His first seed catalogue contained eight pages and there were only 600 copies printed. Subsequently he bought a large tract of land adjacent to East Hinsdale, at what is now the incorporated village of Floral Park, and founded the settlement which became the village, giving to it its name and making his headquarters in it. Fifteen years from his starting in business, his name, through his far-reaching advertisements, was known throughout the world. He used whole pages in magazines and periodicals of all sorts and published the Mayflower, a horticultural publication which eventually attained a circulation of over half a million. This, with his catalogues, was printed in a well equipped printing plant which he installed at his Floral Park establishment and operated until about a year ago, although he had previously disposed of his magazine.



When Floral Park became a village, Mr. Childs served as its first president for three years. He took great interest in village affairs, and through his efforts it has become a place of considerable importance. Much of the property, however, eventually went into real estate operations, and part of it passed into Greater New York at the time that city was extended. He had anticipated this eventuality, and had purchased about 800 acres of splendid land at what he named Flowerfield, between Stony Brook and St. James, in Suffolk county, Long Island, where all field-grown stock is now produced, both horticultural and agricultural, including vast plantings of gladioli, cannas and dahlias, under the supervision of Isaac S. Hendrickson, the wholesale manager. While the stock was grown at Floral Park, the first commercial plantings of Gladiolus America were made, and this variety disseminated.

Mr. Childs took considerable interest in politics and was a member of the New York State Senate in 1894-5. He was twice defeated for Congress on the Republican ticket. In educational circles he was quite prominent, for many years being president of the board of control of the State Normal and Training School, at Jamaica, New York city, and for twenty years president of the board of education of Floral Park. At the time of his death he was a member of the advisory board of the Orphan Asylum Society of Brooklyn.

He was the owner of a fine collection of natural history specimens, included among which was what is said to be one of the largest collections of birds and birds' eggs in this country, gathered from all parts of the world. The great naturalist, John Burroughs, was a frequent visitor at the Childs home in Floral Park, where was to be found a most valuable library of books on North American natural history.

The deceased leaves a widow and two sons, neither of the latter associated with the business. Funeral services were held privately at the family home Tuesday, March 8, with interment in Greenfield cemetery, Hempstead.

Edward C. Dungan.

Edward C. Dungan, treasurer and general manager of William Henry Maule, Inc., died at the Medico-Chirurgical hospital, Philadelphia, March 4. Mr. Dungan underwent an operation six months ago which was not successful in restoring his health. He was 58 years of age.

Edward C. Dungan entered the seed house of William Henry Maule in 1878, when he was a lad of 15. He remained there for forty-three years, with the exception of a few months spent with a seed house at Newark, N. J. Mr. Dungan rose from the bottom of the ladder to the top. He assisted Mr. Maule in building the large seed house that stands today and, on Mr. Maule's death, some years ago, succeeded him in its direction. In 1919 Mr. Dungan was elected president of the American Seed Trade Association.

Mr. Dungan was a man of the highest integrity and one who could be absolutely depended upon. He was possessed of lovable qualities that endeared him to a large circle of friends, who deeply mourn his loss. He is survived by his wife.

Funeral services were held at his late residence, 3334 North Fifteenth street, Philadelphia, Tuesday, March 8.

Phil.

C. R. Kimberlin.

The death of C. R. Kimberlin occurred, March 5, at his home at San Jose, Cal. For the last fifteen years Mr. Kimberlin had been connected with his brother, L. M. Kimberlin, and their two sons under the firm name of the Kimberlin Seed Co., at San Jose. Mr. Kimberlin was connected with the trade for some time before that, however, and was with his father, J. M. Kimberlin, in the seed growing business. The deceased was born at Santa Clara, Cal., and was 56 years of age. He leaves his widow and one son.

Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr.

The wife of one of the most widely known members of the florists' trade, Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., died at her home early Tuesday morning, March 8. She had been in poor health for a year and was taken seriously ill March 5. With her passing a most lovable and amiable character has departed from a host of friends.

Mrs. Vincent was 75 years of age and, although becoming a little feeble and uncertain in her step, accompanied Mr. Vincent to most of the trade conventions, even in recent years. She was born in Anne Arundel county, Maryland, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Merritt. About three years ago,

December 26, 1917, the couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, which was a notable event in and around Baltimore.

Mrs. Vincent was as completely absorbed in the growing of flowers as was her husband. Following their marriage they started a flower shop together. At that time a small greenhouse, 15x55 feet, was erected. It was heated by flues. Indomitable perseverance, favored by rugged health and continued happiness, won for the couple satisfaction and prosperity. Today the Vincent establishment embraces 250 acres of fertile soil and the modest little greenhouse has grown to 300,000 feet of glass.

Almost every grower is acquainted with the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., of which Mr. Vincent is the head. Mr. Vincent is also president of the American Dahlia Society, ex-president of the Society of American Florists, as well as being president of the Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of Baltimore.

Surviving Mrs. Vincent are three sons, Richard, Thomas and John Vincent, one daughter, Lila, seventeen grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. The funeral was held Thursday, March 10, with burial at Ebenezer cemetery, Chase, Md.

Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr., and Her Husband.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Market conditions here are irregular. A day of unusual demand is followed by one of quiet. Prices naturally fluctuate to some degree. Roses have remained steady, although the supply has been large. Carnations have been changeable, although the latter part of the week was a little more steady than the first.

A good supply of sweet peas is on hand, but the stems are too short for anything except funeral work. The demand for these has been slow. Calla lilies are plentiful and funeral work keeps these moving fairly well.

Bulbous stock is in evidence, with daffodils, jonquils and Paper Whites the most popular. Freesias are still seen, but have deteriorated in quality.

Other offerings include forget-me-nots, calendulas, mignonette, pansies, orchids and lilies of the valley. Pussy willows are in demand for use in baskets.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held at Portland, Ind., March 1, at the establishment of W. Frank & Sons. The meeting was well attended, considering the location of the meeting place, thirty-nine members being present.

Alfred Warner, of Noblesville, was elected to membership and Joe Schoey, of Indianapolis, Fred Steinmeyer and Ed Siebrecht, of Marion, and J. Hillman, of Cumberland, were proposed for membership.

Professor Brown, of Purdue University, gave an interesting report of investigations in regard to the dropping of sweet pea buds.

President Hitz appointed the following program committee to provide the entertainment at each meeting: A. F. J. Baur, chairman; Oscar Carlstedt and Morris Marer.

The following committee was also appointed to investigate the coal situation, particularly in regard to the market and the correct time to buy: Len Elder, chairman; Bert Hitz and Herman Young.

The meeting was of short duration, on account of the limited time. A splendid dinner had been prepared by the ladies of one of the churches, to which justice was done.

Considerable time was spent visiting the well kept establishment of W. Frank & Sons. This firm won both the rose and carnation trophies at the annual meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association. Needless to say, their stock was in fine condition, especially their carnations, which were of unusual quality.

The majority of those present at the gathering found it necessary to leave early on account of the long distance from home.

Various Notes.

J. T. Turner and Glen Moore, of Rushville, Ind., and Mr. Ellis, of Bloomington, Ind., were in the city last week on a buying expedition.

Otto Rieman, of the firm of Hartje & Elder, who was seriously injured by an automobile some time ago, is able to be up and about again.

The McDonald Floral Co., of Crawfordsville, has been purchased by A. P. Morris and C. W. Jack, owners of the Morris & Jack Lettuce Farm. Besides having a vast amount of practical and scientific experience, Mr. Jack has been a teacher of science and agriculture in the Crawfordsville high school and had supervision of the war garden work there under the direction of Purdue University. Mr. Morris is vice-president of the Vegetable Growers' Association of Indiana.

Arno H. Nehrling, former president of the McDonald Floral Co., after a short visit with his parents in Florida, will go to Ithaca, N. Y., where he will have charge of the commercial course in floriculture at Cornell University. The institution has allowed $200,000 for carrying on the work of this department. Mr. Nehrling is a graduate of the Missouri Botanical Garden and the Shaw School of Botany. He was formerly assistant in the floriculture course at the University of Illinois, where he had charge of the greenhouses.

Herbert Tons, of Fort Wayne, formerly with W. J. & M. S. Vesey, is now with Temperley's.

The Florists' Supply House recently received a large shipment of southern daffodils from Louisiana that were shipped with a carload of strawberries. They came through in excellent condition.

E. E. T.

Xenia, O.—The Jamestown Floral Co., at Jamestown, O., recently sold its establishment to Floyd Anderson and son, of this city. The business will be conducted in the future under the name of the Anderson & Son Greenhouses.

Port Allegany, Pa.—That the Port Allegany Greenhouses have increased their business tremendously over last year is evident from the fact that the receipts of December and January were more than double those of the same months of any previous year in the firm's history. The unusually mild weather has favored growing, but they are unable to meet the extremely heavy demand in either cut flowers or plants. M. E. G. Ventres and G. E. Larson are the proprietors. Mr. Larson has just recently been taken into the firm.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

CORRUGATED board boxes have joined in the price descent.

MARCH 4 brought back the G. O. P. Let's hope it means Good Old Prosperity.

SETH A. BORDEN, of Fall River, Mass., has decided to dispose of his collection of orchids, one of the largest and most famous in America.

LEESBURG, in Florida, has become the center of the asparagus industry, having more shippers of the cut sprigs than any other town in the south.

AS probably the biggest show of the year, the eighth international flower show, at New York next week, will draw a large attendance of trade members.

AN automobile manufacturer predicts return of trade by next autumn. If that industry can make so quick a come-back, florists need have no qualms.

BUYERS no longer will tolerate some of the slack business habits which grew up during the war. There no longer is labor shortage or excuse for the neglect of details.

IT is evident that the federal horticultural board has come to the realization that the florists are an industry not altogether insignificant in the nation's affairs.

THE influence of the new administration made itself felt, one might say, before it arrived if one laid to this cause the recent improvement in the postal service. It has been of late more like old times.

SOME people are so difficult to please that the effort scarcely results in a money profit, but when one finds complaint after complaint coming from one's customers it is fair to suppose that something may be wrong in the place even if it is one's own.

REQUESTS have been sent out by Secretary John Young for subscriptions to the $20,000 guarantee fund for the fifth national flower show, to be held at Cleveland in 1922. At the Washington meeting of the S. A. F. directors in January almost one quarter of the desired total was pledged. Mail your subscription to Secretary Young, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York.

DECREASE in the number of business failures in February brings evidence of the turn for the better. In January occurred 1,895; last month 1,641, or 13.4 per cent less.

MUCH business was done in the post-war boom by many whose experience and equipment as business men were slight. The need of straight seeing and clear thinking now will test their ability to continue.

NOTWITHSTANDING that a price drop must come, if the prevailing prices for the present season were undersold in any community, retail trade would probably be in a chaotic state. Sudden drops may be worse than maintaining high prices.

WARNING FROM MR. MARLATT.

Upon the announcement of the federal horticultural board that greater liberality would be observed in issuing permits for the importation of certain classes of stock for propagation purposes, some Holland nurserymen started to heat the cables to this country. Florists and nurserymen in many sections received advice from these busy foreigners that ornamentals might be imported in any quantity up to June 1 and that orders for such stock should be cabled at once.

C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board, telegraphs The Review that such cablegrams are likely to mislead members of the trade and cause them losses. Importations will not be permitted except in accordance with the regulations. To obtain such stock, permits must be obtained asking it for specific reproduction purposes, as formerly. Any purchases made under the belief that freedom of purchase is now allowed, says Mr. Marlatt, will result in the rejection of the stock at the port of entry and a loss to the purchaser.

The chairman of the board further states that many importations under existing permits are coming in with so much soil on the roots that rejection is necessary. To safeguard themselves against loss, members of the trade should make purchases from abroad with the condition of payment on delivery in compliance with governmental regulations.

THE NEW TUNE.

Everybody, everywhere, is marching to a new tune. Every merchant, manufacturer and jobber is keeping step to it, and florists should follow in their line. The new melody is not a syncopated monstrosity; it's a plain, old-fashioned, everyday, honest-to-goodness tune, "Reduce the Overhead and Increase the Sales."

The "jazz" period in business has passed. It's now time to get down to fundamentals and look the future in the face.

It is the wise florist who is studying costs of operation, who is watching his accounts closely and keeping his available funds in a liquid state. He is also watching his overhead and cutting his expenditures to the bone. Every item which does not increase his ability to serve will be eliminated. He will take advantage of every resource which affords him an opportunity to keep down his expense.

Success this year will go to the concern which keeps its expense at a minimum and at the same time fights for business. The "go-getter" will bring home the proverbial bacon this year as never before. There will be plenty of trade for the florist who organizes his store to function economically and then goes out after business.

REASONS FOR OPTIMISM.

Bankers have been looked upon as the joy-chasers and gloom-spreaders of the present business situation. Some florists have heard their chill words and more have felt the effects through their customers' attitude. Now, however, one of them, believing the worst is over, cites the following reasons for optimism:

"Bank reserves are increasing, money rates are easing somewhat, and loans are diminishing. The railroads are providing effective transportation, although railroad prosperity, vital to all business, is contingent to a great extent now upon reasonable wage readjustments. There is general appreciation at least, even in government circles, that the taxation burden which business is bearing is altogether too heavy and must be considerably lightened as soon as possible. The labor situation is improving; there are fewer strikes, more coöperation between employers and employees, and more efficiency among workers. Extravagance is diminishing and thrift, as evidenced in savings deposits and investments, is increasing. While all adjustments in commodity prices have not been completed, many commodity prices have reached prewar levels and some of them undoubtedly will rebound somewhat. The farmers are now marketing their crops, instead of unwisely holding them for a substantial recovery in price. The enforced selling of high-priced inventories now occurring in many lines will set up its own corrective, through creating renewed demand for all kinds of goods at lower levels. Finally, the steady improvement in foreign exchange reflects the improvement in European conditions and forecasts better international trade."

FROM FAR AND NEAR.

If any florist in the east has surplus stock he should not miss the opportunity to send it westward. There is a prompt demand for everything offered in the Classified ads in The Review. Like this:

The ad you have been running for us certainly produced results, as we had orders from eleven states, calling for more stock than we had to offer.—H. W. Ward, Warren, O., March 3, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Greenville, S. C.—The Rodgers Flower Shop went into the hands of the sheriff under a distress warrant for rent due, Monday, March 7. The firm was unable to meet its obligations. The date of the sale of the firm's property is not yet known. Harold E. Rodgers, manager, does not intend to reënter the florists' business. A meeting of the creditors of the firm has been called for March 17 at 10 a. m., at Greenville.

Worcester, Mass.—Steven V. Vonic has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court. Mr. Vonic's liabilities amount to $4,595 and his assets to $1,294.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There is a greatly improved tone in the market this week. It is said the change came shortly after noon last Friday, but those who make this report are suspected of facetiousness. However, it is undeniable that March 4 was the best shipping day the market has seen in a fortnight or more and that the market closed March 5 in a more thoroughly cleaned out condition than at any time since St. Valentine's day. There are those who aver that the change was more due to decreased supplies than to increased demand, but the effect added greatly to the cheerfulness of growers and wholesalers; retailers were not so enthusiastic.

The present week has brought a continuation of the improvement. Demand is nothing wonderful, but supplies have decreased to the point where something like a balance has been established. There is plenty of stock, so the prices are not high, but nearly everyone's wants can be met. Some of the wholesalers find they still have a problem in the large proportion of long roses their growers are cutting. The demand is not especially strong when it comes to roses of the extra special length and there are times when it is easier to find 500 Columbia with 3-foot to 4-foot stems than it is to find 500 with 12-inch to 18-inch stems. Under such conditions it is difficult to make the long roses produce the money they should. Ophelia has fallen from favor and those who have it in any quantity find it not easy to sell at the price of other varieties. Columbia predominates, with Premier second and Russell in third place.

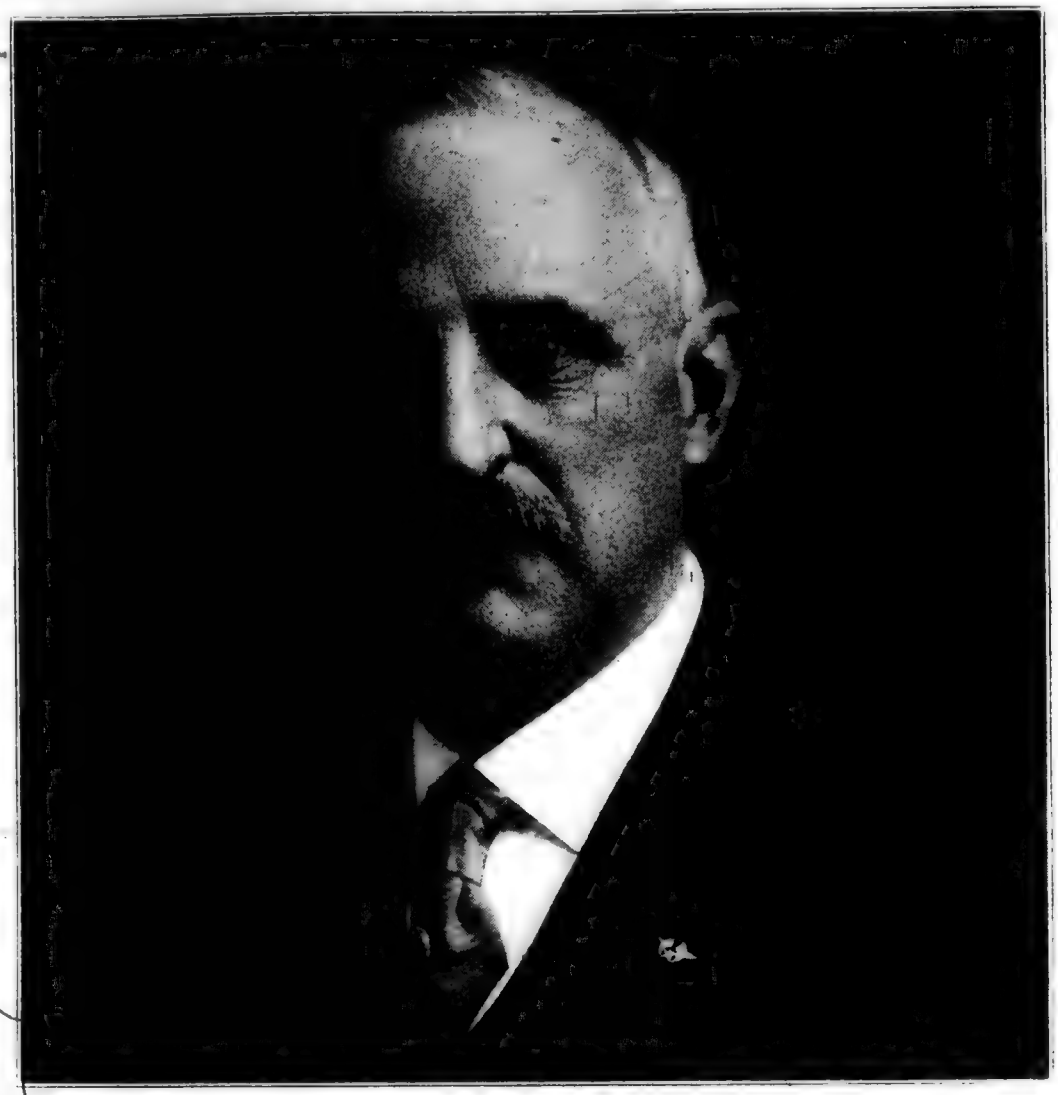
If there is any department in which supplies have increased it is in the carnations. There are plenty of these, but too many are of indifferent quality. Within the last few days first-class stock has sold up to 6 cents, but there have been other carnations that could not be sold at all except to someone who was making cheap funeral work. The average quality of carnations is not so good as at this date last year, a condition for which the growers blame the warm, dark weather which has prevailed.

Bulbous stock is in supply adequate to the needs of the market and the quality is the best of the season. There is a good volume of business in this department, though prices are not so high as they should be in view of the cost of the bulbs and the percentage of loss, which latter many of the growers are finding unusually heavy this season.

The sweet pea is the popular corsage flower. The supply is not so large as it will be after a few days of bright weather, but the quality is improving steadily. There is plenty of valley and there are more than enough violets to meet the demand, though the quality of the doubles is nothing to brag about. Orchids are more abundant than at any time this season. The supply of miscellaneous flowers is not large, nor is it steady. There is not much in the market at present except the staple items of stock.

Easter Prospects.

It does not look as though there would be an oversupply of flowers at Easter. Indeed, if the demand develops to anything like the expected proportions, there probably will be a shortage of good stock, though no one sees in the situation justification for raising prices to more than a slight extent. In a general way, prices will average lower than last year; at least the advance orders will be taken somewhat below what was asked of the early buyers last Easter.



The supply of lilies will be much less than in a normal year. To begin with, growers did not buy as many bulbs as usual, because of the cost. It turns out, also, that the average number of flowers per plant is not nearly so great as last year. Of course last year the floriferousness of the bulbs was one of the factors which upset calculations, but this year the other extreme seems to dominate. It is said many growers will not average two flowers per plant, many plants having only one flower and some being blind. Where 35 cents was asked for lilies before Easter last year, orders are now being taken at 25 cents for the best.

Some of the rose growers report they are going off crop before Easter and some of them say they will not be on crop until a week or two after the big day, so it appears the supply of roses cannot be unusually large. But in view of general conditions most of the advance price lists show a reduction of 5 to 10 cents in the price of the best grades of long roses, though many have made no change in the price of shorts.

Nor is it figured that there will be an unusual supply of carnations. The crops are on the increase, but the bench space given to carnations this year was much less than last season. It is in the carnation department that the wholesalers believe prices will most nearly approximate those of last season.

The prospect for bulbous stock is considered better than in years when Easter has been later. It is thought there will be a larger demand than ever before for corsage flowers, as many early orders are running specially heavy in this direction.

There will be an extremely small supply of Easter pot plants, the variety being decidedly limited, and this is expected to have a stimulating effect on the cut flower market.

Hail Visits the Western Suburbs.

Once again scores of growers on the outer edge of the city have stood for a brief moment on the verge of extinction and escaped with comparatively little loss. It was just at dusk on the evening of March 7 that hail poured out of a leaden sky, a torrent of icy pellets so numerous as to whiten the ground and pile up in little drifts under the eaves of houses. No previous hail in the Chicago district has covered so great an area. Scores of growers got the shock of their lives, but only a few were hurt. Otto H. Amling, secretary of the Growers' Association, after a telephone canvass of the trade, stated that it was his opinion Maywood, Elmhurst and the more northerly growers escaped with insignificant loss only because there was no wind. Most of the damage was done west and south, in the district where the growers are less numerous. There the hailstones were propelled by a gusty wind.

Bassett & Washburn were the heaviest losers. At their place at Greggs Station 100,000 feet of glass was broken, forty per cent of it in the 600-foot houses, the balance scattered through the range. The hail hit so hard it punctured the houses without shattering many and the plants were not badly cut up. They at once fired up the reserve boilers and called for all the help they could get to repair the damage. Next day 25,000 yards of muslin were obtained from Marshall Field & Co., with which the roofs were covered temporarily. Mr. Washburn estimates his loss at $10,000 to $15,000. He is fully covered as far as the insurance of the Florists' Hail Association goes and is fortunate in having about 2,000 boxes of glass on hand, salvage from the dismantled Hinsdale houses.

At Downers Grove the storm hit Wellworth Farm Greenhouses, growing roses, and J. F. Kidwell & Co., growing plants. In the former range the loss was about 2,000 panes of glass, while at the older Kidwell place fully seventy-five per cent of all the glass was broken. C. V. Wolf and J. Gollans, both at Downers Grove, were hard hit. These are small places, but their loss was relatively heavier than with their larger neighbors. On the other side of Hinsdale, at Western Springs, Vaughan's Greenhouses escaped without a scratch.

At River Forest Ernest Oechslin lost 4,000 panes of glass scattered through his dozen or so houses, all of which are in pot plants mostly finishing for Easter. He sent an S. O. S. call to some of his customers in the city and had help in closing his roofs against the storm. George Wienhoeber and his staff worked there until midnight, it is said. Gus Swanson, also of River Forest, and the Forest Park Floral Co., not far away, each lost about 200 panes and there were many others who lost a few lights.

The New City Floral Co., at Sixty-first and Throop streets, lost about 1,000 panes of small glass.

A Hint for Retailers.

The Excell Laboratories puts out a small can of liquid fertilizer for house plants. A good many local retailers carry it in stock. But the sales were not satisfactory to the manufacturer; the retailers did not move it fast enough. There are concerns that deliver advertising matter from door to door. The Excell management arranged with one of these to have a small leaflet left in each letter-box, not separately, but as other circulars were put in. Thus it did not cost much, but the response was immediate. In the first week ten additional retailers stocked New Plant Life because of the calls they had received as the result of leaflets scattered in their neighborhoods; and several other retailers reordered.

Any retailer can develop side lines for himself as easily.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club's announcement of the March meeting says a party will go to the New York spring flower show, leaving La Salle Street Station at 1:30 p. m., Sunday, March 13, but inquiry thus far has failed to disclose anyone who plans to go.

There was an attendance of about twenty-five members at the March 7 meeting of the newly organized Chicago Bulb Forcers' Association, of which Peter Pearson is chairman and H. D. Schiller secretary. During the war and its boom-time aftermath the Holland bulb exporters got together and adopted uniform terms of sale which put all the risk on the buyer. The Chicago bulb forcers believe that these February was a month of mixed weather conditions. It was warmer than any other February since 1915, the average daily excess being 8 degrees above normal. But sunshine was only thirty-eight per cent of the possible, the normal for the month being fifty-one per cent.

Fifteen thousand Milady are supplanting as many Premier at the Premier Rose Gardens, Maywood. The name of this range may before a great while is past be a misnomer. One of the new L. & B. houses will be planted with Milady and the other with Russell.

Frank X. Gorly, of St. Louis, has been in the market this week. Grimm & Gorly are preparing for a record Easter business in their new store.

The Market.

No marked change has taken place in the cut flower market since last week's report. Good supplies of practically everything are coming in. Out-of-town buying continues good and clearances have, on the whole, been satisfactory, with some price concessions.

There is little change in roses. The Killarneys continue to sell lower than the other varieties and are the hardest to move. Prices on whites have dropped as low as $2 per hundred, while on such sorts as Columbia, Premier, Pilgrim, Madame Butterfly, Hadley, Russell and Crusader short-stemmed stock makes $6 to $8 and select flowers as much as $20. A few fancies reach $25 per hundred. American Beauties are more abundant and are cheaper.

Carnations are arriving in great numbers and are not high in price. Violets are abundant and low in price. Sweet peas were surely never so plentiful and many are of remarkably fine quality. The price is quite low and short-stemmed stock was sold last week as low as $2.50 per thousand. Pansies have dropped in like ratio to violets. English primroses and yellow polyanthus are shown on several stands and make $2 per dozen bunches.

A great amount of bulbous stock is coming. Tulips are not abundant and hold up well in price, but daffodils are getting druggy and Paper Whites are hard to sell at all. Freesia, which at one time promised to be in short supply, is a veritable glut and values have sunk to low levels. No iris is seen at present.

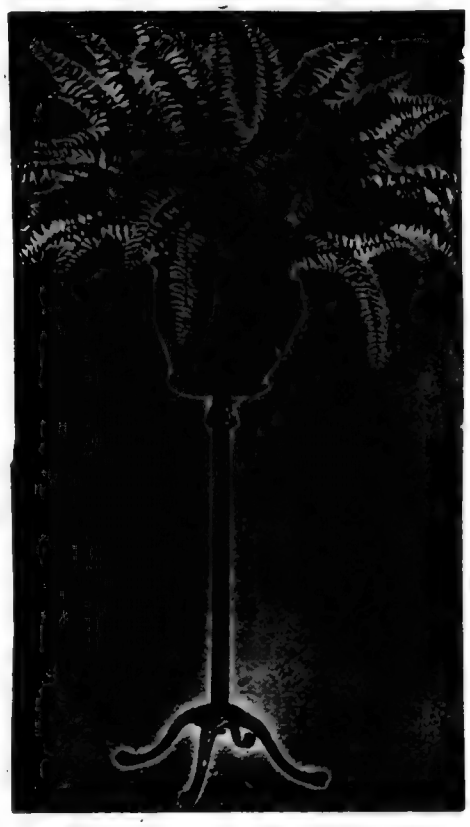
Marguerites move moderately well, but calendulas, myosotis, wallflowers and mignonette are quite druggy. Sales of both callas and lilies were slow last week.

Some good locally grown valley is available, but sales are slow, while cattleyas continue plentiful and lower in price. Quantities of pot plants of splendid quality are arriving. Especially fine are genistas, roses, hydrangeas, ericas, cinerarias and bulbous flowers.



Complimentary Dinner.

The New England Florists' Association gave a complimentary dinner, March 1, at the Parker House, to Thomas Roland, president of the S. A. F. Over fifty gentlemen were present. The floral decorations were furnished by Henry Penn, Hermann H. Bartsch and Harold W. Ryan, spring bulbous flowers predominating. A communication was read from the Gardeners' and Florists' Club regarding a complimentary dinner to be given to the three local national presidents and a committee consisting of J. C. Gibbs, H. H. Bartsch and H. A. Ryan was appointed to meet committees from other local organizations and make the necessary arrangements, if deemed desirable.

Two new members were elected. It was voted to hold the regular meetings hereafter on the second, instead of the first Tuesday in the month.

President B. F. Letson introduced Mr. Roland, the guest of honor, who received a most enthusiastic reception. In the course of a lucid and entertaining address the speaker gave an insight into the S. A. F. and its early history. He told of its start, its aims, what it has already accomplished and what it is still planning to do. He referred to the fact that Boston was particularly fortunate in having so many excellent horticultural institutions, such as the world-renowned Arnold Arboretum, the Harvard Botanical Gardens, Horticultural hall, with its magnificent library, and the Agassiz museum, with its grand collection of glass flowers, and of what a great help these institutions are to horticulture and floriculture.

He spoke a good word for the various horticultural and florists' organizations of Boston, especially naming the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, one of the oldest organizations of the kind in the country. He urged a large addition of new members to the S. A. F., which deserved the support of everyone in the trade.

President Letson talked entertainingly on objects of interest seen in recent visits to many notable greenhouse establishments. closed with a much appreciated cabaret entertainment.

At Horticultural Hall.

The lecture hall at Horticultural hall was crowded to the doors on the occasion of the fourth Saturday afternoon lecture of Professor Osterhout, of Harvard University, March 5, large numbers standing right through the lecture. Darwin, De Vries and Mendel, plant mutation, Mendelism and the laws of hybridization were dealt with and there were numerous questions asked. Even at the close of the lecture some of the local hybridists kept Professor Osterhout busy for no less than two and one-half hours before they would finally let him go. The closing lecture of the course will be given March 12.

Douglas Eccleston, superintendent for A. C. Burrage, showed a group of magnificent orchids in which cattleyas, odontiodas and odontoglossums were especially fine. First class certificates were awarded to Læliocattleya Sunrise and Odontioda rosefieldensis, and silver medals to Sophrolæliocattleya Brilliant, Odontioda Burragei and Cattleya Enid alba, var. Silver Queen. A cultural certificate was awarded for a grand plant of Cattleya Trianæ carrying sixty-seven flowers. Other specially fine things shown were Odontoglossum McNabianum, warnhamense superbum and triumphans and Brassocattleya Cliftonii magnifica.

Everything points to a magnificent spring show and the halls will be taxed to accommodate all exhibits. The admission fee will be $1, but blocks of twenty-five trade tickets can be had at 50 cents each.

The American Orchid Society will be formally launched April 7, and the National Association of Gardeners will hold a conference of New England members April 8, during the spring flower show.

The Market.

The first week of March, coming in mid-Lent, saw an active market. The rather large supplies of bulbous flowers were sold at fair prices, leaving the market in pretty good shape at the close of business on Saturday. Prices have fluctuated; they have not declined. Carnations no longer hold the place they filled last month. They are of importance, but they are not facile princeps. With the cutting of the heavy crop of Matchless, white carnations sell as well as colored. Sweet peas continue in heavy crop and they are selling well; not at fancy prices. The wholesalers believe that, given fair weather, there will be sweet peas at Easter.

Daffodils have had ups and downs. The close of the week saw heavier receipts and lower average prices than the beginning, although the entire market reversed the condition. Empress has come and is popular. There are several other varieties, the singles being preferred to the double Von Sion. In tulips this is reversed. Couronne d'Or has a popularity not attained by La Reine or even by Pink Beauty. Freesias are not much favored unless extremely fine. Snapdragon is coming to the fore. It is now offered in a good assortment of color and grades and it sells. Roses are more plentiful. Premier is the star. Some really superb stock is offered at prices that are moderate for the quality. Callas are in heavy, though not too heavy, crop, while Easter lilies are more plentiful than is usual three weeks before Easter.

The Bell at the Bellevue.

Only a few of the throng who enjoyed Senator Cartwright's address at the City Club knew how nearly the March meeting of the Florists' Club missed hearing the gentleman from California. The committee went to the senator's hotel, the Normandie, at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening as arranged. After some delay they were informed that the senator was in Scranton, where he had spoken the evening before and was to have spoken again that morning. He had not returned. After much telephoning the committee went out to supper at 7.30, without the senator. By a happy chance John P. Habermehl went into his flower shop in the Bellevue-Stratford hotel more than an hour later to get his overcoat. The shop was closed. Everyone had gone home. Just as he unlocked the door the telephone bell rang. It was Senator Cartwright. There had been a misunderstanding. The committee hustled a car to the Normandie. The senator was at the meeting in time to address the splendid audience that awaited him. While the committee were at supper with defeat staring them in the face, they were game. A speaker was provided to kill time and sent to the meeting. A club member who happened in was told that one of the party, a stranger, was Senator Cartwright. After being formally presented to the supposed senator, this club member was sent to the meeting to say the senator was coming. When the president asked anxiously why the senator did not come, the club member calmly replied that he was eating his dinner.

Strafford.

Alfred M. Campbell has reason to be proud of the Easter plants at the Strafford Flower Farms. There are just two specials, lilies and hydrangeas. There is an immense number of both and they are extremely good. There are 25,000 lilies of excellent height, four or five buds to the plant and exceedingly well timed. There are three varieties of French hydrangeas, Baby Bimbinette and the two Mouilleres. They are heavily budded, hard and erect and will require no forcing to bring them into bloom before Easter.

American Legion.

"A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country."

Andrew Benson, superintendent at Premier Rose Gardens, stated last month before the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago that Milady is the greatest red rose. Milady was originated by Edward Towill, of Roslyn, Pa. Milady is little grown here. Now Mr. Towill has a new seedling, American Legion, which will be grown here next season.

Myers & Samtman transplanted 572 bench plants of American Legion at the end of January. These plants are 1 year old and are making strong growth, despite their having traveled many hundreds of miles and the fact that they were frosted in transit. Myers & Samtman now have 18,000 young plants of American Legion potted. They expect to have a large stock of cuttings from A Baker's Dozen and a Half.

William J. Baker gave a successful party the evening of February 28, which was briefly chronicled in these columns last week. The colonel did not exactly give the party; it was a surprise—a real surprise. He rose to the occasion and entertained his guests, who numbered nineteen, just a good baker's dozen and a half, right royally.

All present had a fine time, enjoying themselves heartily. Charles H. Grakelow said he could stay ten minutes; he had to go on. He stayed longer. Courtesy forbids saying how much longer, only his other engagement did not see him. George Craig made his social debut. The colonel's surprise when he

A Novel Basket.

The base of the round basket was ten inches in diameter. It was, perhaps, three or four inches high. The outside of the base was filled with flowers, daffodils and sweet peas. The top of the base was used as a cake basket. It was covered with fancy cakes and bonbons. From the center of the base arose a slender reed-like pedestal twenty-four inches high, surmounted by a vase also filled with daffodils and peas. The idea is not to obstruct the view at the dinner table. The basket was originated by H. Bayersdorfer for his wedding anniversary.

versary party from H. H. Battles. There was a special sentiment attached to this gift, for Mr. Battles, then with C. H. Grigg, made Mrs. Bayersdorfer's wedding bouquet, as well as those for her wooden and silver anniversaries.

Joseph G. Neidinger and George S. Hampton were at Boston last week.

Frank R. Hastings delights in poking fun at flower names. He describes the rose Pilgrim as Progress or mayhap as Puritan. Of course this levity is not for his customers.

A tremendous quantity of bulbs has been brought into heat for Easter blooming.

B. Eschner is pleased that city councils have passed an ordinance removing the grass plots from the center of Spring Garden street between Twelfth and Broad streets. This will make Spring Garden street six feet wider from curb to curb than Broad street.

A. Ruzicka, of Madison, N. J., will speak before the Florists' Club, April 5, in the City Club on "The Culture of the Rose."

Philip Freud has two wonderful Japanese dolls with real hair and complete outfits in the window of the Henry F. Michell Co. They are life-size and were especially imported through the Yokohama Nursery Co. In Mr. Freud's skillful hands they suggest the early sowing of spring seeds.

M. J. Callahan, having completed his store repairs, is now busy with improvements. A garage will be added.

Rupert Kienle makes effective use of blooming plants for window decoration.

An order received March 5 by H. Bayersdorfer & Co. was, the writer of the order said, held until the new administration went into power. Phil.

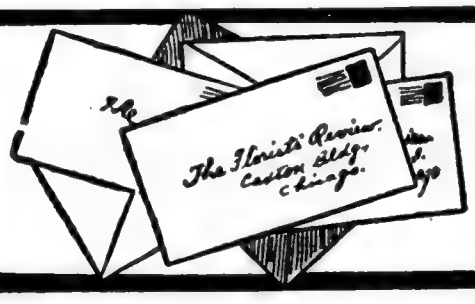
M. H. LEVINE CO., 874 Broadway

NEW YORK CITY

FALL RIVER, MASS.

Patrick Sullivan has added a new automobile to his shipping department.



T. W. Lawton, who has been confined to the house by an attack of the grip, has improved sufficiently to be up and about again.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cross had a narrow escape from serious injury recently when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by another machine. Mrs. Cross was only shaken up, but her husband was severely cut and bruised.

C. Warburton has made a complete rearrangement of his store. He has annexed an adjoining building, so that he has now more than double his former space, besides having a large back room for a workroom. He has installed some new counters, cases and shelving and now has an exceptionally fine place. W. H. M.

ASHTABULA, O.

The Ashtabula Floral Co., which is just getting things into completed shape, is enjoying a good business and looks forward to a busy spring. The corporation was organized last year, with Ernest E. Tong as manager acting for a number of local investors. The Luce place of about 20,000 feet of glass, at the corner of South and West streets, was taken over and put into first-class producing shape. Last autumn a retail store was opened at 137 Main street, with Mrs. M. E. Morehouse in charge. No attempt has been made to splurge ahead of the development of the facilities for taking care of the trade when it came and the result has been that a body of permanent customers has been gathered together, which, like a snowball, grows faster and faster the farther it goes.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Pasadena, Cal.—H. Paulson recently resigned his position as secretary of the Pasadena Horticultural Association. At a recent meeting William F. Warnke was elected to fill Mr. Paulson's place.

GLENDALE, CAL.

W. B. Davis, of Aurora, Ill., came here last autumn, built two houses, each 36x300, and has them producing cucumbers for the Los Angeles market. He has done so well at it that he has placed an order with the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for material for another house which will be the largest in this section. It is to be 53x708 and will be erected with all possible dispatch.

Mr. Davis operates at Aurora, Ill., as the W. B. Davis Co. At Kankakee, Ill., he has a cucumber range operated under the name of the Davis-Kankakee Co. The Pacific coast range carries the name of the Davis-Glendale Co.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

The Market.

Retailers say that business has not been quite up to the usual standard here during the season, but just at present a run of entertainments and good funeral work has made everyone busy. While a great many outdoor flowers are grown around Santa Barbara and Montecito, most of the indoor stock is obtained from San Francisco and Los Angeles. Sweet peas do particularly well here and the stock shown is better than the average sold in either the northern or southern city. Little in the way of a shrub blossom, heather or similar stock is shown, presumably because most of the florists' patrons have plenty of this class of flowers on their own estates. In the nursery and landscape end, a prosperous and busy season has been enjoyed.

Various Notes.

Arthur Gleave, of Gleave's Flower Shop, who some time ago purchased a greenhouse establishment in the west end of town, has a good, large house of tomatoes just coming into bearing and also several of string beans. He also grows some ferns and other stock for his retail store. A large decoration at Montecito kept the staff of this firm busy last week.

John Turnbull has made a fine start on his new place on the state highway. The grounds surrounding the store and dwelling house are used to the best advantage for growing cut flowers and plants. A greenhouse has also been built. Some extra fine sweet peas were noted.

Robert Armstrong, the well known landscape man, has made a good start with his new charge at Bonnymede, the residence of Mrs. E. F. Hammond. It is worthy of note that this place was originally planted by Mr. Armstrong some fifteen years ago and the effects of the good work accomplished at that time are still apparent. The place overlooks the Pacific and one would hardly expect to find such a thriving growth on Ficus macrophylla, Cocos plumosa and other more or less tender stock under the influence of the ocean gales, but these have done finely and form a groundwork for improvements that are now planned by Mrs. Hammond, a rich and munificent patroness of horticulture. Mrs. Hammond has bought a great deal of land surrounding the original place and intends to remodel it and it need hardly be said that Mr. Armstrong is the right man in the right place to carry out the work. There are magnificent opportunities here and undoubtedly he will make the most of them.

Albert Beverley reports an especially good season at the Mission Oak nursery. More stock has been handled than at any time in the history of his business. Besides his wholesale trade to landscape men and other nurserymen, Mr. Beverley has a constant stream of retail business that keeps everyone on the jump.

Verhelle Bros., at the City & Kentia Nurseries, report excellent business. They are growing, besides their specialties in kentias, a good general line of nursery stock and are also going in heavily for Erica and melanthera for eastern shipment.

Mrs. G. Helmar, the well known and long established Haley street florist, says business is good now, though the season has not been quite up to the usual standard. But she looks on it philosophically and says she "enjoys a little rest once in a while." It takes a good deal to mar Mrs. Helmar's happy disposition. H. R. R.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Business last week was not quite so good as for the week previous. Both shippers and retailers agree on this. But an abundance of funeral work helped to clean up stock, of which large quantities have been arriving. Carnations were particularly plentiful, as were sweet peas. Unfortunately, owing to foggy conditions, neither possess good keeping qualities. Sweet peas grown outside look just as good as greenhouse grown peas, bright in color with good stem and fragrance, but the indoor peas will last several days and ship a long distance, while the outdoor blooms wilt and drop after twenty-four hours.

In spite of the increased number of roses being sent in, there is no oversupply and the quality is fine. The growers of everlastings have been somewhat out of luck during the last month, but signs indicate that both strawflowers and statice will sell better from now on. In bulbous stock daffodils and freesias have the stage, with hyacinths running up. A few forced tulips were shipped in from the north, but there is never a great demand for these and the Darwins are not yet. Anemones and ranunculuses were showy and good. Spanish iris and Iris tingitana attracted attention and added variety. Much blossom is still used, the acacias and genistas taking the place of the double red peach, which is about over. There will be later peach, both pink and white, but it does not usually sell as well as the early type. The demand for greens seems insatiable. The large quantities shipped in were used up easily. The better class of retailers use the honeysuckle freely for decorations.

Various Notes.

The directors of the American Florists' Exchange are arranging a free entertainment and supper for the night of March 19. Everybody in the trade is welcome to come and have a good time meeting old friends and getting acquainted with new ones. There will be no lack of good things for bodily comfort. All that the directors ask is that whoever can come will let Albert Goldenson know, either at the market or at 229 West Third street, a day or so in advance, so that he will know approximately how many to cater for. This means everybody. Growers and retailers, employers or employees and their friends are welcome.

THE BEST IN THE WEST — LOS ANGELES, CAL.

who for many years has been supplying the florists of this city with prepared orange blossoms, had a birthday this month and, unlike some ladies, is not averse to her age being known. This lady is 76 years of age and is still as active as ever and busier than most people. The quality of Mrs. Houson's blossoms is so well known that she has never enough of it, or at least never too much, and happy is the retailer who gets his supply regularly.

Andrew Bruce, of the staff of the Alexander Florist, has been suffering from blood poisoning contracted through the lead of an indelible pencil. It seems to have been a particularly stubborn case and has laid him up for a good while. A fine decoration at the Ambassador hotel last week kept this store busy. The ballroom was beautifully done in smilax and spring blossoms.

Chicago visitors to the city were in full force last week. A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., W. J. Smyth and Philip J. Foley were noted.

The Mas-Art baskets of Walter Armacost & Co. have proved a marked success already. This firm has made arrangements so that local buyers can obtain these baskets at exactly the same price as they sell at wholesale at the factory, thus making a saving both of express and packing. A fine crop of roses is coming in and the growers are going to be right on time for Easter.

C. Groen, of Montebello, says that his trade in small plants is growing rapidly and becoming a most important part of the business. W. Clark is so elated with this success that he has purchased himself an automobile. Mr. Clark grows the stock for the firm.

WE CLOSE SUNDAYS

With his winning smile, A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., rises to remark that this is the best season his firm has ever had, and it is not hard to believe, for, go there when you will, everyone seems busy in a systematic, time-saving manner that gets results.

Lichtenberg's store, on Sixth street, was remarkably beautiful last week. Everything else except blossoms and spring flowers was eliminated and the effect was wonderfully good and evidently admired by the flock of customers and visitors. So simple and, at the same time, so effective a display is rarely seen. Mr. Lichtenberg is well satisfied with the season's business so far.

At the store of the E. C. Amling Co. everyone is getting ready for the first Easter and preparing for a big one. Potted and cut lilies will, of course, be a big feature, but the supply of daffodils, freesias and other bulbous stock will be immense and there is every prospect of a big time.

Albert Goldenson reports a big demand for funeral work and also a fine transient business, in addition to his regular trade.

Paul Miller, of the California Floral Co., reports a big demand for this firm's special boxes and notes that when the selection of flowers is left to him, he can give particularly good values, now that stock is plentiful.

Satisfactory reports of progress came from the Westrem Garland Florists at their location on Hill street. Business has so increased that two additional men have had to be taken in; a fine showing for this hustling and capable firm. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Daffodils are now plentiful, the second crop having now come in. Carnations and roses are also much more in evidence than they were a week ago, and the prices have relaxed in consequence. The warm, spring weather has brought flowers forward rapidly during the last few days, but the market has not yet been glutted. Tulips continue to come in well, as do hyacinths, freesias, narcissi and other bulbous flowers, such as snowdrops. There are plenty of fruit and ornamental blossoms. Violets are of excellent quality and are in good shape for shipping, while the price has dropped to some extent. Spanish iris is just beginning to appear and there are a few Easter lilies in evidence. The more common varieties of spring flowers are to be found in abundance. Primroses are fairly plentiful and are much in demand.

Various Notes.

To those who do not know San Francisco, it seems impossible that anyone could be lost in a dense forest within a stone's throw of street cars and closely built-up streets. The Sutro forest, however, is in the city of San Francisco, and Louis Doffe, an aged landscape gardener, is being sought in its many miles of trees. He disappeared recently, after visiting a friend near the edge of the forest. In the early days of San Francisco, Louis Doffe helped to plant this forest.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. showed some of the earliest Spanish iris of the season, in an attractive window display, in

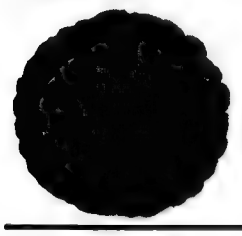
NEPHROLEPIS HILLSI

A NEW FERN

This is the most disinct commercial novelty in many years. It originated in our nursery, as a sport from Teddy, Jr., but, as will be seen by the illustration, it is of an entirely different character to the parent, of stronger growth and a most remarkable variety. It will eventually become as popular as the Boston and, having worked up a large stock, we are offering it direct to the trade at a very low price for such a valuable novelty. Strong, healthy plants in 5-inch pots, $9.00 per dozen. Smaller stock will be offered in April.



Good, hardy, assorted Boston, Roosevelt and Harrisii, 4-inch, pot-bound, ready to ship, $25.00 per 100.

From beds, ready for 5-inch pots

Finished stock from 5-inch to 10-inch always on hand in quantity.

HILLS' NURSERY, Avon and Morton Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.

ZINNIA

ASPARAGUS

Asparagus Sprengeri--(Absolutely 1921 crop, now in the picking). Plump seed, guaranteed to grow. Hand picked. 1000 seeds, $1.00.

ASTERS

ASTERS--(American Beauty). This is one Aster that can be grown both in early spring and in late fall. It is, therefore, the peer of Asters for the florist. Offered in old rose, September pink, purple, lavender and mixed. Trade packet, 50c.

ASTERS--(Fraser's California Crego). Very fluffy and borne on unusually strong stem. You have always had visions of such an aster. We are offering it in rose, pink, white, blue, lavender and mixed. Trade packet, 50c.

which the irises were combined with yellow orchids.

Frank D. Pelicano is such a dahlia enthusiast that he has practically left a sick bed to attend personally to the planting of bulbs on his dahlia farm. Mr. Pelicano has been suffering from rheumatism for some weeks and was supposed to be confined to his home.

There are ample roses for everybody, according to J. A. Axell, whose growers are coming in with heavy crops of roses. "The highest-priced flower on the market, considering its comparative value, is Anemone japonica," said Mr. Axell. A. H. Schwerin, of the Mayfield Nurseries, is coming in with a big crop of Freesia Purity. The Mayfield Nurseries are preparing to grow a large crop of asters.

S. Rosaia expects to have his violet crop last in good condition over Easter.

The E. W. McLellan Co. expects soon to be cutting 50,000 daffodils a day.

S. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., has recovered from an illness that kept him at home for some weeks. Mr. Enomoto states that he expects a good crop of roses for Easter, as well as plenty of tulips.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. has many varieties of choice carnations coming from its nurseries. This firm for the last seven years has been dealing in imported Japanese artificial flowers of tissue paper and other materials, and now has a large stock on hand.

Domoto Bros. have fine Easter lilies already coming in from their nurseries. They expect to have about 15,000 cut lilies for the Easter season, in addition to potted lilies. Rhododendrons, azaleas, hydrangeas and baby roses, all potted, are coming in plentifully.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has a nice stock of tulips which are coming in well, three shipments having just arrived from the growers at San Mateo. Potted rambler and baby roses are also coming in and the firm expects to have a good crop of Easter lilies, roses and hydrangeas for Easter.

and most complete ever issued on the Pacific coast. All the illustrations, previously taken, were destroyed by fire, but the work is now being done over again and the catalogue will probably be issued within three months.

H. Corlis, formerly a florist and decorator at 704 Sutter street, sold his business to Fred Kuhls, who is now in possession. Mr. Kuhls states that his new venture is proving entirely satisfactory. The store is in the heart of the apartment house district. Mr. Corlis has left for a trip to Europe.

In spite of the Lenten season, the Thomas Floral Co. finds business good in wedding decorations. The Conservatory, 901 Larkin street, and the Thomas Bros. store, 1605 Polk street, continue to find business good, in cut flowers especially. There may be a slight loss, due to Sunday closing, in the matter of tourist trade, but Thomas Bros. consider that the day of rest more than compensates for a slight decrease in transient patronage. The Market.

There was a noted difference in stock generally last week, owing to the fact that there has been a week of sunshine after the long period of almost continual rain. Carnations are still a little weak, especially Enchantress, White Enchantress, Matchless and White Wonder. Ward and Herald seem to stand the cloudy weather better, being much stiffer. Roses are again a little more plentiful, Ophelias being the leader, and their color never was better than it is at present. These sell readily at $4, $5 and $6 per dozen and Columbias, which are next both in quality and quantity, bring $5 and $6 per dozen. Some fine Hadleys are to be had, though not in sufficient quantities to supply the demand and what few are shown are soon sold out at $5 to $7.50 per dozen. Premier and Russell have been off color, owing doubtless to the cloudy weather. Most of the roses cut in these varieties have been too blue to sell, making it necessary to depend on the California market for our supply.

There is still plenty of bulbous stock to be had, jonquils, tulips and hyacinths being the leaders. Some good Darwin tulips are being shipped up here from San Francisco and a small supply of forget-me-not, mignonette, marigolds and anemones are on the market now, which helps to fill up where a dainty basket of spring flowers is wanted.

Oregon violets are much better and of sufficient quantity to replace the California shipments. As a whole, the month of February compared favorably

Various Notes.

Gustav Teufel has just returned to Portland after a three months' visit to southern California. He was so impressed with the possibilities of growing kentias and dracænas from seed that he has purchased a place at National City, six miles south of San Diego, Cal., where he will start in on an extensive scale to propagate these seedlings. He will leave again as soon as he can arrange his affairs in this city.

Among the best jonquils ever seen in the local market are those grown by O. E. Panzer and Niklas & Son. They are Van Waveren's Giants and King Alfred. The saucer of these flowers measures four and one-half inches across and the cup two and one-half inches deep, with a spread on top of one and one-half inches. The price of the bulbs is still too high to replace the standard varieties of smaller flowers, however.

The funeral of a prominent Seattle man was the occasion for a lot of telegrams from Seattle florists who were trying to get stock. Eugene Lamble, manager for L. W. McCoy, made a special trip here to buy orchids and reported business good, but stock not up to standard.

Weddeman Bros. are bringing in the best carnations so far this season. This firm has fared well with its rooted carnation cuttings, having sold over 25,000 to local growers. Of this number 10,000 were Enchantress Supreme.

Thomas Luke sent a shipment of Oregon grape, pussy willows and salal to Mrs. Warren G. Harding to be used in the decoration for the inaugural ball. This was a gift from the Smith Flower Shop. A book on the Oregon country was also enclosed. A basket of fine Darwin tulips was the window attraction last week at the Smith Floral Shop.

Mrs. Mazey, of Minneapolis, Minn., spent a day in this city, en route to California.

S. A. Dunlap and wife are again in this city. Mr. Dunlap is to be manager and part owner of a new flower store soon to be opened here, which will be known as the Swetland Flower Shop. Associated with him are Fred Young, wholesale grower of this city, and Mr. Hawkins, owner of the Swetland Candy Shop. The opening day has not been set, but will likely be early in March. H. J. H.

The Market.

An extremely heavy rush of funeral work and a good general business combined to give a fine showing for the last week in February, and most shops were able to report a month's business which compared in volume of sales more than favorably with the same period in 1920. The difference in prices, of course, meant that the gross cash turnover was less, but this failed to change the fact that in the Pacific northwest the florists' trade is probably more nearly normal than almost any other line.

Growing weather has been all that could be asked, but there is still an admitted feeling on the part of the growers that Easter lilies are not all going to be ready for the holiday. That there will be more than enough to care for local business is conceded, and a number of greenhouse men are in a position to offer some fine stock for shipping. That prices are more reasonable is also generally conceded, and this is expected to help in the matter of sales to the public.

As far as new offerings went, the first cut Easter lilies from local growers proved about the only novelty seen in last week's market. There have been more plentiful deliveries of potted spring offerings and members of the trade agree that bulbous stock deliveries this season are finer than anything seen here in late years.

The cut of roses is showing some improvement, but local growers are still unable to care for the trade needs. Some of the first California American Beauties seen here in some time were

One of the largest greenhouse owners in this section advises that this season will see him offering more Columbia roses than ever before, with Butterfly about replacing Ophelia, as far as his own case goes. There is more and more demand for Butterfly in this region, and some of the florists predict it will become one of the trade leaders before long. Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., was in Chicago last week visiting the trade.

Howard M. Earl is doing nicely and expects to be about again before the end of March.

Dr. W. W. Tracy is quite ill at the home of his son, John E. W. Tracy, 2927 Macomb street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

The death of C. R. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., San Jose, Cal., is reported in the obituary column of this issue.

Report of the death of Edward C. Dungan, a former president of the American Seed Trade Association, appears on the obituary page of this issue.

Seedsmen making importations of bulbs or stock under permit should read the remarks of C. L. Marlatt, on page 39, and also his warning, on page 44.

The few warm days of last week brought a notable increase in the business in Chicago seed stores. At the store of A. Henderson & Co., tuberoses and cannas are moving particularly well at this time.

Returning from his trip to Texas, Oklahoma and other southwestern states, H. A. Dertoli, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, reports little difficulty in securing good orders, although the spring season of that section is well under way. Manager Ralph B. Howe states that retail business is picking up with the warmer weather and that onion sets are moving exceptionally well.

HOLLAND'S BULB CUSTOMERS.

Asserting that Holland bulb exporters have customers still better than the United States, so far as price per pound is concerned, K. Velthuys, Ltd., writes from Hillegom, Holland, as follows:

"Our attention was attracted by A. Henderson's reports about 'Holland's Best Customers' in The Review of January 13, but we are sorry to say that the official Dutch sources from which Mr. Henderson has his figures are not complete, for we do not find those of the Scandinavian countries among them. Regarding these countries we took figures from the official reports of exports during the months of August and September, 1920, and find that there were sold to Sweden, Norway and Denmark 3,867,277 kilos, or, in terms of value, 5,299,526 guilders. The averages for 1920 would therefore be, in guilders per kilo:

United States	1.19
England	1.12
Germany	0.76
Scandinavia	1.37

"So, you see, the United States does not pay more per pound for its bulbs than any other nation. Moreover, it is misleading to make a comparison like this. Of course, there is a great difference between countries purchasing many hyacinths and tulips, which are dearer, and countries buying many narcissi, which are cheaper in general."

Though it affords no indication of the exports in pounds or kilos, the table below, from a recent issue of a British trade journal, gives a comparison in value of Holland's bulb buyers. The

"A much discussed question today is whether seed advertisements should appear in trade papers with prices attached. To properly understand the question one wants to put oneself in the position of a buyer and lose sight of the fact for the moment that he is a seller," writes C. Cunliffe, managing director of Cunliffe's Seeds, Ltd., Southport, England, in a British publication.

"Again, it is not a bad thing to forget all about the seed trade for the moment and imagine yourself looking into a shop window, say, with your wife as a companion. If in the window some articles are marked with their prices, and some are not, then the lady, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, would soon settle the question as to which of the goods she would buy. The impression one gathers from a shop window in which goods are displayed without prices is that those articles are, as a rule, dear. The advertisement often is sent out in place of a traveler or to back up the efforts of the traveler. Fancy a traveler calling and asking for orders but submitting no prices. It may be argued that the traveler gives his prices in the privacy of your office; equally true is it that the advertisement is read in the privacy of your office. Take our trade press of today. From the hundreds of prices in each issue week by week it is only those goods and those prices that interest me which have any effect on my mind; the others may as well not be there, and so the idea of privacy is obtainable by the published prices only arresting the attention of those who require them.

"Then there is the case of the man who is asked for an unusual line. Now what is an unusual line to one man is the ordinary, everyday line to another man, and therefore every line we handle is an out-of-the-way line to someone else, and if one is asked for an out-of-the-way line the readiest means of obtaining the market prices for the same is by turning to the trade press. Many an order has been booked by the mere trouble of looking up the

CUBAN SEED OF BAHIA GRASS.

An important new source of seed for Bahia grass, which is regarded as the most valuable grass yet secured for permanent pastures on the higher and drier land in Florida, was revealed through a recent trip to Cuba, by Prof. C. V. Piper, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Bahia grass, Paspalum notatum, was introduced from Brazil by the department in 1914. There existed no records of the cultivation of this grass, but different botanists had reported it as an important native pasture grass in Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay and Costa Rica, both in clayey and sandy soils. The experimental tests soon showed that this grass was highly desirable for pasture purposes in Florida and along the gulf coast, succeeding both in dry and moist soils. The rapid use of the grass has been handicapped by the lack of a source of seed supply. Prof. Piper discovered that Bahia grass is the dominant pasture grass of western Cuba, making up the lawns and pastures there in about the same proportion as does blue grass in Kentucky and Iowa. The pastures were closely grazed, indicating the high palatability of the grass, a fact also evident in experimental plats in Florida and observed by South American agronomists. The indication is that it has high nutritive value, increasing the flow of milk and fattening both sheep and cattle.

FORDHOOK HYBRIDS have created a sensation wherever shown. They have set the Gladiolus world talking and marveling at their unequaled beauty. The flowers frequently measure from 4 to 5 inches in diameter and range in color from cream-white, lemon, clear yellow, soft salmon-pink, to bright red and deepest crimson; and there are also light lavender and sky-blue shades, and most charming, rare "pastel" and art shades in wonderful combinations of rose, pink, salmon and amber.

The great abundance of the grass in Cuba makes this a promising source of seed supply, and vigorous efforts will be made to stimulate the harvesting of abundant supplies to meet the demand in Florida.

hardy flowering and foliage plants, roses, vines, shrubs, evergreens, small fruits, garden tools and other requisites. "Barnard's celebrated lawn grass mixtures"—half a dozen or more, for shady places, terraces, etc.—have a large share of the prominence, occupying the first two pages of the text and also forming the subject of the special display on the last page of the cover. The classic figure of "The Sower" appears again as the main decoration on the front cover.

Clarke Bros., Portland, Ore.—"Oregon Roses and Other Beautiful Flowers," an attractively illustrated 64-page catalogue, well printed on enameled paper and bound in an artistically designed lavender cover. Field-grown roses, being the specialty, occupy the first twenty pages. The other stock comprises full lines of greenhouse and hardy plants, vines, shrubs and flower seeds.

Harlan P. Kelsey, Salem, Mass.—A catalogue of the stock of two nurseries, Boxford Nursery, at Boxford, Mass., and Highlands Nursery, at Pineola, N. C.; twenty-four pages, in long, narrow, pocket form, printed on pink paper. At the Highlands Nursery Mr. Kelsey is conducting a "final sale of remaining stock, as the land is sold." Among the specialties are rhododendrons and kalmias.

Breck-Robinson Nursery Co., Lexington, Mass.—An excellently printed catalogue of nursery stock, roses, bulbs, flowering and foliage plants, vegetable plants and roots; forty large pages, finely illustrated. The cover, brown with purple border and lettering, and with the association trade-mark in gold as the central decoration, is especially tasteful.

H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo.—"Weber's Guide," an illustrated catalogue of nursery stock, roses, perennials and greenhouse plants; forty large pages. Under the heading of "Greenhouse Department," the company says, "We have quit growing cut flowers and are now devoting our entire range of glass to the growing of pot plants for spring planting and to the propagation of hardy perennials." The color work on all four pages of the cover is unusually fine and elaborate, showing a pretty outdoor scene and also many varieties of shrub blossoms, roses and perennials.

EXTENSIVE ADVERTISING.

A 4-page advertisement was carried in the Harrisonburg, Va., Daily News-Record, February 19, by the Wetsel Seed Co., of that city. This firm advertised every department in its establishment in the four pages. On the first page were the portraits of the founder of the company, D. M. Wetsel, the treasurer and manager, A. W. Wetsel, and the secretary, E. H. Wetsel. On the two center pages were price lists of garden and truck seeds, together with an order blank reminding the prospective purchaser to order before he puts the paper away. This firm is advertising a 5-cent packet of seeds, while most other concerns have advanced their prices to 10 cents. The last page of this advertisement contains nursery stock and supplies of all kinds. On this page also is advertised the cut flower department of this firm, which was added about a year ago.

CO-OPERATIVE ADVERTISING.

Present-Day Problems.

Coöperative advertising is in the air. We are all thinking about it. We are all talking about it and many of us are applying it with greater or less success.

This article is written as a brief review, in order that we might better be able to cope with the situation. Cooperative advertising, if done judiciously and under proper supervision, is beyond question a success. The raising of funds for coöperative advertising, if done judiciously and under proper supervision, is also undoubtedly a success. To the latter, however, must be, in a large measure, credited the greater amount of failures. Speaking for the florists' business itself, after careful observation for a decade or more, in which this has been tried and carried on, we must admit, and we have data to prove it, that the only successful and the most equitable plan for creating a fund for this proposition is the percentage plan. The contribution plan was tried in dozens of different ways and invariably, after the first year, it began to wane and about the second year it dwindled out in every locality where it was tried, with just one exception, and that one cannot hold out much longer. It is now two years old.

The Percentage Plan.

On the contrary, the communities adopting the percentage plan, and applying it forcefully and judiciously, have not only continued on that plan, but they have in each instance increased, and in one case doubled the percentage. This being the case, there should be no doubt in the minds of the florists of any community that the percentage plan is the only plan under which funds can be collected and the movement kept alive.

We know of many communities which started under the most auspicious conditions on the lump sum contributing plan and each and every one has failed sooner or later. Even the cities, Milwaukee, Chicago and St. Louis, that are now working so successfully on the percentage plan, had for years before tried various ways on a contributing plan and every one failed.

A Warning to Florists.

Hence, this article is for the benefit of those contemplating coöperative advertising, as a warning against making the mistakes that so many others have made. Whatever you do, get thoroughly acquainted with the percentage plan. If you are not, write the undersigned or any member of the national publicity committee and information will cheerfully be given you. This is of vital importance to the whole trade. We have now an opportunity to benefit by our past mistakes and by our present achievements. So, let us not waste time and energy on a non-workable plan, but let us unite on a plan that spells success, not only now, but for future time to come. No community where there are two or more florists is too small, and none is too large to make this plan workable.

Don't stand in your own light. Get into the big league. J. F. Ammann.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Meeting of Publicity Committee.

A meeting of the publicity committee was held at the New Willard hotel, Washington, D. C., January 23. Chairman Henry Penn, of Boston, presided. There were also present: Secretary John Young, New York; Treasurer J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; S. A. F. President Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; George Asmus, Chicago; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis., and ex-President A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y. E. Allan Peirce and George Moyse, Boston, Mass., were present as visitors. The meeting opened at 7:30 p. m.

After reading the minutes of the last meeting, the secretary presented his financial report, which was quite lengthy and was, on motion of Mr. Hess, adopted as read. The secretary also read the report in detail of Joyce & Mattis, New York, public auditors, which showed the accounts as kept by the secretary to be in excellent shape. On motion, the auditors' report was turned over to the auditing committee

The report of H. V. Swenson, manager of the florists' publicity service bureau, was, in the absence of Mr. Swenson, presented by Mr. Asmus. The

If I knew you and you knew me,
'Tis seldom we would disagree;
But, never having yet clasped hands,
We might, perhaps, not understand
That each intends to do what's right,
And treat each other "honor bright."
How little to complain there'd be
If I knew you and you knew me!

2.

If e'er we ship you by mistake,
Or in your bill some error make,
From irritation you'd be free
If I knew you and you knew me.
Or when the checks don't come on time,
And customers send us nary a line,
We'd wait without anxiety
If I knew you and you knew me!

3.

Or when some goods you "fire back,"
Or make a "kick" on this or that,
We'd take it in good part, you see,
If I knew you and you knew me.
With customers six thousand strong
Occasionally things go wrong—
Sometimes our fault, sometimes theirs—
Forbearance would decrease all cares.
Kind friend, how pleasant things would be
If I knew you and you knew me!

So let us trust, rely, confide,
Have firm good faith on either side,
Confidence to each other give—
Living ourselves, let others live;
And any time you come this way,
That you will call, we hope and pray;
Then face to face we each shall be
And I'll know you and you'll know me.

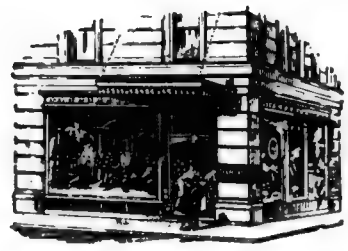
report covered sales of supplies and billboards and showed a profit to the campaign fund of about $3,000, produced in the period between the spring of 1920 and the date of the present meeting. Mr. Swenson, in the report, stated that it seemed impossible under the conditions existing to meet outside competition in similar lines to maintain the prices necessary to turn over a profit from the bureau and asked to be relieved from his proposition not later than June 1. After a lengthy discussion, Mr. Pierson moved, seconded by Mr. Hess, that the present agreement with Mr. Swenson continue on the same terms, and the motion was carried.

Discuss Collecting Funds.

The meeting then went into a long discussion upon the relations of the different organizations formed for publicity purposes with the campaign, to get, if possible, an idea as to the amount of subscriptions likely to be obtained under plans adopted for division of collections. While an approximation was arrived at, it was not found that any action on the part of the committee was required at this time.



Mr. Asmus reported that arrangements had been completed with the Brinkman Co. for the storage of the billboards on hand and for shipments from storage upon orders coming in from now on. About 157 boards were found to be on hand.

Mr. Ammann, for the subcommittee having in charge the preparation of a plan to be offered to the S. A. F. executive board covering a more equitable and just system for collecting funds for future publicity work, reported a plan in accordance with instructions, which has already been published in The Review. Mr. Asmus moved the adoption of the report by the committee as a whole, which step precipitated a discussion which occupied considerable time. Finally the motion was seconded by Mr. Hess and Mr. Asmus called for a poll vote. Further discussion was necessary before the vote could be completed, but ultimately all voted in the affirmative and Mr. Ammann was deputed to present the report to the board in behalf of the committee.

The matter of appropriations for 1921 then came up, and finances were fully discussed. While the estimated funds to be available during the year approached a satisfactory total, it was not found desirable to make definite appropriations at that meeting, except as applying to administration and promotion expenses, which were made the

The Market.

With plenty of sunshine and warm, spring-like weather, the supply at all the wholesale markets exceeded the demand and consignments of seasonable cut stock increased daily to the end of last week. The retailers say there was little social work of any kind, but the large demand in funeral work during the week kept them busy and greatly helped to clean up the surplus in this market. It looked as though one of the old-time gluts was due, but this was avoided. There were large shipments of excellent roses all the week and Premier, Columbia and Ophelia were the best. Milady, White Killarney and Ward were in full crop and the market afforded plenty for all demands.

There were many sweet peas of fine quality coming to the market at greatly reduced prices. These cleaned up almost daily. Spencers of fine quality, with great long stems, were well in bloom. Carnations arrived in large shipments and only the fancy varieties held up in price, even these coming down a few cents. Violets were plentiful, but if the Bulbous stock was heavy and helped to swell the market. Easter lilies, callas and valley were in abundance on the market, as well as other seasonable stock.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held its regular meeting, March 2,

The Happy Tale Of The Happy Hap Fern

Last week we talked together about that hobby of mine, the $5.00 box, and I mentioned two more $5.00 specials I was going to mention.

The Happy Hap fern is one.
The Tisket Tasket Basket is the other.

The Fern is the Macawii type. Fine, full fronded specimens, every one of them.

We called it the Happy Hap, because from the very first, it seemed to have a way of making those who saw it, wear a wreath of smiles.

And now you ask me how it sells?

Am not going to say it goes like hot cakes, because it doesn't.

But it has done for us exactly what the $5.00 box has done in a bigger way.

It has brought customers we never had.

It has sold itself to those we already had.

Next time you have a $5.00 F. T. D. customer wire us to send a HAPPY HAP.

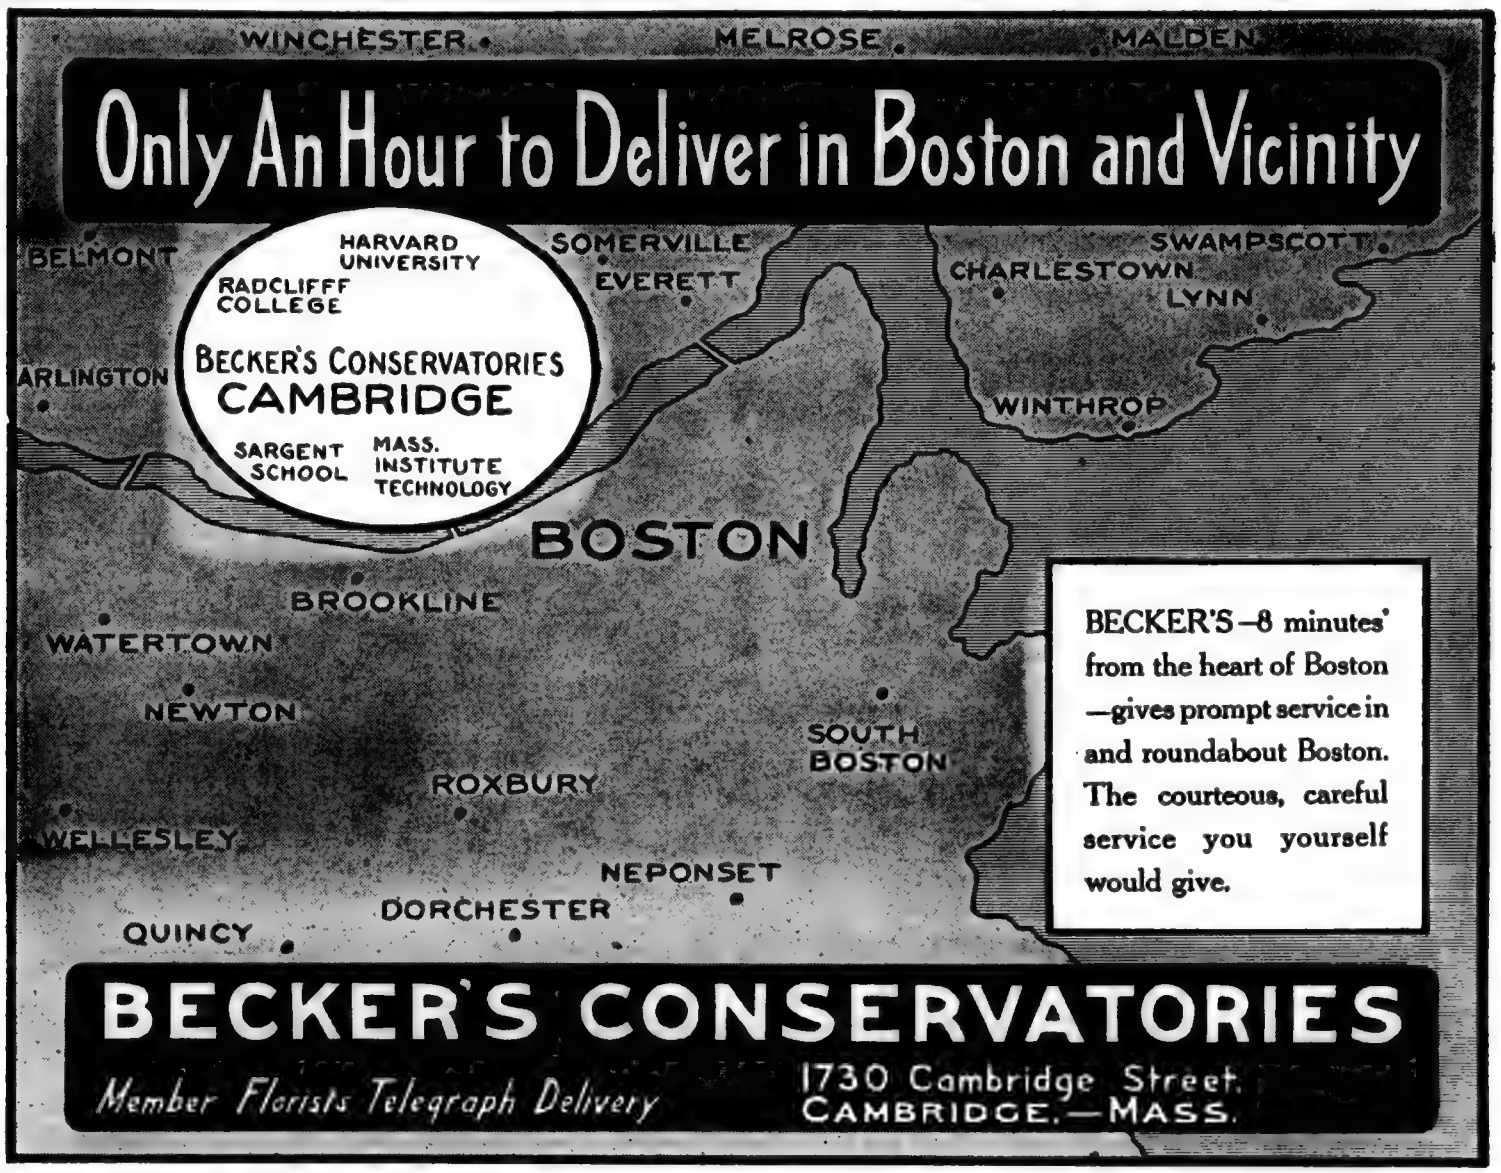
hold meetings regularly each month. The new officers have taken hold and will try to interest all the retailers in becoming members and attending the meetings. The new officers will be formally installed in office Monday evening, March 14. The secretary will send out notices as to the place of meeting to all members. All retailers have been invited to attend.

Fred Lautenschlager, representing the Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, spent a few days here last week visiting the many growers in the county.

The Acme Flower Shop, in the Arcade building, had a splendid run of business last week. Large funeral designs were noted here daily. Dr. William Preston Hill is president of the company. The floral artist is Elizabeth Kester Turk.



Edward Kalisch, of the Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., Clayton, Mo., reports that with a few more days of weather like last week they will be cutting outdoor tulips and hyacinths, as well as other early outdoor spring flowers. They will have double the amount of this stock they had last year.

The March plant display at the Missouri Botanical Garden consists of a most attractive display of 3,000 cinerarias. The brilliancy of this display attracts many visitors daily and many of the retailers report excellent sales of cineraria plants.

The second-floor display at the establishment of Grimm & Gorly is now completed and is known as the art department, over which Henri J. Duernberg presides and points with pride to the fact that the display attracts many ladies, who visit the store daily.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its regular monthly meeting, March 2, at the W. A. Rowe Co. establishment. The attendance was poor and nothing of importance was done, except the regular routine work and a general talk on the work the St. Louis district was doing, of interest to all growers.

The fine, warm, spring-like week caused plant stands at the various markets to open. Thomas Carr's stands, in Union market, were ablaze for a few days with blooming plants of all descriptions and the demand cleaned them out daily.

G. N. Rothenhaber, head of the Blossom Shop, was confined to his bed with illness last week, while Mrs. Rothenhaber, the artist at this store, put in a busy week.

The officers of the Florists' Club decided upon an interesting program when they met at L. Baumann's home, on Portis avenue, March 4. Mrs. Baumann and her two daughters served a splendid repast for the officers after the meeting.

business each day, nothing big being reported, but just that steady demand that kept the market well cleaned up each day.

All reports are most promising for Easter in the cut flower end of the market; plants, however, are problematic. In lilies, hydrangeas and rambler roses, while there is going to be a fair supply, there is by no means going to be enough to meet the demand. The same might be said of cinerarias, cyclamens, primroses and all of the smaller plants. There will be plenty of bulbous stock in both pots and pans, and these will have to be depended upon, to a certain extent, to take the place of the large varieties. But, from all I can gather, made-up baskets will be depended upon this year more than ever. Many of these will be used and the wise man is already gathering up foliage stock for this purpose.

Roses were in fine shape last week, and, all things being equal, there should be a fine supply of good stock for Easter. Carnations were never better, and the forecast is a big supply. Violets were plentiful, more than could be handled by the stores, and many found their way into the streets. These, of Club the question of the club's co-operation with the Women's Civic League in holding the annual flower mart at the base of Washington's monument, May 12, will be taken up. These ladies are striving, through the home garden contests they hold throughout the city, to teach the people to beautify their homes by the use of flowers. Last year the club members developed a great interest and it was found to be a big benefit. This year it is the purpose to go into this worthy project more strongly than ever. Miss Turnbull and Mrs. Worthington, of the league, will each address the club on this cause. No one is more interested than the florists, because it is a good opportunity to "Say It with Flowers." It is not a case of donations, except in work, and everyone should be willing to do his share to advance the cause.

Various Notes.

Beach in Baltimore. Robert L. Graham, Jr., made a reproduction of a bathing beach, with kewpies in bathing suits sporting on the sand. In the background was Florida moss hanging from the trees, with plenty of real southern palmetto, cactus and century plants, giving real Florida atmosphere.

Herman Cook, of John Cook's, last week stated that, odd as it might sound, they have had several large weddings since Lent began. Of course, they were Jewish. Mr. Cook said their Easter outlook was fine, that they were going

The Market.

Business has been fair during the week. Some flowers have been quite reasonable, although the cheap daffodils are about finished. Orders for design work have been plentiful and some fine pieces have been turned out.

Club Meeting.

The Retail Florists' Club met February 28, with President McFadden in the chair. Mr. McFadden, Mr. James and Mr. Geraghty were appointed a committee to deal with the question of a fall flower show and take up the matter with other associations interested. It is likely that the club will recommend that there be no show this year on account of the F. T. D. annual meeting.

F. K. Prouse and Mr. Wakefield were elected members.

A box social will be held March 14. Growers' night will be held April 11, to which event all growers are invited. Mr. Cooper, of the Dale Estate, will tell about the growth of that large flower growing concern. Refreshments will be served.

Various Notes.

H. G. Dillemuth, G. M. Geraghty and Mr. Waters entertained Mr. Hall and J. Eddy, of Montreal, at a dinner and theater party Tuesday evening, March 1.

W. W. Gammage, of London, was a recent visitor in the city.

Mrs. Moore had a meeting of the F. T. D. members at her home Tuesday, March 1. Plans were made for the organization of members outside the city. The plans are being submitted to the members for their approval. All will report to H. G. Dillemuth, general chairman.

The Market.

The year 1921 thus far has favored the florists' business more, perhaps, than any other business in Nashville. The holiday trade was fully up to previous years. In fact, some of the trade report that it was better than ever before. There has been no epidemic of any kind this year and for this reason funeral work has not been so heavy as the last two winters, when influenza was prevalent. Nevertheless, business has been steady and about normal. Prices have been good and most of the stock has been cleaned up every week.

Quality, especially in roses, has been better this year than I ever before have seen it. This undoubtedly is largely due to the fact that Columbia, Madame Butterfly and Premier have been the roses that have been most commonly grown. A few Double White Killarney roses are still grown in Nashville, but I have not seen a Kaiserin or Pink Killarney this year. Sunburst also has disappeared and one sees only an occasional Aaron Ward. American Beauty is another rose that has practically disappeared from our market and no one seems to miss it. Hoosier Beauty still is in evidence, but there are indications that it will be largely discontinued this year. Russell, which was the most popular rose in Nashville for some years, is on the wane.

But few tulips or hyacinths were grown this year, but the lack has been supplied, at least in part, by the increased planting of freesias. The new colored freesias were grown here when they first came to the market, but did not prove so successful as was expected and have been discontinued, at least until they show considerable improvement over the early introductions.

Carnations continue to be as popular as ever on this market. Doubtless there are more carnations produced than ever before. The white varieties which Thomas C. Joy is producing are proving popular, as also are two pink seedlings and one red that are being grown in considerable quantities.

Doubtless the trade will hear more of these varieties later.

Sweet peas are appearing, but not in profusion. The quality, however, is especially good. Valley, although not nearly so plentiful as before the war, can be had when needed, and a few orchids are blooming. Pot plants are decidedly scarce, even cyclamens being on the short side. We have seen better cyclamens this winter, however, than usual. The Nashville growers have been saving at least a part of their seed for several years, and the best cyclamens appearing on the market are from home-grown seed.

A visit to some of the growers' houses last week found everyone busy propagating. There promises to be at least a normal supply of bedding plants this year. Salvias, as usual, will be in the lead, with petunias a close second. Almost all geraniums are being discontinued, as they do not do their best in our hot, dry climate. Chinese woolflower is coming to be a popular bedding plant here, and now that we have the new pinks and yellows, it should be in even greater demand.

There have been few lilies on the market this winter, but indications are that there will be the normal supply for Easter. Hydrangeas are being grown extensively for Easter this year. A few years ago they were popular and then were practically discontinued. This return to popularity is doubtless due to the fact that azaleas can no longer be had.

Various Notes.

Frank Cornell is busy working up a stock of bedding plants for his spring trade.

James F. Corbett has remodeled his greenhouses.

Leslie Littel sold his place and moved from the city some weeks ago. No floral work is contemplated by the new owners, according to reports.

Charles H. Tritchler has his usual stock of high-grade pot and bedding plants this spring. In addition, he has one of the finest stocks of evergreens in the state. Mr. Tritchler's business is increasing rapidly.

McIntyre Bros. report business fully up to last year. In fact, it has been hard for them to meet the demand at times.

Geny Bros. have an excellent line of pot plants at present. They say prices this year have been fully as good as last, with a complete clean-up most of the time.

The Joy Floral Co. has about doubled its output this year, but with the Chattanooga and Atlanta branches this firm has found it difficult to keep up with the demand. Seedling carnations and roses have been especially fine this year. F. B.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Shipping business continues brisk and no complaint can be made on local orders. The usual dullness of the season settles down a day or two each week, but if it were not for the great amount of stock brought out by the favorable weather, florists would feel they were doing well. No reports of business falling behind last year are heard. The market is cleaned each day.

Club Meeting.

The Kansas City Florists' Club met Thursday, March 3, in the salesroom of the Pinehurst Floral Co. A report was submitted by the publicity committee, consisting of the officers and trustees of the club. T. J. Noll and W. L. Rock, who were chosen at last month's meeting to visit the florists individually and secure subscriptions for a publicity fund, announced that $5,692 had been subscribed. Before the meeting was over this amount was increased by several florists who were not in their stores when the committee called. A motion was passed to spend $500 for Easter advertising. L. R. Bohannon, treasurer, reported a balance of $243.72 in the bank.

Sid Hare, landscape architect, gave an illustrated talk on "Somebody's Back Yard," showing the possibilities of improving the appearance of home grounds and the city. M. E. Carter told briefly of a movement under way to beautify the city for the meeting of the American Legion next October. Between 100,000 and 150,000 members of the legion are expected to attend. It is expected to be one of the largest gatherings ever held in this country. The plan is for the florists, nurserymen and seedsmen to advertise and promote the beautifying of the city, which at the same time will help their business. March will be set aside for an intensive campaign along this line. April will be for the paint dealers to get in their work. The pride of every citizen will be appealed to for making the city spotless and attractive. The Boy Scouts will be called upon to help in seeing that it is kept so. Warren E. Comstock laid before the club a plan to increase business for Mothers' day. A committee, consisting of Miss Hayden, M. E. Carter, L. R. Bohannon, Robert Fields and William Wade, was appointed to look into this plan, and T. J. Noll, W. J. Barnes, C. J. Tucker and C. A. Chandler were chosen to aid in work for the American Legion meeting.

Several interesting exhibits were brought in. E. Bunyar showed a double cineraria. John Stevens brought a vase of beautiful carnations not yet named. W. L. Rock exhibited sweet peas and snapdragons. C. T. Reinhardt had white sweet peas, a cross between Yarrawa and Snowstorm, which he originated, and some of the new General Pershing freesias. All were examined and admired by the members.

Various Notes.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has had some unusually fine calendulas.

Plans are being made by the Kresge Flower Shop to remodel the store and double the size of the icebox. Martin Rogell is building up a steady trade.

of coöperative advertising beginning March 14. A fashion show will be one of the features. Prizes will be offered for the best window displays. The florists have been invited to take part.

William Foith has shaded his houses and applied whitewash so that his carnations will hold back for Easter. He hopes for a good cut. His crop has been good thus far. His sweet peas have also been doing well. He is working up a nice stock of geraniums.

Mrs. E. H. Hedges was busy with funeral work last week. Her plant sales have been increasing for several weeks.

One hundred orchids, many of them white, were used in the window of the Muehlebach Flower Shop March 3 and 4. In the center was a great bowl of white sweet peas.

A. N. Nielsen is cutting 4,000 carnations every other day. He has about 70,000 carnation cuttings in his houses. He expects to have 3,000 lilies for Easter. Buds are now showing well.

Longview Farm is planning to discard one house of Ophelia and plant it in Premier after Easter. This firm is now cutting from 1,400 to 1,600 roses a day in the new house.

John Stevens has been with Ed A. Humfeld for the last few months. He will go into business again as soon as he finds a location to his liking.

ago. This firm has a few new carnations from seedlings, one the color of the Premier rose which is promising. Carnation Topsy is selling well.

Work is rushing at the greenhouses of the Alpha Floral Co. near Overland, Kan., about fourteen miles from Kansas City. The new addition will consist of 15,000 feet of glass for cut flowers and plants. Twenty acres will be devoted to outdoor stock. The Skinner system of irrigation will be used here. A reservoir, 144 feet long, twelve feet deep and seven feet wide, is being built of reinforced concrete. This, in addition to a big dam, will supply water in case of drought.

The Market.

Sunshine and warm weather last week helped to produce an abundance of stock, and some items, especially carnations, have almost reached a glut.

Roses of all varieties are plentiful, and the quality could not be better. Prices on short-stemmed roses dropped considerably last week, but the prices of medium and long-stemmed grades remained unchanged, as they are cleaning up well. The present prices range from $8 to $35 per hundred, with Ophelia, Columbia, Hoosier Beauty and Frank Dunlop getting the big call at $10 to $35 per hundred.

Carnations are moving well, but an enormous crop finds some growers overloaded. Prices range from $3 to $8 per hundred. Laddie still cleans up every day at $15 per hundred.

Sweet peas are abundant and prices are down. The best blooms go at $2 per hundred, while the shorter stems bring only $1 per hundred. Daffodils are plentiful at $6 to $8 per hundred. Darwin tulips are scarce, and all offered bring $10 per hundred. Lily of the valley is scarce at $10 and $12 per hundred.

Pot plants are still a big item. Cyclamens are gone for this season, but bulbous stock of excellent quality is offered and a good demand keeps this item well cleaned up.

Various Notes.

Fred Gust, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., visited the trade last week.

This has been accomplished by team work in which Brother David and myself have been closely identified, at the same time recognizing the ability of our assistants, which is absolutely necessary where practically everything in the floral alphabet, from acacias to verbenas, vege-

Commenting upon the future of the rose, Mr. Burgevin feels assured that a stock will ultimately be raised that will be adaptable to outdoor climate, just as the advance upon the line of hybrid teas has been made. FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

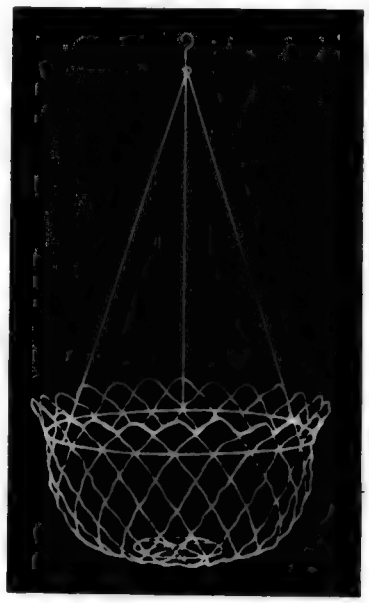
The Market.

The market showed little change during the week. Large quantities of bulbous stock continue to come in daily. Valley is plentiful and the demand is limited. Orchids are also plentiful and are being offered at attractive prices. Some good roses are coming in, such as Premier, Pilgrim, Ophelia, White Cook, Columbia, Richmond and Crusader. They are being cleaned up daily. The supply of carnations is increasing, but the demand still exceeds the supply. Each day finds the wholesale houses cleaned up in carnations. American Beauties are also a little more plentiful, especially in the shorter grades.



Daily shipments of sweet peas and violets are being received and have been moving fairly well. The demand for Easter and calla lilies far exceeds the supply. Pussy willows are still a special feature and are moving slowly. Calendulas and yellow daisies are arriving in small quantities.

There has been really no decided change in prices and it is hoped that the production of roses and carnations will continue to increase. Business during the last week has been exceptionally good, some florists reporting several large funeral orders.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Retail Florists' Association was held Thursday evening, March 3, at the Seventh Avenue hotel. An attractive program was arranged. The McCallum jazz orchestra played several selections while dinner was served. Ira Harper, chairman of the association, called the meeting to order and, after the reading of the minutes and reports from committees, Mr. Harper brought to the attention of the florists the method being used in connection with the advertising campaign. An advertisement will appear in each Pittsburgh morning newspaper every second week during the year. There was considerable discussion about having these advertisements appear in the evening papers, but no action was taken.

G. Wessenauer, of Sewickley, Pa., made a 4-minute speech on street peddlers and the glut which overtakes the wholesalers and growers at various times during the year. He also suggested that every florist present give a little talk in order that these meetings be made beneficial to all.

Harry Bunyard, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, was a visitor at the meeting. He commented on Mr. Wessenauer's suggestions. He called attention to the fact that over one-third of the flowers sold in Philadelphia and New York are sold through the street sellers; in fact, he emphasized the street sellers as a means of educating people to buy flowers.

Several of the florists commented on the manner in which some of the wholesalers distribute their flowers in time of glut. Edward McCallum, of the McCallum Co., assured the florists that it was not his desire, or the desire of any other wholesale house, to sell to the street seller, but in all instances it was absolutely necessary to move the stock in order to be able to make some return to the grower. He brought out plainly the predicament the wholesaler is in when such a glut occurs, as it either means move the stock or lose the grower. H. J. Hook, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., assured the retailers that the sentiments of that firm were the same as those of the McCallum Co., and if any arrangements or suggestions could be made, the company would be willing to coöperate. Mrs. Minnie R. Hill, of Waynesburg, Pa., was received into the membership of this association. The meeting adjourned at 9:30 o'clock, twenty-seven members and visitors being present.

The Market.

The general demand for cut flowers has been only ordinary. The plant trade is being pushed just now, owing to the quantity of bulbous stock on the market, which is of exceptionally good quality. The price of cut flowers is quite unsteady. Carnations range all the way from 75 cents to $1.50 per dozen, with Laddie at $2 per dozen, retail. Roses range from $2 to $8 per dozen. Violets, sweet peas, jonquils, daffodils and hyacinths are seen in quantities in all the stores.

Various Notes.

At the greenhouses of the Doswell Floral Co. the carnations and snapdragons are in heavy crop and the quality is fine. This firm has a large crop of Easter lilies that will be in just right for the holiday.

The Blossom Floral Co. furnished the flowers and decorations for the wedding of Miss Justine Cook, one of the prominent young ladies of Bluffton, Ind. This firm also had telegraph orders for flowers to go to Ancon, Panama. Mr. and Mrs. Blossom figured in an automobile accident with their new Chalmers car and were fortunate to come out with only the fenders on the car broken. No one was injured.

Among the trade visitors last week were G. R. Gause, of Richmond, Ind., and A. L. Nebel, of the Nebel Mfg. Co., Cleveland, O. S. N.

Texarkana, Tex.—Mrs. E. W. Harris, 322 West Twenty-ninth street, who has been growing dahlias for sale for several seasons, is planning to go into the florists' business. NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

If every nurseryman grows all that he needs himself and a little more besides, as has formerly been the case, a period of price depression is inevitable. It behooves the trade to do as much planning as planting.

Nurserymen making importations of European stock under permit from the federal horticultural board should read the remarks of Chairman C. L. Marlatt, on page 39, and also the warning he gives, on page 44.

Advertising will aid the nursery trade, as it has others, in meeting its problems, which are now, as conditions change, becoming more pressing for solution. The kind may be debatable, but the need for some kind is not.

The nurserymen were not so fortunate in their choice of a slogan as were the florists. Criticism of "Trustworthy Trees and Plants" has come from members of the A. A. N. themselves, not without stirring others to its defense.

Propagators and handlers of seedling stocks in California have been requested to watch that such stocks do not reach the hands of any but legitimate nurserymen. Most of the firms handling such stocks have agreed to sell only to recognized members of the trade.

The California Nurserymen's Association is publishing a quarterly bulletin containing notes of business of the association and important problems of the trade. The bulletin is mailed to each member and it is expected to promote the unity of the nursery business in that state.

The Connecticut nurserymen, at their annual meeting at Hartford, last month, enjoyed a gala evening of the first order. A special book of songs of the association was published and during the evening they were sung with gusto. The songs were arranged by the office force of the Brainard Nurseries, Thompsonville.

Nurserymen seem agreed that a drop in prices, however slight, is required by the present readjustment situation. The ideal price would be the highest price which would create sufficient demand to sell the entire stock. It is hard to state what this would be, but that it must be lower than the present standard seems inevitable.

MARKETING EFFORTS NEEDED.

"In times when selling is good and it is an easy matter to dispose of goods, there is always a strong desire for expansion," said M. Mierisch before the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, at Chicago, February 10. "To tell you to grow more fruit trees, more ornamentals, more evergreens, more this and that, would be cheap advice.

"When the farmers were urged a year and two years ago to grow more wheat, corn, oats and potatoes, they found that the bottom had dropped out of their tremendous crop, simply because all efforts were made towards production and practically none towards marketing. This same thing would happen if the nurserymen paid heed to such advice. If we are to enlarge our plantings we must not neglect to look ahead and provide for adequate sales when the time arrives that the increased production becomes marketable."

Nurserymen can continue the profitable business they have had of late if they will take steps to maintain the demand. To do this they must make more use of that means found so effective in every other line, namely, printers' ink.

BROAD-LEAVED EVERGREENS.

Native Evergreens Satisfactory.

Those who have visited England and continental Europe or the Pacific coast of our own country deplore the scarcity of broad-leaved evergreens that succeed in eastern North America, as compared with the luxuriant growth of glossy, lustrous foliage that is secured in the regions first named. This condition is largely due to climatic reasons, as many of the finest species, such as rhododendrons and laurels, are scarcely more than half hardy and may only be expected to do well in countries where mild, open winters are the rule. It is only under the favorable conditions prevailing in England and France or in the states of Oregon and Washington that we may find the more desirable named varieties of rhododendron growing and flowering with any considerable degree of success. Nevertheless, we have in this country a limited number of native species known to withstand the rigors of our severest winters and to grow reasonably well wherever proper soil conditions and other requirements are supplied.

The requisites for the successful cultivation of nearly all broad-leaved evergreens are a cool, moist, well drained soil, in connection with a shaded or semi-shaded position; and in the case of those species belonging to the heath family, such as rhododendrons and kalmia, it is imperative that the soil be an acid one, almost entirely free from lime. This acidity may be maintained by annual heavy mulchings with oak leaves. A mulch of maple or other leaves is not so good, as most other kinds of leaves become alkaline in the process of decomposition and serve to neutralize rather than to maintain the essential acid condition.

The Mountain Laurel.

Native to the Allegheny mountain region are found a few desirable broad-leaved evergreens, worthy of general distribution and trial. At the head of the list undoubtedly stands the mountain laurel, or Kalmia latifolia, a rugged, spreading species that makes a shapely, picturesque plant of great landscape value. Its foliage is unusually clean, glossy and fresh-looking. The hardiness of the mountain laurel is not to be questioned. In May well established plants are enveloped in a mass of bloom, at first a deep pink and later turning white, that persists for many days. The mountain laurel grows naturally in various parts of Ohio and similar latitudes. The plant appears at its best when grown in the mass, and for colonizing in shaded cemeteries, along the north side of buildings or in open groves it has no real rival. Probably the nearest approach to it in points of excellence is Rhododendron catawbiense, another native of the Alleghenies. This species is a handsome, dark green plant growing three to six feet high, that bears, rather freely, masses of flowers in a somewhat trying shade of magenta, or dull, light purple. For those who wish to make beds and masses of entirely hardy rhododendron, R. catawbiense should be given the preference over all others.

The Great Laurel.

Rhododendron maximum, of the Alleghenies region, is a larger species than either of the foregoing, often reaching a height of twenty feet, which flowers later in the season, generally near the end of June. Several plantings of this rhododendron have been a subject of study at the Ohio experiment station for a reasonably long time, under conditions thought almost exactly to supply their natural requirements. The outcome has not been entirely satisfactory, probably because the plantings were made with large plants collected in the mountains at somewhat too late a time in the season. These plants were not located in their permanent beds until the middle of June. Experience derived from this venture seems to indicate that it is safer to procure thrifty young nursery-grown stock than to place reliance on overgrown plants brought in from the wild.

Other Varieties.

Two other broad-leaved evergreens which have done well at the Ohio station are Mahonia aquifolia and mountain fetter-bush, or Andromeda floribunda. The mahonia has good foliage quite similar to that of holly, making a plant three to five feet high that is rather spreading in outline. Numerous small yellow blossoms borne close to the stems are succeeded in autumn by conspicuous blue berries. The mahonia is an excellent thing that can only be grown in shade, unfortunately, as undue exposure to sunlight and consequent freezing and thawing in winter causes unsightly browning of the foliage. However, the plant is perfectly hardy and in spring quickly puts out a new growth of leaves. The mountain fetter-bush is an interesting iron-clad subject whose leaves are not browned or injured any way in winter, even when exposed to full sunlight. The plant is a low, compact, round-headed one whose bloom spikes, closely resembling those of lily of the valley, appear in autumn and burst into full flower early in spring.

For carpeting under the shade of trees the familiar, old-fashioned myrtle, Vinca minor, and Evonymus radicans are two valuable vines. Pachysandra terminalis is an excellent perennial plant, spreading slowly, that furnishes a neat mat of good foliage throughout the year. Except in sheltered nooks and corners on north or west walls, English ivy has not given satisfaction in this country, but when protected by a mulching of straw, leaves or evergreen boughs it is sometimes utilized as a covering for graves. A new plant which, it is thought, may to some extent supply the need for a satisfactory evergreen wall covering is evergreen bitter-sweet, Evonymus vegetus, which so far has been tested only in a limited way, but promises much for future usefulness.

THE SPRINGFIELD FLORAL AND FERN CO., Springfield, Ohio

This concern is making special efforts to keep abreast of the times and has in stock many new varieties of perennials, bulbs and seeds.

John Merkel has returned from his annual vacation, which was spent visiting many of the greenhouse establishments in the west.

Joseph W. Kallay has purchased the greenhouse formerly owned by Martin Kohankie and has recently moved to his new property. Mr. Kallay intends to use it for propagating perennials, shrubs and evergreens.

R. A. Cawley is an expert marksman and carried away first honors at the rifle shoot held here last week. His scores were 48, 46 and 49.

The Wayside Gardens Co., Mentor, O., is beautifying its new office by putting in landscape plantings and show grounds. This will afford visitors an opportunity to make a selection without having to tramp through nursery rows and harrowed ground.

George Martin says business is good and at present he is busy filling Delphinium Belladonna orders during the mild spell of weather.

The science of growing perennials is in its infancy and seldom, if ever, is there a surplus of any of the standard varieties of this class of plants. The demand is far greater than the supply.

Tony Rich, for many years foreman for Martin Kohankie, has accepted a position with the R. E. Huntington Co., Good Hold Farm, Mentor, O.

Hardy phlox of good quality is still scarce in this vicinity, while hardy pinks are meeting the demand.

T. R. Norman & Sons and Mark Welch are loading a car of nursery stock together for Shenandoah, Ia. This is the first car of the season.

W. H. Nichols and son are in Cleveland, O., laying out plans for landscape work. T. J. M.

AGERATUM FRASERII

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years; that is, a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire summer with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over two and one-half inches across, while the individual flower would be seven-eighths of an inch in diameter. The plant spreads about twelve to fifteen inches across. It can easily be used with alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant.

The Market.

Practically the same conditions exist here this week as the last two weeks. Business continues to be rather slow. The supply of cut flowers continues to be as heavy as has been noticed for the last two weeks or more. Bulbous stock is coming in heavily, with an abundance of jonquils and daffodils. The quality of most of these is fine indeed, but surplus stock has to be sacrificed in order to make a clearance. Carnations are not greatly changed, but the supply is not quite so heavy and prices are on the downward grade. Locally grown acacia, though not so heavy in color and blossoms, is fine stock and sells quite readily. Freesia is not overabundant now, but there is good sale for it. There is a good supply of violets reaching the market, but the demand is not at all large. Marguerites move slowly and the supply is fully equal to all present demands. Quantities of heather in various sized bunches and lengths of stem reached us last week. In roses the supply was far greater than the demand last week. Prices consequently have dropped somewhat. Callas are plentiful and move fairly well. Easter lilies are not overplentiful just at this time. Valley is much improved in quality, but the sales have been quite limited. Sweet peas are excellent.

Various Notes.

Charles W. Curtis, of Summerville boulevards, has been kept quite busy of late with a good quantity of funeral work. Potted stock for Easter is in

We are gradually catching up with our orders for Edna and Harvester. Have you received yours?

EDNA will undoubtedly make a splendid commercial red. It has all the present-day requirements of a scarlet for both large and small grower. We have shipped it to Washington, New York, St. Paul and many nearer points and it has proven itself an ideal shipper. You will make no mistake in planting it.

HARVESTER is one of those bread and butter sorts that go to work immediately after being benched and keep right at it clear through the season. You will like its pure whiteness and general all-around goodness.

BOTH VARIETIES $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000 fine condition and will apparently be in its prime for that time. It includes a good quantity of bulbous stock, begonias, primulas and Easter Greeting pelargoniums. Plans are already made for this firm's new home, which will be built this spring in the adjoining lot.

Chas. H. Suhr is growing some splendid bulbous stock, which he is moving in quick order, when arranged in pans. His stock for Easter looks promising and a good quantity of it is assured.

Visitors to the trade last week included John Koenig, of Holland, and W. Dobbs, of Dobbs & Son, Auburn, N. Y.

Beautifully arranged bowls and baskets of flowers continue to be a specialty of J. B. Keller Sons. They are using a quantity of single violets this season, which appear to be quite popular.

James Vick's Sons report an unusually heavy demand for seeds this spring. According to the present outlook, their stock, which is complete in every way, will be heavily taxed this year. They are prepared, however, to meet this extra demand.

George T. Boucher last week featured in his windows spring flowers set in attractive birch-bark boxes and succeeded in moving considerable stock. He has found the demand for potted plants good and reports a splendid demand for funeral work.

George B. Hart is bringing in some splendid spring flowers and roses from the Fairport range. Stock is making a good showing there under the supervision of Manager Boyd. Work is going along well at his basket factory and some new numbers are already on the market, which promise to be good sellers. H. J. H.

San Antonio, Tex.—The Art Floral Co., which recently opened here, has enjoyed an excellent business so far and is anticipating a big Easter trade. H. J. Campiche, manager of the new concern, was formerly connected with the Campiche Florists, of Chicago. Beautiful decorations and artistic window displays marked the opening of the establishment, and many consider this stand one of the most modern in this section.

The Market.

The weather was favorable last week and stock has been coming in a little more heavily. There was a heavy cut of tulips, daffodils, spring bulbous stock and sweet peas during the week. There was also a good supply of tulips, hyacinths and daffodils in pots and pans, and the stores are making a specialty of these at the present time.

Carnations and roses are coming in about normal, and the supply is equal to the demand. There is also a good supply of violets, lilies and green goods on the market. Even with the favorable, mild weather, lilies are backward and a big proportion of them will not come in for Easter. Hydrangeas also appear to be scarce. However, there are a few rambler roses and cyclamen plants to be had.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club had a well attended meeting Thursday evening, March 3, with President Guttermuth in the chair. It was a lively meeting, and considerable discussion regarding the advisability of using tractors for cultivating was taken up.

The Milwaukee Pottery, which had been operating at top speed the last month, has shut down for an indefinite time, but no doubt will be reopened again soon, as there is a good field for a pottery here.

Allen Strauss, who represents Lion & Co., New York, is spending a few days in the city with his wife. They are on their honeymoon. They contemplate going to California.

A smooth young chap has been purchasing flowers from several downtown florists for wedding or funeral orders, presenting a check of the American Automobile Association in payment. He gives his name as Paul Gildea, and the check usually is made out for $25. His purchases do not equal this amount, so he receives the difference in cash. P.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HEATING.

I am going to build one house, 35x200 feet, sixteen feet to the ridge and six feet high at the plates. I should like to use a 5-inch supply through the middle of the house and should like to avoid using coils on the sides, as they shade the house more or less.

Can you offer some suggestions and let me know the arrangement for heating this size of house? I will put in a new boiler and should like to know what size to get to heat two houses of this size. Is hot water or steam the more satisfactory? A. M. R.—Ky.

There are several points that must be understood before definite answers to the above questions can be given. Among them are the amount of glass in the walls, the temperature desired, and whether beds or benches are to be used.

From the reference made to the shade from pipes on the walls, we judge that there will be glass in the walls and will consider that it will amount to at least three feet in width on two sides and one end. The usual temperatures in greenhouses are 50 to 52 degrees for certain classes of plants and 60 to 62 degrees for other classes which need more heat.

Good results may be obtained with either steam or hot water heat; the latter is generally preferable for small ranges, but the cost of a hot water heating plant will be about 50 per cent more than for a steam plant. Considering the high cost of labor and material, we are inclined to favor the use of steam, especially if one or more additional houses are to be constructed in the near future. In northern Kentucky the winters are comparatively short and there will be few nights when the outside temperature will drop to zero, which will tend to lessen the amount of night firing.

The costs of labor and materials vary in different sections, to say nothing of the frequent fluctuations, and we suggest that estimates be secured from local steam-fitters and jobbers in greenhouse heating materials.

While one 5-inch flow pipe would answer for heating the house with steam, at least two pipes of that size will be required if hot water is to be used. With steam, however, we would suggest the use of two 2½-inch flow pipes, locating them on the purlins or purlin posts. Fourteen 1¼-inch return pipes will be required in the coils. If raised benches are used, three pipes may be under the side benches and two under each of the others. With solid beds the shade from three pipes on the side walls will not be serious, and the remainder of the return pipes may be in the walks or on the sides of the

Uniform Heat for Flowers

Prize-winning stock—the kind which takes honors consistently year after year—is usually grown by the man who has spent a lifetime scientifically studying his work.

But even the most skillful veteran finds help in the convenience and dependability of the Morehead Back-to-Boiler System.

He knows that with this inexpensive equipment installed in his plant he can always be sure of a uniform growing temperature—that he will never again be bothered with a messy steam pump.

Easily attached to your present boiler room apparatus, the "Morehead" System eliminates sluggish circulation in your steam lines at once—and thereby gives you absolute control of temperature in your greenhouses the whole year 'round.

The condensation itself is immediately returned to the boilers as feed water while it is pure and hot—thus saving a large per cent of your fuel.

To get pictures and data which show how other florists are using the "Morehead" System to help grow prize-winning stock, simply write for your free copy of the latest Back-to-Boiler Book. Tell us your conditions and our engineers will advise you (without obligation) how to overcome your present difficulties.

beds. The above is for a temperature of 60 degrees, while if only 50 degrees is required in zero weather, only ten 1¼-inch returns will be required for the house described. While a somewhat smaller boiler might be used to heat two houses to 60 degrees, we suggest that a boiler with a rating of fifty horsepower be installed.

To heat the house with hot water the boiler should be of the same size, and we suggest the use of five 2½-inch flow pipes, instead of two 5-inch flows. From sixteen to eighteen 2-inch returns will be required for 60 degrees and ten to twelve returns for 50 degrees. The distribution of the pipes will be about the same as for steam, except that in addition to running a flow pipe upon each purlin there should be one flow on each side wall plate and the fifth flow might be two or three feet below the ridge.

In case there is to be no glass in the side walls, one less return may be used on each side, while if there is four feet or more of glass in each of the walls, one additional return on each side will be required.

SEPARATE BOTTOM HEAT.

My house is seventy-five feet long by ten feet wide. The boiler is about fifty-five feet from the greenhouse. I have some beds under the benches for forcing valley, as well as above the benches. I want to keep the temperature in these up to 70 degrees, even if it is 10 degrees below zero outside. Then I have propagating benches on the north and south sides of the house. How many feet of 1-inch pipe will be needed for each of these two benches in order to maintain 70 degrees? Or would you advise 1¼-inch pipe here?

A. V. B.—Mich.

A 2-inch main from the boiler will be amply large to supply the radiation in a greenhouse 10x75 feet. The main could enter the house about three feet below the ridge. To supply heat for the house itself, it might be well to run two 1¼-inch pipes on the north wall and one on the south wall. These may be connected with the main inlet pipe at the end of the house nearest the boiler and with the two return mains on the side walls at the other end. For supplying bottom heat for the propagating beds and the valley forcing beds, it would be well to run two 1-inch pipes under each half of the center bed, using four pipes in all. If, as we understand it, these beds should be piped so that they may be heated independently, it would be better to reduce the main flow pipe to 1½-inch piping and run it to the point where the propagating bed ends, here

"A quart a day keeps the scale away," Mac will tell you, and he knows.
The worst incrusted boiler yields to SCALINE, the little giant that works its way through the scale to the boiler metal and there adheres, forcing the scale away. The thin film SCALINE leaves on the boiler surface lets heat through, but prevents the formation of new scale. No turbining of boiler tubes, no pitting of boiler walls, when SCALINE is used.

Order a barrel today; money back if not satisfied.

SEALRITE
COATRITE
are a necessity in every plant. Ask us about them.

dropping down a 1¼-inch pipe to connect with the two coils for the west end of the house. Then continue the main as 1¼-inch and connect it with the coils under the valley beds. Valves should be provided to cut off the entire coils, as well as one of the individual pipes in each coil.

cially true of short-stemmed stock which can be used in corsage work.

Orchids are still short as to cut, and the retailers are drawing on the California and Portland growers for their stock. Lily of the valley is only average, both for quantity and quality. A novelty in this division last week was the first cut of English primroses. These blooms were used freely in corsage work.

Various Notes.

Theodore Hanline, of New York, a cousin of Ray G. Slicker, northwest representative of the A. L. Randall Co., has been visiting in Seattle during the last week.

The Hollywood Gardens developed a luncheon centerpiece last week which elicited favorable comment. It was a 4-foot model of the steamship Imperator. This shop is preparing special wooden boxes for Easter lilies, the boxes being painted a blue-gray shade, sanded and carrying stenciled patterns in relative colors.

A change in the firm name of Melby & Allen is noted and henceforth this shop will be known as the Pinehurst Floral Shop. Francis A. Allen continues as president and there are no changes in the other elective officials. Carl Melby remains with the shop as sales manager. This shop is arranging for larger space to care for its increasing business.

Stuber & Richardson have been showing some Murillo tulips, and the local trade easily absorbs all of this new offering. This is the first season this particular variety has been grown here and it bids fair to become one of the most popular.

The Orpheum Floral Co. showed the first cut of Easter lilies for this season.

The Burns Floral Co. supplied the wreaths used at the Washington monument celebration by the Mexican, Bolivian and Chilean consuls. Sylvester Muecci, of this firm, is attracting notice as the latest local florist to break into the movies, new weeklies of the monument ceremony showing him prominently.

Rosaia Bros. are bringing in from the greenhouses some attractive Japanese azalea plants in tubs and the first cut English primroses seen here this year.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attra tive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

One of the most elaborate shop decorations of the week was handled by L. W. McCoy, using pink and red tulips, blue, white and pink hyacinths and daffodils. An extensive amount of funeral work was also reported.

John Holze, of the Queen City Floral Co., reports the handling of a large luncheon decoration recently where Columbia roses were used freely.

Growers who handle a part of their rose bushes outdoors report considerable difficulty in preventing more or less loss through the inroads of the powdery mildew. One grower states he has secured best results in fighting this disease through a dust spray of nine parts flowers of sulphur and one part arsenate of lead.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop handled two of the largest funeral pieces seen here in some time for the Rhodes funeral. One of these consisted of a 12-foot broken wheel, while the other consisted of a large standing wreath.

A novel floral piece was prepared recently for a funeral by Gus Peterson, of the Hollywood Gardens. It was a reproduction of an old Spanish galleon, about four feet in length, done in red carnations, while the high cabin house aft was produced with daffodils. Silken sails completed the miniature ship.

H. P. Anderson, of the University Floral Co., has lately been making a special showing of single tulips and hyacinths in small pots, and reports a fine demand for these on the part of the university students. H. M.

Cromwell, Conn. — The weight of snow did some damage to the greenhouses of A. N. Pierson, Inc., February 23. It was necessary to put supports under the roof in some parts to keep it from breaking down.

Corning, N. Y. — Mrs. William E. Barnes left recently for Buffalo, where she will spend several weeks with the Anderson Floral Co. She is to study the construction of floral designs and upon her return she and Mr. Barnes will open a shop in connection with the former Johnson greenhouses, which they now conduct.

The Market.

Most of the florists are complaining about business being poor this year and if they compare their sales for February with last year's reports they will feel rather blue, for business in general has been much poorer than during previous years in Cleveland. Flowers have not been bringing so good prices as heretofore; in fact, much of the shrinkage this year is due to the much lower prices and until things are readjusted it will continue this way. From present indications, there is no telling how long this readjustment will take.

There has been a great abundance of spring flowers on the market, such as daffodils, tulips and yellow and Paper White narcissi, but roses and carnations have been cleaning up nicely. The market, however, is not realizing nearly the prices of previous years and, even though the wholesalers and growers have reduced these substantially, they find it rather hard to clean up as in other years at this season.

Various Notes.

The new ruling of the American Express Co. in regard to greens, making them take first-class rates, has made it impossible to sell fancy ferns and smilax at the same prices as formerly. The expressage on a case of smilax to this market at present runs close to $3, which is altogether too much. It is thought here that the florists throughout the country should put up a protest on these high rates.

Visitors last week included E. O. Everhard and wife, of Wadsworth, O.; J. R. Cowgill, of Canton, O.; Mr. Larson, of the Brown Floral Co., Canton, O.; S. D. Green, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and Mr. Brandt, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

The Ohio district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association held its first meeting at Hotel Deshler, Columbus, O., Thursday afternoon, March 3, at 2 p. m. The plans of the new organization were explained and also the advantages which will be derived from membership. The following were among those attending from the Cleveland district: Lars Anderson, Carl Hagenburger, George Bate, Herman P. Knoble, F. C. W. Brown.

The Market.

As is usual at the period just preceding Easter, the local market is in poor shape, with little activity, except such as is caused by funerals. With an early Easter, however, the general opinion is that there will be a brisk business following, as there are a number of large weddings and social functions scheduled during the spring. Prices have dropped off a trifle.

Various Notes.

Miss Margaret Macrae, daughter of the late Farquhar Macrae, and sister of Alexander and Walter Macrae, had a narrow escape recently. She was knocked down by an automobile near her home, but, fortunately, no bones were broken, although she was badly bruised and shaken up.

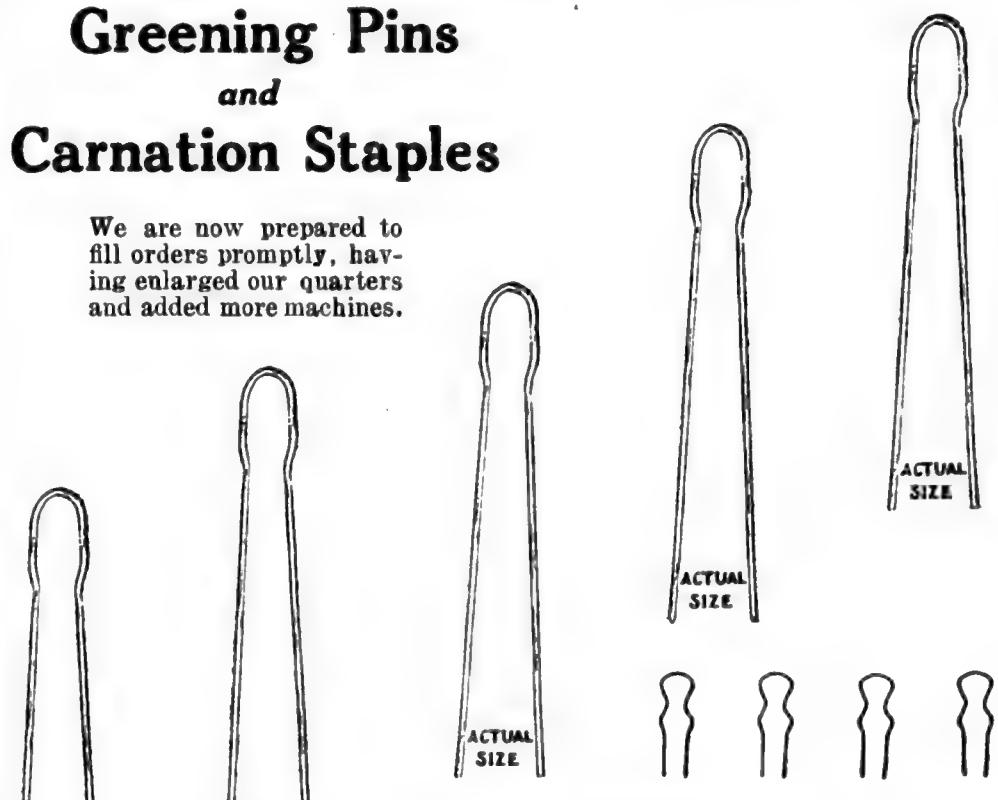
Joseph Koppelman was a business visitor in Boston last week.

Charles Macnair spent a part of last week in New York and vicinity.

William Lasell has succeeded James Taylor, of Chepiwanoxet, as superintendent of the Sprague farm at Narragansett.

The Westminster Greenhouses, Inc., have been making exhibitions of Columbia roses in their windows that have attracted considerable attention.

Fred Dietz, of French street, was in New York last week looking for supplies.



Reuben Popkin, who conducts two stores on Washington street under the firm name of Smith, the Florist, is talking of consolidating the two at the Washington market stand, corner of Washington and Union streets.

T. J. Johnston & Co. and Burke & Burns have received notice to vacate the building in which they are located by April 1, as the building is to be torn down.

Charles Forbes, of Pawtucket, has recovered from an attack of hiccoughs which lasted nearly three weeks.

OHIO DISTRICT GROWERS.

The first meeting held outside of Cleveland, O., for the purpose of organizing the growers of the entire state of Ohio was held at Columbus, O., Thursday afternoon, March 3, in the parlor of the Hotel Deshler. The meeting was in charge of the temporary officers elected at the Cleveland meeting last November. The Columbus growers were well represented, and a few attended from various other parts of the state. Everyone present joined the association, after hearing the plan for it thoroughly explained to them by the men from Cleveland. Those present took application blanks with them and promised to get some of their neighbors as members.

There will be several other meetings held in various sections of the state, including Youngstown, Toledo, Springfield, Dayton and Cincinnati, soon after Easter. All flower growers in each of these sections will be invited to attend these meetings for the purpose of learning what this new association of growers will mean to them and why it is to their advantage to become members of it as soon as possible.

The committee from Cleveland was composed of Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, temporary president; F. C. W. Brown, vice-president; George Bate, temporary secretary and treasurer; Lars Anderson, director, and M. A. Vinson, who is assisting in the organization work. T. J. Ludwig, of Columbus, made all the local arrangements for the meeting. George Bate, Temp. Sec'y.

BOSTON NOTES.

At a meeting of the Horticultural Club, March 2, a committee consisting of Judge C. W. Hoitt, Patrick Welch and E. A. Peirce was selected to confer with other local committees relative to a complimentary dinner to the three local national presidents, Messrs. Roland, Craig and Howard.

Harry Quint, who has for some time been operating a flower store at the corner of Berkeley and Boylston streets and who also operates a large tire store which does a big business, has now opened an additional flower store in the Victoria hotel, at the corner of Newberry and Dartmouth streets, right in the heart of Boston's most exclusive residential section. Harry is a hustler and one of our live wires.

Visitors last week included Thomas Pegler, of Lewiston, Me., looking the picture of health. He says he is well pleased with the world. Tom used to be our most popular salesman in the old Park Street Flower Market. Other callers were James Ingram, of the Ingram Floral Co., Manchester, N. H., and John Buckman, representing the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia.

LeRoy Parsons, salesman for the Mann Co., at the Flower Exchange, is able to be around again after being confined in bed for ten days.

There is a veritable inundation of Dutch bulb salesmen. Chased from Chicago and other cities, they now swarm in the Hub, but bulb specialists are chary about buying at the present prices.

Frank Edgar, of Waverley, Mass., has his big, roomy houses filled to repletion with lilies, genistas, roses in variety and French hydrangeas, all in prime condition for the coming great floral day.

Among those planning to visit the New York show are Thomas Roland, E.

Gentlemen:---

Enclosed please find check for Soil Grinder. We gave this Grinder a thorough test yesterday, and we are highly well pleased with it. It surely is a great time saver. We find there is no waste in the soil, all the small stones are ground up.

We are not using much soil at present but we ran this about an hour yesterday without a hitch.

Neil E. Boyle, rose specialist of Malden, Mass., usually grows a house of lilies for Easter, and this year he has 7,500 plants of grand quality of an even height and in prime condition for Easter. His rose houses look well, a sport from Stanley being particularly good.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar states that the seed business with R. & J. Farquhar & Co. in February went fifty per cent ahead of a year ago and there is a big demand for nursery stock. DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

The warm weather prevailing lately has considerably increased the supply of cut stock, to such an extent that the long scarcity is over. Roses are of the best quality, owing to the bright, sunshiny days. Carnations are arriving in large quantities daily. Sweet peas are in big oversupply and show the effects of the warm weather in their quality. The presence of too much bulbous stock may be partly responsible for a temporarily overflowing market. If early ordering is any sign, Denver shippers will have a splendid Easter business.

Various Notes.

W. S. Dolan, representing the Agmco, was a visitor last week.

Mr. Chambers, who is opening a flower store at Louisville, Colo., made a purchasing visit last week.

Mr. Gross and H. Clausen will shortly open a flower store in the Ideal building, Seventeenth and Champa streets.

Charles France will erect a new 36-foot steel-frame greenhouse, of Agmco construction, next summer.

The supply department of the Denver Wholesale Florists Co. has grown to such an extent in the last year that it now keeps a salesman on the road.

The Elitch Gardens Co. recently contracted with the Agmco for the erection of a steel-bar house, 43x150, and also a small propagating house. The big house will be planted to carnations. This firm is cutting a large rose crop this month. It also has a fine bench of baby ramblers coming on.

The Denver Society of Ornamental Horticulture sent 100 blooms of the new carnation Denver to President Harding, to arrive in time for the inauguration ceremonies. George Brenkert, the originator, said he had no fear of their arriving in anything but perfect condition, as Denver has safely made the trip before. R. E. H.

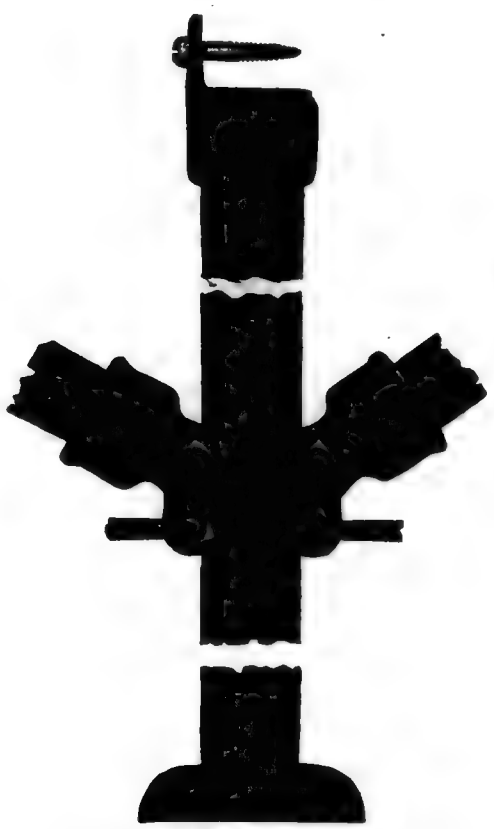
NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Flowers of many kinds are in abundance at the present time. They are much cheaper than they have been. Roses still hold up in price, but most other flowers can be bought much cheaper than a few weeks ago. They will, of course, soar again as Easter approaches. Many Newark florists have been having a lot of funeral work during the last two or three weeks. Orchids are fine at present, and the same may be said of violets, mignonette, lilies of the valley, roses and the various spring flowers. Lilacs are now beginning to come into the market.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros. report an unusually large amount of funeral work recently. Transient trade is reported a little slow at present. The outlook is fine for a big Easter business.



F. P. Wolfinger had an especially fine funeral piece recently, a blanket of orchids and lilies of the valley. R. B. M.

TOTTY'S 'MUMS.

A familiar slogan for nearly twenty years. The stock we offer you today is absolutely free from the dreaded midge, having been propagated entirely from plants that have been grown outdoors all summer, lifted in the fall and housed solely for propagating purposes. It costs more to raise stock this way, but the results obtained more than justify the cost. The following varieties we can offer for immediate delivery in 2½-in. pots; planted out in a bench now and stopped, they will give you quantities of fine, clean cuttings during the next four months.

Remember we guarantee this stock is ABSOLUTELY CLEAN!

WHITE.	CRIMSON.

"Last year I purchased Petunia seed from you. I think every seed germinated and the booms were the finest ever seen in this part of Canada. Only about 8 per cent of the plants could be classed as common. I want more of the same quality each year."
Mr. Rudolf Nagel, Lancaster, Pa., under date of Dec. 14, 1919, writes us:

SEEDS

THE DIENER TOMATO.

Increase your tomato yield 100 per cent by raising the new DIENER TOMATO. 30 to 40 tons of ripe fruit to the acre.

This tomato was raised last year all over the United States and Canada with the greatest satisfaction.

As smooth as an apple and of a magnificent dark red color. Single tomatoes weigh up to 3 lbs. each. The flesh is more solid than that of any other tomato. The fruit contains little seed and is solidly filled out. This tomato is free of the acid taste, and for dehydrating, catsup and canning it is the best tomato in existence today.

The DIENER TOMATO is blight-resisting as well as drought-resisting. It will not crack from the rain and will not rot while lying on the ground in wet weather. This tomato will grow in almost any kind of soil and it commences to ripen the first part of August.

It is the greatest novelty in the tomato line, and it will soon crowd out the present varieties from the market by its far superior qualities.

Price of the DIENER TOMATO SEED. Sample package, 25c; one-quarter of an acre package, 50c; one acre package, $1.50.

RICHARD DIENER CO., INC.,
Kentfield, Marin County, Cal.

DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price 50c per package.

RICHARD DIENER,
Kentfield, Marin County, Cal.

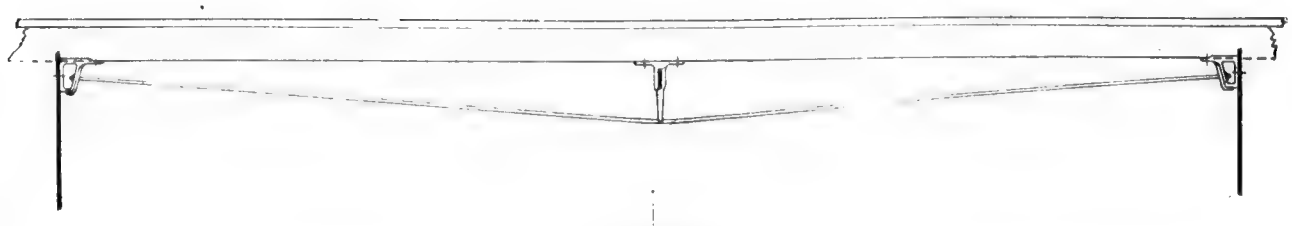
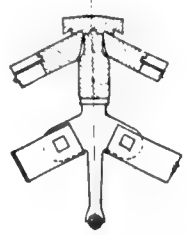
WOOD LABELS



LABELS, for nurserymen and florists.
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

Swansea, Mass.—Ormerod Bros. are having a new greenhouse built at their establishment, at East Swansea, to replace the one destroyed by the hail storm last fall.



Newburyport, Mass.—W. E. Goddis is fast becoming well known in these parts as a grower for the retail market. As a side line he took up the growing of dahlias and pansies. The business has grown to such an extent that it has become necessary to look elsewhere for stock.

Augusta, Me.—In a window contest of Augusta merchants, the Augusta Flower Shop won first honors. An attractive window was presented by George Merrill and deserved the honor it gained of being the best window displayed during the sale, according to a local paper. The setting was a miniature marriage celebration, with all the beauty of the scene reinforced by the use of floral decorations.

Brattleboro, Vt.—C. E. Allen sold his wholesale and retail establishment here to C. N. Bond. Mr. Bond formerly owned four houses and the nine recently purchased from Mr. Allen makes a total of thirteen houses, covering 17,000 square feet of glass. Herman Kuhner will manage the growing end of the business. Mr. Allen established his business in 1868, and is reputed to be one of the oldest active members of the trade.

This simple line sketch shows you the truss stiffening rod running under the ridge between each rafter.

At the left you have a cross section of ridge midway between rafters, showing you the secondary rafter and truss strut.

Hitchings Stiffeners For Ridge And Roof

Spacing rafters 12 ft. 1½ in. apart is one t.ing.

Making the frame just as stiff and strong as when the spacing was 8 ft. 4 in. is quite another.

Take the question of rafters alone, in say a house 200 ft. long.

In the narrow spacing 25 pairs of rafters are used.

In the wide spacing, there are 17 or 8 less pairs.

When you take rafters out of a greenhouse construction, it's a pretty serious matter.

That strength must be put back some other way.

To do it, we first use deeper rafters.

Then we use heavier purlins, secured to the rafters by an extra long fitting, extending the depth of the rafters and well out on the purlin itself.

Look carefully and you can see the secondary rafter and sag rod running from it through the purlins to the eave and secondary post.

The ridge is stiffened and held straight and true by a truss rod running between every pair of rafters.

Running from it perpendicular to the eave and through each purlin, is a sag rod.

To overcome any possibility of eave sag, a secondary post is placed midway between the regular posts.

The combined result of all of which is, that the wide spaced house as we build it, is just as strong as the old spacing and the house is decidedly LIGHTER.

Just as strong and lighter.

That's what you are looking for, isn't it?

You know we go anywhere for business.

Or to talk business.

The AMLINGS of MAYWOOD, ILL.
They represent a million square feet of glass, distributed as follows:—

A. F. Amling Co., Maywood, Ill.	625,000 square feet
W. A. Amling, Pana, Ill.	90,000 square feet
Herbert Amling, Maywood, Ill.	30,000 square feet

Amling Bros., Des Plaines, Ill.	125,000 square feet
Amling Bros., Santa Ana, Calif.	95,000 square feet
Total	1,000,000 square feet

Well! They are still growing—growing flowers and growing larger—For the AGMCO has just received its FOURTH ORDER from this group of leaders. This time it's

and the order is for—

Five connected pipe-frame houses, 40 x 400 ft., and a service building 37 x 81 ft. The heating is to be the justly famed McKEE VACUUM SYSTEM.

Now Study This Record of AGMCO Building:

1915 Albert F. Amling Co., Maywood, Ill., 9 houses, Steel-Frame 44 x 550 ft.
1919 Walter A. Amling, Pana, Ill., 4 houses, Steel-Frame 36 x 300 ft.
1920 Walter A. Amling, Pana, Ill., 3 houses, Steel-Frame 36 x 300 ft. (repeat order .
1921 Amling Bros., Santa Ana, Calif., 5 houses, Pipe-Frame, 40 x 400 ft.

The Amling Bros., as you know, are Ernst and Paul. Like Walter A. Amling, they are master-growers both by right of birth and of training.

Why stand on the sidelines and watch the game? Why not get into it yourself?

It's the American—The ONLY way—to win laurels and cash. And the AMERICAN GREENHOUSE MFG. CO. can help you in just the same way it has helped THE AMLINGS of MAYWOOD, ILL.

SNOW IN ARKANSAS

Range of J. W. Vestal & Son, Little Rock, Arkansas, furnished by us last summer.

Regarding the above pictured range of greenhouses, we have just received a letter from Vestal, which reads in part as follows:

"Just a few lines to let you know about our new range. We got it completed just in time to be tried out in a sixteen-inch snow storm. It stood like a stone wall and we are sure proud of it. The last house on the north side of our other range, which was not built by you people, went down from the snow and caused us about three thousand dollars' loss."

Our object in quoting the above letter is to show that a Moninger greenhouse is always a good investment and although sometimes it may cost a little more than some others, in the long run it is the cheapest.

It is time to get started with your 1921 requirements; why not now let us make sketches and estimates on your prospective buildings?

Greenhouse Builders

Don't Let This Past Winter Lull You To Sleep

Ever seen a real Southern darkey sit down on the sunny side of a building the first warm day in the spring?

Well, sir, most darkeys are just plain children.

They never seem to realize that what has been, will be again.

The fact that it's warm now is enough for them. They just plain forget all about how cold they have been.

Every time we have a warmish winter, that's free from heavy snows and blows, we are flooded with inquiries for our cheap constructions.

There are always a lot of wise men who every so often declare that: "We don't have the winters we used to. You ought to see the winter we had when I was a boy."

Well, if winter before last, and the winter before that, wasn't a full grown winter, then reckon our wise friends must have spent their boyhood with the Eskimos.

When it comes to building a cheap house, what, let me ask, does a man save by saving a few hundred dollars, only to lose them and a lot more when it goes down with the first big snow?

You may lull yourself to sleep by saying that really big snowstorms happen only once in a lifetime.

Well, isn't once enough, when in a night the savings of a lifetime can be lost?

It's to meet just those once-in-a-lifetime storms that we construct our houses.

They cost more than some houses.

Cost more, because worth more.

It's one of the things that you pay less for, by paying more.

Don't let this warm weather lull you to sleep.

When ready to talk over building a greenhouse built to stand, say when and where and we'll be there.

LILIES
For Your Easter Use

Draw your Lilies from what undoubtedly is the FINEST SUPPLY IN AMERICA

In figuring on the Lilies you can use this Easter, consider several factors—remember that a tremendous demand is assured, at good prices, giving a chance for nice profits for retailers who provide the stock and facilities to meet the demand. Remember, also, that Lilies will be of old-time quality. The bulbs imported last year cost more, but were of better quality than in recent years. Amling's Lilies, forced from large size, selected bulbs, will be of quality equal to any ever seen in the market. There have been Easters when we had MORE Lilies, but they never were FINER. They will sell easily to your customers and will give unqualified satisfaction.

SELECTED GRADE Best and Longest		AVERAGE GRADE Medium Stems
Per 100	$ 25.00	Per 100	$ 20.00
Per 1000	250.00	Per 1000	200.00

Packed 100 or 200 to the box

Bear in mind that the total number of Lily bulbs imported last fall was not over one-half what America received before the war. Consider how greatly demand has increased. A shortage of Lilies is certain—but YOU can assure YOUR supply by ordering today.
